NAYS—0.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the report of the Committee of Conference was adopted.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

INFORMAL OPINION No. 850.

The SPEAKER laid before the House Informal Opinion No. 850 addressed to Honorable William P. Gallagher, Chief Clerk, which was read by the Clerk as follows:

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA
Department of Justice, Harrisburg

June 4, 1937.

INFORMAL OPINION No. 850.

Honorable William P. Gallagher,
Chief Clerk,
House of Representatives,
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

Dear Mr. Gallagher:

This will acknowledge receipt of your letter of May 13, 1937, in which you ask to be advised whether or not a member of the House may be appointed to an office under the following circumstances:

(a) When the appointment is made by the Governor;

(b) When the appointment is made by a Department head or fiscal officer of the State;

(c) When the office to be appointed is only a temporary appointment which will later on necessitate an election;

(d) Whether or not a member of the Legislature may continue in office without resigning in the event that he is appointed (1) to a County office, (2) to a City office;

(e) Where the salary or payments are made from independent funds and not the General Fund.

Section 6 of Article 2 of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania provides:

"No Senator or Representative shall, during the time for which he shall have been elected, be appointed to any civil office under this Commonwealth, and no member of Congress or other person holding any office (except of attorney-at-law or in the militia) under the United States or this Commonwealth shall be a member of either House during his continuance in office."

Former Attorney General Carson, in an opinion, reported in Volume 28, County Court Reports, 369, was of the opinion that an attorney-at-law could represent a State Factory Inspector in all prosecutions, in which such inspector made complaints for violations of the State laws dealing with factories located in the Commonwealth.

In the case of Commonwealth ex rel v. Murphey, reported in 25 Pa. County Court Reports, 637, it was held that a member of the Legislature may hold the position of Clerk and Secretary to the Board of Township Commissioners, under the Act of April 28, 1899, P. L. 104.

In the case of Commonwealth ex rel Woodruff v. Joyce, reported in 291 Pa. 82, it was held that a State Senator could serve as a Director of the Poor. In this opinion, the following language appears at page 84:

"The interdiction of the Statute is not against holding any office, or any public office, or any office of profit but against being appointed to any civil office under this Commonwealth or holding any other office of profit under this State. The legislature, therefore, confined to State offices, the offices which might not be held; had it desired to exclude the holding of any other office it would have been easy to say so, or had it wished to include municipal offices within the ban that term could have been used. The office in question is a purely municipal one: * * *"

With the authorities thus stated, it is our opinion that a member of the House may not be given a State appointment or office at the hands of the Governor.

It is likewise our opinion that a member of the House may not be appointed to a State office or appointment by a department head or fiscal officer of the State.

Under the Act of May 15, 1874, P. L. 186, the General Assembly has declared that the office of District Attorney and of the Legislature are incompatible. A member of the Legislature cannot, therefore, be appointed or elected to the office of District Attorney. The same act declares that a member of the General Assembly shall not be eligible to election or appointment as a City Councilman. It is our opinion, therefore, that a member of the Legislature cannot be elected or appointed as a City Councilman to any incorporated City of this Commonwealth.

The fact that the office to be appointed is only a temporary appointment, which will later on necessitate an election, is immaterial.

In view of the case of Commonwealth ex rel Woodroff v. Joyce, that the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania distinguishes between State officers, whether elected or appointed, and those dealing with purely municipal officers within the County unit or any subdivision thereof, it is our opinion that a purely municipal office, as contrasted to that of a State office or appointment, is not incompatible with being a member of the House or Senate of the General Assembly. In the absence of any action of the General Assembly in declaring certain municipal offices to be incompatible with membership in the General Assembly, appointments or elections to municipal office of members of the House or Senate appear to be within the law.

A member of the Legislature may, therefore, continue in office, without resigning, in the event that he is appointed or elected to any County office, except District Attorney. A member of the Legislature may continue in office, without resigning, in the event that he is appointed or elected to any City office except City Councilman.

It is immaterial whether the salary or payments are made from independent funds and not the General Fund.

The conclusions reached in connection with this opinion, as hereinbefore set forth, were based upon the definition of an office as set out in Olmsted v. The Mayor of New York, 42 N. Y. Superior Court Reports, 481, as follows:

"* * * an office consists of a right to exercise a public function or employment, and to take the fees and emoluments belonging to it. It involves the idea of tenure, duration, fees, the emoluments and powers, as well as that of duty, and it implies an authority to exercise some portion of the sovereign power of the State either in making, administering or executing the laws. An officer is one who holds such an office. An employe is one who receives no certificate of appointment, takes no oath of office, has no term or tenure of office, discharges no duties and exercises no powers depending directly on the authority of law, but simply performs such duties as are required of him by the persons employing him, and whose responsibility is limited to them, and this, too, although the person so employing him is a public officer, and his employment is in and about a public work or business."

Therefore, where counsel is to be employed, and he will receive no certificate of appointment; will take no oath for the faithful performance of his duties; will have no term or tenure of office; will discharge no duties, and exercise no powers, depending upon authorities as defined by the statute, but will simply be the representative of an officer, bureau, board or commission connected with the State government, and responsible to such authority and to the court for a proper discharge of his professional duties. Such conditions do not constitute an officer, nor will his selection be an appointment within the meaning of the Constitution, as above set forth.

RE-STATEMENT OF CONCLUSIONS

(a) The holding of an appointment made by the Governor of the Commonwealth would be incompatible with membership in the General Assembly of our Commonwealth.

(b) The holding of an appointment, made by a department head or fiscal office of the State, would be incompatible with membership in the General Assembly of our Commonwealth.

(c) The fact that the appointment is only a temporary one, either at the hands of the Governor or a department head or a fiscal officer of the State, would be immaterial where a later election would be held for a fixed term of office.

(d) (1) A member of the General Assembly may continue in office in the event of an appointment to any County office, except that of District Attorney, which office the General Assembly has declared to be incompatible with that of membership in the Legislature.

(2) A member of the General Assembly may continue in office without resigning where appointed, or elected, to any City office except that of City Council, which office the General Assembly has declared to be incompatible with membership in the Legislature.

(e) The fact that salaries or payments for any such officers would be made from independent funds, rather than from the General Fund, is immaterial.

The foregoing opinion deals with the question of the compatibility of a member of the Bar serving an officer, bureau, board or commission, without receiving a commission, without being obliged to take an oath, without being named to a definite term of office in his professional capacity, while serving as a member of the General Assembly, where such member of the Bar neither discharges duties, nor exercises powers, depending upon sovereign authority as defined by statute, where the service makes such person responible only to a proper discharge of professional duties; the conclusion is that such conditions do not constitute an office, nor will such selection be an appointment within the meaning of the Constitution, or any Acts of the General Assembly interpreting such Constitutional provisions.

Very truly yours,

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE.
CHARLES J. MARGIOTTI,
Attorney General.
JOHN P. WANNER,
Deputy Attorney General.

The motion was agreed to.

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth, Mr. David Lawrence administered the oath of office to Mr. Harvey Huffman, the President Pro-Tempore.

COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE ON SENATE BILL NO. 955 DISAGREE

Mr. DiSILVESTRO. Mr. President, as a member of the Committee of Conference on Senate Bill No. 955, I desire to report that the members were unable to agree.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. DiSILVESTRO. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. DiSilvestro, will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. DiSILVESTRO. Some weeks ago, in an earnest effort to pave the way for Philadelphia to work out a plan for pure water I introduced Senate Bill No. 955. This bill, as drafted, would have permitted the government of my city to obtain by condemnation proceedings or otherwise upland sources of pure water and to carry out all other features of a water supply plan.

More than 2,000,000 people live in Philadelphia—practically one-fifth of the population of this Commonwealth. Their health and comfort depend upon pure, clean, wholesome water.

I want to make one very important fact absolutely clear. There was nothing in the bill as drawn and presented that would have enabled Philadelphia to go into any part of the State and take property without fair and reasonable process of law and adequate compensation to every owner of that property. In all cases local juries of view, in the counties where the land to be taken was located, would have passed on the valuations to be fixed for condemnation purposes and such valuations would have been subject to review of the courts of those same counties.

For weeks, however, this bill has been stalled and delayed by certain interests. One and only one reasonable and proper amendment was inserted in it. This was one to give the State Power and Resources Board a proper degree of control over the general water plan the city would adopt. Its approval to such a plan would have been required. There was no objection to that.

But in addition another amendment was inserted in the Senate which would have prevented the taking of any property or facilities already being used in 'public service.' On top of that further restrictions on the City's power to construct dams, conduits, pipe lines or anyhing else were imposed.

Apparently this was not enough. When the bill, already unsatisfactory, got to the House still more crippling amendments were inserted, aimed to prevent the City to lessen the huge burden of cost that a proper long range water system would involve by selling power, if any could become available. In other words the City could build dams, but couldn't make and dispose of power from them in any manner worth while.

Various reasons have been offered in behalf of these amendments. But I call attention to the fact that all of them serve the purposes of utilities which want to prevent competition or interference with their water or power monopolies, even if that does mean denial of pure water to 2,000,000 people.

The bill, in this emasculated form, is worthless. In fact it is far less satisfactory than older existing legislation on this question.

The result is that a reasonable and proper plan—as originally drawn—to enable Philadephia to get pure and decent water, has been killed. The needs of the largest City in this Commonwealth, from which the greatest amount of State taxation comes, have been frustrated for the benefit of a few selfish interests.

'It is a black mark against this Legislature and, I am forced to say, it has been done by members of my own party. Members of the Philadelphia delegations in the House and Senate have worked and fought for the best interests of the State as well as the City. To a man they have supported Governor Earle's measures. They have stood up as good Democrats and good servants of all the people. On many occasions in this session we supported measures demanded by the representatives of other districts because we recognized their needs and the justice of their claims.

It is poor recompense for us, as well as for Philadelphia, when through legislative juggling reactionaries of either party are able to deny what is a fair and honest right to Philadelphia. We worked hard for this bill and we have gotten a raw deal. We will not forget it.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. JASPAN. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Jaspan, will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. JASPAN. Mr. President, there is no question in my mind that Philadelphia needs pure water, and I do believe that the distinguished Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. DiSilvestro, with other democrats, agreed to go along in our plea for pure water, originally with our great Mayor of the City of Philadelphia, providing the joker which practically killed the bill was removed, but the question arose in my mind as to the Mayor's sincerity. What he has in mind I do not know, but the fact remains, when a few weeks ago I called to the attention of this honorable body the fact that an amendment was inserted in this bill, which I term a joker, he laughed at me and said: "Oh, I am not interested in this bill." Nevertheless, when there was need for pure water we as Senators and Representatives, and the people felt that they needed pure water, but what was in the mind of our great Mayor of the City of Philadelphia? Personally I doubt his sincerity and integrity in the matter. He never intended to go through with it. He has never been honest or decent in his intention. He parades certain ideas and certain thoughts only to cajole the people into the belief that he is honest and decent. We think he is a great masquerader. However, I am for pure water; every Senator and Representative of Philadelphia is for pure water, and so are our people. I am hoping that in the not distant future we will have the pure water that our friends want. I thank you.

REPORT OF THE CONFERENCE COMMITTEE ON SENATE BILL NO. 1069

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I desire to make a report of the Conference Committee on Senate Bill No. 1069. I read in that report that the Committee did not agree on Senate Bill No. 1069, because this bill had passed the House to create a Commission to investigate the mining conditions in the anthracite field, but we are hoping that at the next session we may have a proper report and that this bill may be enacted into a law.

Mr. President, while I am on my feet, being a junior member in the Chamber, and being Chairman of the Committee on Mines and Mining, I wish to thank the members of my committee, both Democrats and Republicans, and especially the senior members, Mr. Gelder, Mr. Howell, and Mr. Deitrick, along with all the Democratic members who so courteously helped me in my work. I had a hard committee to control, but I must say that they worked with me hand in hand, and they were very decent at all times. At no time in my committee was there any ill-feeling among the members, and I owe them a great deal of gratitude, and I trust that even though they be Republicans, that they and myself will come back here again, as I hope that I will have the pleasure of again working hand in hand with Senators of this type.

The PRESIDENT. The Senator from Cambria, Mr. Haluska, presents a report of the Committee of Conference on Senate Bill No. 1069, which report is a disagreement. The Chair understands that the difficulty in the committee was the provision in the Mundy resolution with respect to the appointment of a Commission on the part of the Senate and the House to study the code of mining laws and report to the 1939 session, which is the controlling factor in the situation at the moment.

HOUSE INSISTS UPON ITS AMENDMENTS TO SENATE BILL NO. 69

The Clerk of the House of Representatives being introduced presented communications from the House of Representatives informing the Senate that the House insists upon its amendments, non-concurred in by the Senate to Senate Bill No. 69, entitled:

An Act to protect the obligors or guarantors of bonds and mortgages and owners of property affected thereby and others indirectly liable for the payment thereof by prohibiting for certain periods the foreclosure sale of mortgaged property at less than its fair market value and prescribing the method of fixing the fair market value of said property.

and has appointed Messrs. Achterman, Ostroff and Longaker, as a Committee of Conference to confer with a similar committee of the Senate (already appointed), to consider the differences existing between the two Houses in relation to said bill.

HOUSE APPOINTS COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE ON SENATE BILL NO. 1089

He also informed the Senate that the House has appointed the following Committee of Conference on Senate Bill No. 1080, Messrs. Ominsky, Hering, and Royer.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. RUPP. Mr. President, going into the merits of this bill, this bill provides very simply, and is just another illustration of one of the departments of this Government, to make further regulations in regard to the retailing of oil and gasoline in the State of Pennsylvania. What they suggest is this: that if you want to establish an oil station, and put up a pump, you have got, first of all, to apply to the Department for permission to do that; you have got to fill out a form and after a lot of questions, and, for the privilege of answering those questions, you have got to pay the Department one dollar.

Let me tell you what they do now; in order to establish an oil station or erect a pump now in any city or borough, you first of all have got to get a permit from the city or borough to establish that pump—that is the first thing you have got to do now under our present regulations; and you have got to apply to a State Department—I think it is the Revenue Department, under the Fire Bureau or whatever name is given to it—for permission to establish the pumping station, and satisfy that department that you have complied with the fire department rules and so forth—you have got to do that now.

What this bill does is, it adds to that—for no reason at all that I can see—and have now to apply to another bureau and fill out some more forms, for which you have to pay another one dollar.

This bill affects the ordinary retailer—we have thousands of them down in my county, and the Senator from Fayette must have thousands in his county, too —

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I have two of them.

Mr. RUPP. Mr. President, two thousand. And I submit, Mr. President, this is a burden upon the ordinary retailer, who is now faced with so much red tape, as this is; he has, first of all, to satisfy his local authorities; then he has to satisfy the State authorities, now, before he puts up a single pump. I cannot see the reason for this new regulation—of which the ordinary citizen has to pay another $1.00 to another Department, and fill out some more forms and go through some more regulations.

The big oil companies are not interested in this bill, because they are not paying the dollar; it is the little fellow who is doing it, and it seems to me that in back of this there is something far more serious than a Department trying to control the little fellow. They are trying to control some few companies, in one section of this State, but that we do not know of. There is some reason behind this, outside of the mere provisions that are set forth in this bill, and I think that at this stage of the session, the legislature should not be called upon to pass its decision on a bill like this.

And, Mr. President, in line with that, I am going to offer the following amendment:

Amend page 2, line 25, by striking out the entire line and all of lines 26, 27 and 28, and all of page 3, and page 4, and page 5, ending with the word "permit" at the end of line 27.

Mr. MUNDY. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the Amendment?

Mr. LAW. Mr. President, I want to say, in connection with this bill on the amendments offered, that this proposed fee here, is suggested by the Independent Gasoline Dealers of Pennsylvania as a means of financing the investigation which has been authorized by this legislature. It will be used towards the payment of the $50,000 appropriation that we made.

These men desire to have an investigation, to find out the cause of the present difficult situation in the gasoline and oil industry of Pennsylvania. To make any of the suggestive changes would destroy this money necessary for this investigation, and would disturb the function of the State of Pennsylvania. I therefore ask this Senate to defeat the proposed amendments.

It was not agreed to.

REASONS FOR PARDONS GRANTED BY THE GOVERNOR FROM DECEMBER 1, 1936 TO JANUARY 5, 1937

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Governor's Office, Harrisburg, January 5, 1937.

To the Honorable, The House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

I have the honor to present herewith the reasons for pardons granted by me from December 1, 1936 to date.

GEORGE H. EARLE.

BOARD OF PARDONS

In re application of Alfred Kopchynski, 1887, No. 89, November Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the minimum sentence of Alfred Kopchynski, convicted of robbery with offensive weapon in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Washington County on February 14, 1930 be commuted from 10 years to 6 years 10 months expiring on December 14, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant was convicted of robbery, being armed with an offensive weapon in 1930. He was sentenced to serve a term of from 10 to 20 years in the Western State Penitentiary. He has served over six years of his minimum sentence and has an excellent institutional record. We believe he has been sufficiently punished and are satisfied he is not an habitual criminal.

The district attorney is not opposed to the granting of clemency.

The applicant has a wife and four children living in Cleveland, Ohio, who are in urgent need of his support. Our recommendation is contingent upon his returning to Cleveland.

The applicant will be on parole until 1950. Employment has been assured.

Respectfully submitted,

THOMAS KENNEDY,
Lieutenant Governor.
DAVID L. LAWRENCE,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.
CHARLES J. MARGIOTTI,
Attorney General.
THOMAS A. LOGUE,
Secretary of Internal Affairs.

The above recommendation is approved:

GEORGE H. EARLE,
Governor.

BOARD OF PARDONS

In re application of William Lincoln Swartley, No. 96, November Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the maximum sentence of William Lincoln Swartley, convicted of breaking and entering and felonious assault and battery in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Beaver County on January 3, 1927 be commuted from 5 years to 4 years 5 months expiring on December 19, and maximum of 5 years expiring on July 19, 1937.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

In 1927 the applicant was sentenced to serve two consecutive terms of imprisonment of from 2½ to 5 years in the Western State Penitentiary for breaking and entering and felonious assault and battery. He was paroled from that institution on February 3, 1932. On July 5, 1932, he plead guilty in the United States District Court in Kansas for the violation of the Dyer Act. Sentence was suspended and he was returned to the Western State Penitentiary on August 20, 1932. He has served over 4 years for his parole violation and we believe he has been sufficiently punished.

The trial judge states that nothing can be gained by further imprisonment and the present district attorney of Beaver County has no objections to a commutation of sentence.

The applicant's employment and conduct record in the institution has been excellent.

We believe it would be better to discharge this man now and keep him under supervision rather than to discharge him later without any supervision.

Respectfully submitted,

THOMAS KENNEDY,
Lieutenant Governor.
DAVID L. LAWRENCE,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.
CHARLES J. MARGIOTTI,
Attorney General.
THOMAS A. LOGUE,
Secretary of Internal Affairs.

The above recommendation is approved:

GEORGE H. EARLE,
Governor.

BOARD OF PARDONS

In re application of Kenny Florence, B-3241, No. 1398, November Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the minimum sentence of Kenny Florence, convicted of rape in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Somerset County on May 31, 1932 be commuted from 5 years to 4 years 6 months expiring on November 30, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant was convicted of rape in 1932. He was sentenced to serve a term of from 5 to 10 years in the Western State Penitentiary. He also was sentenced to the Allegheny County Work House for failure to support the bastard child. However, the child has since died and the clerk of courts has notified the authorities of the Western State Penitentiary that a parole would probably be granted upon a proper application.

The applicant was a native of Mexico and will return to that country if released.

The trial judge stated: "....we believe that he has been sufficiently punished and should be paroled for the balance of his sentence, especially in view of the fact that he will be deported from the country."

The district attorney has no objections to the applicant's release if he is deported.

The applicant will be on parole until 1942. Our recommendation is contingent upon his removal to and remaining in Mexico.

Respectfully submitted,

THOMAS KENNEDY,
Lieutenant Governor.
DAVID L. LAWRENCE,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.
CHARLES J. MARGIOTTI,
Attorney General.
THOMAS A. LOGUE,
Secretary of Internal Affairs.

The above recommendation is approved:

GEORGE H. EARLE,
Governor.

BOARD OF PARDONS

In re application of George W. Weldy, No. 1963, November Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that George W. Weldy, convicted of embezzlement by an officer of a corporation in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Philadelphia County, on July 17, 1933, be pardoned.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows.

The applicant plead guilty to embezzlement by an officer of a corporation in 1933. He was sentenced to serve a term of from 2 to 10 years in the Eastern State Penitentiary. This sentence was commuted to 1 year and 5 months in 1934 and he was released on parole on December 22, 1934.

The applicant was never involved in any other trouble and had an excellent institutional record.

Since his release on parole he has been employed by William M. Knatz, Inc., and is a cashier of this firm. This is a responsible position and he handles thousands of dollars each month.

The trial judge states: "Inasmuch as this seems to be the only crime that he ever committed I have no objection if you see fit to grant him a pardon and let him start over again with a clean slate."

By reason of the conviction the applicant is unable to procure a Real Estate Brokerage license. A pardon will enable him to secure a license and will in part remove the stigma of the crime from the applicant and his family and will be of material assistance to his advancement.

Respectfully submitted,

THOMAS KENNEDY,
Lieutenant Governor.
DAVID L. LAWRENCE,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.
CHARLES J. MARGIOTTI,
Attorney General.
THOMAS A. LOGUE,
Secretary of Internal Affairs.

The above recommendation is approved:

GEORGE H. EARLE,
Governor.

BOARD OF PARDONS

In re application of Guiseppe Fiorentino, No. 2128, November Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the minimum sentence of Guiseppe Fiorentino, convicted of robbery in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Philadelphia County on July 22, 1932 be commuted from 10 years to begin July 18, 1932 to 4 years 5 months expiring on December 18, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant and two others were implicated in the robbery of a store in Philadelphia. Eleven dollars was taken from the cash register. The three plead guilty. Two of them including the applicant were sentenced to serve terms of from 10 to 20 years in the Eastern State Penitentiary and the third was placed on six years probation.

At the time of the commission of the crime the applicant had no employment and his wife and two children were in destitute circumstances and at the present time are merely existing.

The applicant was never convicted of any other crime. He has an excellent institutional record.

The Board of Trustees of the Eastern State Penitentiary stated: "We are in sympathy with the applicant's reason, namely, a destitute family and give him credit for sending all of his earnings to his needy ones ....".

The district attorney's representative who appeared before us at the open session of the Board stated that he was opposed to the granting of clemency but relunctantly.

The trial judge did not oppose the granting of clemency.

In re application of Sigmund Walczykowski, No. 2377, November Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the minimum sentence of Sigmund Walczykowski, convicted of robbery in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and Quarter Sessions of Bucks County on December 2, 1930 be commuted from 9 years to 6 years expiring on December 2, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant plead guilty to robbery in 1930. He was sentenced to serve a term of from 9 to 18 years in the Eastern State Penitentiary.

The trial judge and trial district attorney have no objections to the granting of clemency.

The applicant's institutional record have been satisfactory.

The applicant has a wife and two children who are in urgent need of his support. Employment has been assured and a home has been guaranteed for him upon his release. We believe he has been sufficiently punished.

The applicant will be on parole until 1948.

Respectfully submitted,

THOMAS KENNEDY,

BOARD OF PARDONS

In re application of Zigmund Laurence Grsevinsky, B-3698, No. 2635, November Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the sentences of Zigmund Laurence Grsevinsky, convicted of felonious entry, larceny and violation of the Uniform Firearms Act in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Indiana County on May 22, 1933 be commuted from (1) 4 years to 3 years 7 months, expiring on December 22, 1936, and (2) from 1 year to 1 day, expiring on December 23, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

In 1933 the applicant, a few days after he had passed his eighteenth birthday, plead guilty to felonious entry and larceny and violation of the Uniform Firearms Act. He was sentenced to serve two consecutive terms of imprisonment of from 4 to 10 years and 1 to 3 years in the Western State Penitentiary.

The Board of Trustees of the Western State Penitentiary state: "If this inmate were eligible to apply for parole, we would probably conditionally recommend him for parole subject to proper sponsor (1) excellent institutional record (2) one previous imprisonment (Morganza)."

The applicant has served over 3½ years of his minimum sentence. We believe he has been sufficiently punished.

The applicant will be on parole until 1943. The parole officer who investigated the case stated that the home to which the applicant is to go is above the average type home and the family has an excellent reputation. Employment has been guaranteed.

Respectfully submitted,

THOMAS KENNEDY,
Lieutenant Governor.

The above recommendation is approved:

BOARD OF PARDONS

In re application of Michael Gallagher, C-8022, No. 3089, November Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the minimum sentence of Michael Gallagher, convicted of murder of the second degree, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Montgomery County on May 20, 1932, be commuted from 10 years to 4 years 7 months, expiring on December 20, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant was convicted of murder in the second degree in 1932. He was sentenced to serve a term of from 10 to 20 years in the Eastern State Penitentiary.

After careful consideration of the case we feel that the applicant was a victim of circumstances and was under the domination of his employer when the killing took place. His employer, the person who fired the fatal shots, was convicted of murder of the first degree and sentenced to death. This sentence was later commuted to life imprisonment. We are convinced that there was no conspiracy between the killer and the applicant. Two other persons convicted of being accomplices have been released.

The applicant had never been convicted of any other crime. He has served over 4½ years of his minimum sentence.

The Board of Trustees of the Eastern State Penitentiary state: "If applicant were applying for parole he would receive favorable consideration for the following reasons: 1. No known previous criminal record. 2. It is our thought that the applicant was the least culpable of the participants in the crime. 3. He has an excellent insitutional record. His conduct and attitude have earned for him favorable consideration. 4. He is employed in the Institution Library where he is a willing and capable worker. 5. Applicant's general demeanor, associations and habits lead us to believe his participation in the crime was more accidental than intentional."

We believe the applicant has been sufficiently punished and are satisfied he is not an habitual criminal.

The applicant will be on parole until 1952. Employment has been assured.

Respectfully submitted,

THOMAS KENNEDY,
Lieutenant Governor.
DAVID L. LAWRENCE,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.
CHARLES J. MARGIOTTI,
Attorney General.
THOMAS A. LOGUE,

The above recommendation is approved:

BOARD OF PARDONS

In re application of Thomas Fritz, C-3568, No. 3105, November Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the sentences of Thomas Fritz, convicted of incestuous rape, adultry and sodomy in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and Quarter Sessions of Lebanon County on September 27, 1926, be commuted from (1) Bill No. 3A, a maximum of 10 years to 2 months, expiring on November 27, 1936, (2) Bill No. 4, a mixmum of 10 years to 1 day, expiring on November 28, 1936, (3) Bill No. 5, a minimum of 5 years to 1 day, expiring on November 29, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant was convicted of incestuous rape, adultry and sodomy in 1926. He was sentenced to serve a term of from 20 to 40 years in the Eastern State Penitentiary. He was never involved in any other trouble.

The Board of Trustees of the Eastern State Penitentiary state: "....We are inclined to feel that the sentence imposed was rather severe in this case and that a minimum of ten (10) years would have been sufficient punishment. He has served over ten (10) years of his minimum sentence. Applicant has no known criminal record; he is 63 years of age and his institutional record and attitude have been good....."

Two of the applicant's sons appeared before us at the open session and stated that they were satisfied that their father was not guilty. They offered to provide him with a home for the rest of his life. They are anxious to obtain his release.

We believe the applicant has been sufficiently punished and are satisfied he is not a habitual criminal.

The applicant will be on parole until 1946.

Respectfully submitted,

THOMAS KENNEDY,
Lieutenant Governor.
DAVID L. LAWRENCE,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.
CHARLES J. MARGIOTTI,
Attorney General.
THOMAS A. LOGUE,

The above recommendation is approved:

BOARD OF PARDONS

In re application of Jesse Adams, No. 3106, November Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the maximum sentence of Jesse Adams, convicted of voluntary manslaughter, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Philadelphia County, on December 19, 1930, be commuted from 8 years to 5 years 4 months expiring on December 12, 1936, and maximum of 8 years expiring August 12, 1939.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant was sentenced to serve a term of imprisonment in 1930 of from 4 to 8 years in the Eastern State Penitentiary. In 1934 he was released on parole and went to Detroit, Michigan. He tried to secure employment but was refused because he was not a resident of Detroit. He went to the Election Commission and applied for a registration card and in filling it out stated that he had been in Detroit a year, only to secure work. For this he was convicted of perjury and sentenced to the Detroit House of Correction for a period of 6 months. He was released and returned to the Eastern State Penitentiary to serve the unexpired portion of his maximum sentence. He has now served almost a year and a third for his parole violation.

The authorities of the Eastern State Penitentiary referred this case to the Pennsylvania Prison Society and the Honorable Francis Fisher Kane presented the application on behalf of this Society.

We believe the applicant has been more than sufficiently punished for a technical commission of perjury.

The Board of Trustees of the Eastern State Penitentiary recommend this case for consideration. The applicant will be on parole until 1939.

Respectfully submitted,

THOMAS KENNEDY,
Lieutenant Governor.
DAVID L. LAWRENCE,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.
CHARLES J. MARGIOTTI,
Attorney General.
THOMAS A. LOGUE,

The above recommendation is approved:

In re application of Lester Newhall, No. 3111, November Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that Lester Newhall, convicted of murder of the second degree in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Philadelphia County, on November 15, 1921, be pardoned.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant plead guilty to murder of the second degree in 1921. He was sentenced to serve a term of from 19 to 20 years in the Eastern State Penitentiary. On November 15, 1931 he was released on parole. For the past three and one-half years the applicant has been employed by the Philco Radio Company and at the present time is a supervisor in the Department of Final Testing and has 29 employees under his direct supervision.

Mr. George Gotwols, the Personnel Manager of the Philadelphia Storage Battery Company or Philco Company, appeared before us at the open session and stated that his company directed him to appear in behalf of the applicant and had paid all his expenses as it was the company's desire to do everything possible to secure a pardon for the applicant.

The district attorney's representative who appeared before us at the open session did not oppose the granting of a pardon.

Judge McDevitt stated that the applicant was a faithful servant of his employer.

Applicant enjoys an excellent reputation and his conduct has been exemplary since his release.

We feel that this is a most worthy case. A pardon will in part remove the stigma of the crime and will be of material assistance to the applicant's advancement and further rehabilitation.

BOARD OF PARDONS

In re application of Walter J. Lewis, No. 3116, November Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the minimum sentence of Walter J. Lewis, convicted of breaking and entering and larceny in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Pike County on May 19, 1936, be commut d from 1½ years to 7 months, expiring on December 19, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows

The applicant plead guilty to breaking and entering and larceny in 1936. He was sentenced to serve a term of from 1½ to 3 years in the Eastern State Penitentiary.

The trial judge stated in a letter to the Honorable Francis Fisher Kane who represented the applicant: "....Following my discussion with you and a consideration of the reports which you have concerning Walter Lewis, together with the opportunity that he now has for regular employment, I have no hesitation in saying, and that particularly based upon the reports touching this man's character up to the time of the commission of this offense, I do not feel that his further incarceration would be necessary for the protection of society, and further feel that the punishment he has undergone up to this time is probably sufficient...."

The applicant was never involved in any other trouble. His institutional record has been good and previous to his conviction enjoyed a good reputation.

The district attorney stated: "....If the facts under paragraphs 17 and 18 of the application are correct, I consider the applicant deserving of clemency. Several substantial citizens of this County have stated to me that they were surprised when Walter J. Lewis was apprehended, as he had a good reputation in the community, and they were of the opinion that he had fallen into bad company."

The applicant has served over one-third of his minimum sentence. We believe he has been sufficiently punished and are satisfied he is not an habitual criminal.

The applicant will be on parole until 1939. Employment has been assured in New Jersey.

In re application of Lewis Rotell, No. 4066, November Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pe sylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the minimum sentence of Lewis Rotell, convicted of murder of the second degree, in the Court of Quarter Sessions o. Lackawanna County on May 25, 1934, be commuted from 5 years to 2 years 6 months, expiring on November 25, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

In 1934, the applicant was a watchman on a CWA project in Carbondale. Without the knowledge or permis- on of his superiors he carried a revolver. One evening two young boys were making foot prints in freshly laid concrete. The applicant tried to apprehend them and when they ran away he fired his gun, as he states, for the purpose of scaring them and compelling them to halt. However, one of the boys was fatally injured. The applicant plead guilty to murder of the second degree. He was sentenced to serve a term of from 5 to 10 years in the Eastern State Penitentiary.

The district attorney states: "....He (the applicant) is a man of high character and comes from one of the best families in Northeastern Pennsylvania. He has never been in trouble previously, and had the reputation of being an honest law-abiding citizen who labored long and hard t support his family. He is a married man with a minor child.... In view of all the facts, the undersigned has no objection to the Board seriously considering this application."

The Board of Trustees of the Eastern State Penitentiary states: ".... If no objections are offered by the convicting authorities, this Board is inclined to give favorable consideration in this case."

T applicant has served over 2½ years of his minimum sentence. We believe he has been sufficiently punished and are satisfied he is not an habitual criminal.

The applicant will be on parole until 1944. Employment has been assured and an excellent home has beer provided.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the minimum s ntence of Theodore E. Pottorf, convicted of breaking and entering, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Clearfield County on December 9, 1935, be commuted from 2 years to 1 year expiring on December 9, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as f lows:

The applicant plead guilty to breaking and entering in 1935. He was sentenced to serve a term of from 2 to 4 years in the Western State Penitentiary. He was never involved in any other trouble and had a good reputation. His institutional record is excellent.

The trial judge says that he has no objection if the Board of Trustees of the Penitentiary feel that release would be proper.

The Board of Trustees reports: "If this inmate were eligible to apply for parole, we would probably recomemnd him for parole (1) first imprisonment (2) excellent institutional record."

The district attorney had no objection to the granting of clemency.

We have a number of letters on file from reputable citizens of the community in which the applicant resided recommending clemency.

In re application of Wayne H. Sears, No. 4072, November Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that Wayne H. Sears, convicted of embezzlement by employee of corporation, conspiracy, fradulent conversion, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Philadelphia County, on February 26, 1936, be pardoned.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

In February of this year the applicant was an employee of the Poor Board of Bristol Township and had been employed for a period of 4 or 5 years as an investigator. One of the directors and the applicant split fees of $8.00 for all cases where patients were transferred to the Norristown State Hospital. In some cases relatives of patients delivered the patients to the hospital and no fee should have been collected or if collected the fee should have been returned to the Poor Board. The Director ordered him to collect these fees and split with him. This was done in several cases and approximately $75.00 or $80.00 was embezzled. The applicant made restitution for his share.

However, on a plea of nolle contendere he was adjudged guilty of embezzlement by employee of corporation, conspiracy, and fraudulent conversion. He was sentenced to serve a term of not less than 60 days or more than 3 years in the Philadelphia County Prison. At the expiration of 60 days he was released on parole.

The applicant was never involved in any other trouble and had an excellent reputation. At the present time he is in the sign painting business, supporting his wife and son.

A letter dated November 11, 1936, addressed to us and signed by the President, Secretary, Treasurer, Vice-President and Solicitor of the Board of Poor Directors reads as follows: "We are informed that Mr. Wayne H. Sears made application to your Board for a pardon.

The acts which Mr. Sears committed were done under threats of losing his position made by one of the Guardians who was also convicted. Mr. Sears was the sole support of his family and the circumstances surrounding his acts were such as to warrant leniency towards him.

We have no objection to your favorable action on his petition for pardon. We feel that a most favorable consideration should be given to his request."

The applicant appeared before us and made a favorable impression.

The district attorney's representative who appeared before us had no objections to the granting of a pardon. The trial judge recommended the granting of a pardon. A pardon will in part remove the stigma of the crime.

The above application having been heard upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that Wayne H. Sears, convicted of embezzlement by employee of corporation, conspiracy, fraudulent conversion, in the court of Quarter Sessions of Philadelphia County, on February 26, 1936, be pardoned.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

THOMAS KENNEDY,

DAVID L. LAWRENCE,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.
CHARLES J. MARGIOTTI,

The applicant, a colored woman, was convicted of murder of the second degree in 1928. She was sentenced to serve a term of from 10 to 20 years in the Eastern State Penitentiary. She was transferred immediately to the Philadelphia County Prison where she has been confined.

The applicant has an excellent record at that institution. She was never involved in any other serious trouble. She has served over four-fifths of her minimum sentence.

We believe the applicant has been sufficiently punished and are satisfied that she is not a habitual criminal. Her brother appeared before us at the open session and stated that he would give her a home.

In re application of James Albaugh, B-2557, No. 50A, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the sentence of imprisonment on Bill No. 2 of James Albaugh, convicted of larceny, Bills No. 1, No. 2, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Forest County, on March 16, 1931, be commuted from Bill No. 2, a minimum of 1½ years to 10 months, expiring on January 16, 1937.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant is one many prisoners whose release on parole has been effected by the opinion of the Supreme Court in the case of Commonwealth of Pennsylvania ex rel. Thomas Lynch v. Stanley P. Ashe, Warden of the Western State Penitentiary, 320 Pa. 341. In this opinion it was held that unless a prisoner, who was serving sentences imposed to run consecutively, was recommended and approved for parole at the expiration of the first minimum sentence, he would be serving the maximum of that sentence, and if no recommendation for parole was made at the expiration of the second and subsequent minimum of sentences imposed to run consecutively, the prisoner would be serving the maximum of the second and subsequent sentences. In other words, a prisoner serving an indeterminate sentence is not automatically paroled at the expiration of the minimum term but is merely eligible for parole at that time, and if not favorably considered by the Prison Board at any time thereafter, the prisoner is required to serve the full sentence.

It was the custom for a long period of time for the officials of both the Eastern and Western State Penitentiaries to lump consecutive sentences and the Boards of Trustees would only make recommendations for release on parole at the expiration of the period of time equal to the total of the minimum sentences.

Since the Supreme Court held this procedure improper, the applicant and others, whose cases were not considered for parole at the expiration of their minimum sentences, through no fault of their own, will have to serve a much longer period of time than contemplated by the sentencing judge and the prison officials.

The failure of the Board of Trustees to make the necessary recommendations for parole at the expiration of the minimum sentences was an honest mistake, as most, if not all, sentencing judges shared the same view as the prison officials in deeming it to be unnecessary to make recommendations for parole at the expiration of the minimum of every consecutive sentence. Sentencing judges throughout the state have uniformly believed and taken into consideration in passing sentences the Prison Board practice that consecutive sentences would be lumped making a total minimum and a total maximum.

We believe that a great injustice would be done and that it would be most unfair to keep the applicant incarcerated for a longer period of time than recommended by the Board of Trustees of the institution in which the applicant is confined.

THOMAS KENNEDY,

In re application of William Joseph Cowden, C-5793, No. 539, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the minimum sentence of William Joseph Cowden, convicted attempt burglary, entering with intent to steal and larceny, Bills No. 698, No. 701, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and Quarter Sessions of Philadelphia County, on December 13, 1929, be commuted from Bill No. 701, a minimum of 5 years to 2 years expiring on December 13, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

Applicant was convicted of entering with intent to steal and larceny in 1929. He was sentenced to serve a term of 10 to 20 years in the Eastern State Penitentiary. At the time of commission of the offense he was barely 17 years of age.

The district attorney's representative who appeared before us at the open session stated that he was not opposed to clemency.

The Board of Trustees of the Eastern State Penitentiary stated: "We feel that the applicant is really serious in his efforts to become a law abiding citizen and, therefore, offer no objections to his release."

Applicant will be on parole until 1949. The Honorable Francis Fisher Kane, who presented the application, has secured employment for the applicant and has arranged for a satisfactory home.

Florey, convicted of breaking and escaping penitentiary, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Centre County, on September 12, 1927, be commuted from 5 years to begin May 15, 1936, to 7 months expiring on December 15, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant plead guilty to robbery in 1928. He was sentenced to serve a term from five to ten years in the Western State Penitentiary. He was transferred to Rockview Farm Prison from which place he escaped in 1927. He was apprehended one day later and was sentenced for the escape to serve a term from five to ten years to begin at the expiration of the maximum of the original sentence. The applicant has been imprisoned for over ten years. The Board of Trustees states that they have no objection to his release, and that he has an excellent institutional record. In re application of Louis Mancuso, C-6658, No. 947, December Session, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant, on his twentieth birthday, was sentenced to serve a term of 10 to 20 years in the Eastern State Penitentiary for robbery. Two accomplices who received like sentences had their sentences commuted on our recommendation last year.

Applicant was never involved in any other trouble and has an excellent reputation. His institutional record is satisfactory. He has served over 6 years of his sentence. We believe he has been sufficiently punished and are satisfied he is not an habitual criminal.

Applicant will be on parole until 1950. Employment has been assured.

Respectfully submitted,

THOMAS KENNEDY,
Lieutenant Governor.
DAVID L. LAWRENCE,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.
CHARLES J. MARGIOTTI,
Attorney General.
THOMAS A. LOGUE,

The above recommendation is approved:

BOARD OF PARDONS

In re application of Joseph Palencak, No. 1132, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that Joseph Palencak, convicted of statutory rape in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Allegheny County, on March 9, 1931, be pardoned.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant was convicted of statutory rape in 1931. He was sentenced to serve a term of from four to fifteen years in the Western State Penitentiary. In 1933 Governor Pinchot, on the recommendation of the then Board of Pardons, granted commutation. The reasons advanced to Governor Pinchot, and which we find to be correct, were that after-discovered evidence proved that the girl involved in the case was a notorious prostitute. This is confirmed by the report of the officials of the Western State Penitentiary, who say that it was a rape case only in a technical sense. The applicant had never been involved in any kind of trouble. Since his release he has conducted himself in an exemplary manner.

The trial judge has no objection to the granting of a pardon. The applicant has been steadily employed by the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Company, Braddock, Pennsylvania, since his release, and enjoys an excellent reputation.

A pardon will in part remove the stigma of the crime, and will be of material assistance to his advancement.

Respectfully submitted,

THOMAS KENNEDY,
Lieutenant Governor.
DAVID L. LAWRENCE,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.
CHARLES J. MARGIOTTI,
Attorney General.
THOMAS A. LOGUE,
Secretary of Internal Affairs.

The above recommendation is approved:

GEORGE H. EARLE,
Governor.

BOARD OF PARDONS

In re application of Angelo Pugliese, C-5088, No. 1163, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the maximum sentence of Angelo Pugliese, convicted of robbery in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Luzerne County on March 25, 1922, be commuted from ten years to seven years eleven months expiring on December 14, 1936, and a maximum of ten years, expiring on January 4, 1939.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant was convicted of robbery in 1929. He was sentenced to serve a term of three to six years in the Eastern State Penitentiary. However, this sentence was later increased to a term of eight to ten years. As he was being transferred to the Eastern State Penitentiary by the Sheriff of Luzerne County he escaped. He was recaptured in 1929, and on the escape charge a sentence of two years to begin at the expiration of the sentence for robbery was imposed. However, this sentence also was changed to make it run from the time of his commitment.

The applicant has never been convicted of any other crime and has been incarcerated for approximately eight years. We believe he has been sufficiently punished, and are satisfied that he is not an habitual criminal.

The district attorney's representative, who appeared before us at the open session recommended clemency.

The applicant has an excellent institutional record. He will be on parole until 1939.

Employment has been assured in New York, and our recommendation is contingent upon his removal to and remaining in that state.

Respectfully submitted,

THOMAS KENNEDY,
Lieutenant Governor.
DAVID L. LAWRENCE,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.
CHARLES J. MARGIOTTI,
Attorney General.
THOMAS A. LOGUE,
Secretary of Internal Affairs.

The above recommendation is approved:

GEORGE H. EARLE,

BOARD OF PARDONS

In re application of John Eglar, B-2341, No. 1456, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the minimum sentence of John Eglar, convicted of robbery in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Allegheny County on November 24, 1930, be commuted from ten years to six years one month expiring on December 24, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant was convicted of robbery in 1930. He was sentenced to serve a term from ten to twenty years in the Western State Penitentiary. The Board of Trustees of the Penitentiary states: "If this inmate were eligible to apply for parole, we would probably recommend him for parole (1) first conviction (2) excellent institutional record." The district attorney's representative who appeared at the Open Session stated he was not opposed to the granting of clemency.

We believe that the applicant has been sufficiently punished and are satisfied he is not an habitual criminal.

The applicant will be on parole until 1950. A home has been arranged for him in Pittsburgh.

Respectfully submitted,

THOMAS KENNEDY,
Lieutenant Governor.
DAVID L. LAWRENCE,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.

BOARD OF PARDONS

In re application of Anthony Puntel, C-4728, No. 1469, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the maximum sentence of Anthony Puntel, convicted of entering in night without breaking to commit a felony, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Philadelphia County on July 26, 1928, be commuted from ten years to a minimum of six years expiring on December 3, 1936, and a maximum term of ten years, expiring on December 3, 1940.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

In 1928 the applicant was sentenced to serve from two to ten years in the Eastern State Penitentiary for breaking and entering and burglary. He was released on parole in 1930.

In 1932 he was convicted of assault and battery and was sentenced to serve a term of nine months in the Philadelphia County Prison. Upon his release he was returned to the Eastern State Penitentiary because of his parole violation.

The Board of Trustees of the Eastern State Penitentiary states "at the present time he has served four years since his return. Although no prediction can be made as to his future behavior, it is our thought that since he served time in the County Jail for this offense, that he has been sufficiently punished for his parole violation."

The district attorney's representative who appeared before us at the open session said that he was not opposed to the granting of clemency.

We feel that the applicant has been sufficiently punished for his parole violation.

Applicant will be on parole until 1940. Employment has been assured.

Respectfully submitted,

THOMAS KENNEDY,
Lieutenant Governor.
DAVID L. LAWRENCE,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.
CHARLES J. MARGIOTTI,
Attorney General.
THOMAS A. LOGUE,

BOARD OF PARDONS

In re application of Herbert C. Asper, C-7442, No. 1723, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the minimum sentences of Herbert C. Asper, convicted of rape, concealing the death of a bastard child (2), in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Perry County on October 17, 1931 be commuted from (1) Bill No. 57, a minimum of seven one-half years, (2) Bill No. 58, a minimum of one one-half years to (1) five years two months, (2) one day expiring on (1) December 17, 1936, (2) December 18, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

Applicant plead guilty to rape and the concealing of the death of a bastard child in 1931. He was sentenced to serve two consecutive terms of imprisonment of from seven one-half to fifteen years and one one-half to three years in the Eastern State Penitentiary. He was transferred to the Perry County Prison, and is steadily employed on the outside of the prison walls.

The trial judge states that he believes the applicant has been sufficiently punished. The district attorney tells us that this is a meritorious application, and advises commutation of sentence.

The report of the parole agent indicates that there is some doubt as to the applicant's guilt. We believe the applicant has been sufficiently punished and are satisfied he is not an habitual criminal.

Applicant will be on parole until 1946. Employment has been assured.

The above recommendation is approved:

In re application of Goldie Brown, C-23-10, No. 1781, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the maximum sentence of Goldie Brown, convicted of robbery in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Philadelphia County on January 18, 1924, be commuted from maximum of fourteen years to a minimum of twelve years two months, expiring on December 23, 1936, and a maximum term of fourteen years, expiring on October 23, 1938.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant plead guilty to robbery in 1924. He was sentenced to serve a term of from seven to fourteen years in the Eastern State Penitentiary. He was released on parole in 1931. In the same year he received a suspended sentence for assault and battery and was returned to the Eastern State Penitentiary for the violation of his parole. He has served over twelve years of his sentence. He was never convicted of any other serious crime. The district attorney's representative, who appeared before us at the open session, was not opposed to the granting of clemency. The trial judge said that he felt that the applicant had been sufficiently punished.

Applicant will be on parole until 1938. Employment has been assured.

In re application of John J. Murawski, B-1669, No. 2062, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the (1) Bill No. 50, maximum, (2) Bill No. 51, maximum, (3) Bill No. 52, minimum, sentence of John J. Murawski, convicted of robbery (3), in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Allegheny County on October 31, 1929 be commuted from (1) maximum of ten years, (2) maximum of ten years, (3) minimum of five years, to (1) seven years one month, (2) one day, (3) one day, expiring on (1) November 30, 1936, (2) December 1, 1936, (3) December 2, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant plead guilty to serve charges of robbery in 1929. He was sentenced to serve three consecutive terms of imprisonment of from five to ten years. The Board of Trustees of the Penitentiary states: "If this inmate were eligible to apply for parole, we would probably recommend him for parole (1) very good institutional record (2) outlook for successful parole has improved since death of father."

The district attorney's representative who appeared before us at the open session stated he was not opposed to the granting of clemency. A sentence of an accomplice was commuted in 1934. The applicant has served over seven years of his sentence. We believe he has been sufficiently punished and are satisfied that he is not an habitual criminal.

The applicant will be on parole until 1946. Employment has been assured.

In re application of Joseph Ammon, C-4392, No. 2072, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the minimum sentence of Joseph Ammon, convicted of murder of the second degree, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and Quarter Sessions of Philadelphia County, on February 15, 1928, be commuted from 10 years to 8 years 10 months expiring on December 15, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant plead guilty to murder of the second degree. He was sentenced to serve a term of ten to twenty years in the Eastern State Penitentiary. He was never involved in any other trouble and the Board of Trustees of the Eastern State Penitentiary states:

"Applicant is employed in a position of trust and has utilized every opportunity to give the maximum of his services. He has been honest and conscientious in all his activities since sentenced to this Institution. He is now sixty-five years of age and we recommend that he be granted clemency and given an opportunity to return to society while he is in good health and able to support himself."

The trial judge states that the applicant will be a safe parole risk.

Applicant will be on parole until 1948. An excellent home has been provided by Mr. Edward M. Fair, of Philadelphia who has been employed by the Philadelphia Fire Department for the past thirty-five years. Employment has been assured.

BOARD OF PARDONS

In re application of Floyd Leroy Kirk, No. 2097, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the maximum and minimum sentences of Floyd Leroy Kirk, convicted of robbery, receiving stolen goods (2), in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Allegheny County, on June 21, 1933 be commuted from (1) Bill No. 6, maximum of 5 years, to 3 years 6 months expiring on December 21, 1936; (2) Bill No. 7, minimum of 2½ years to 1 day expiring on December 22, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows.

The applicant plead guilty to two charges of robbery and receiving stolen goods in 1933. He was sentenced to serve two consecutive terms of two and one-half to five years in the Western State Penitentiary. The Board of Trustees of the Western State Penitentiary states: "If this inmate were eligible to apply for parole, we would probably remommend him for parole (1) excellent institutional record (2) holds trustworthy position (3) presents a good prospect for rehabilitation (4) a very cooperative inmate."

An accomplice who received a similar sentence on the same charges had his sentence commuted on our recommendation in March of this year. The applicant has served over three and one-half years of his minimum sentence. The district attorney's representative appeared before us at the open session and stated he was not opposed as the applicant appeared to be a good parole risk.

The applicant will be on parole until 1941. Employment has been assured.

In re application of Aaron Campbell, No. 2258, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the maximum and minimum sentence of Aaron Campbell, convicted of robbery, being armed with an offensive weapon, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Philadelphia County, on March 16, 1931, be commuted from 9 years to 5 years 9 months expiring on December 16, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant when only 15 years of age, and in the company of older boys, was implicated in a few robberies. He plead guilty and was sentenced to serve a term of not less than 9 years nor more than 20 years in the Eastern State Penitentiary. He was never convicted of any other crime, and has served over 5½ years of his minimum sentence. Because of his youth and his satisfactory institutional record, we believe he has been sufficiently punished.

The district attorney's representative, who appeared before us at the open session, said that while he opposed the application as a matter of policy, he felt that the applicant had been severely punished

The applicant's sister appeared before us and stated that she was engaged in social work and would provide a home for the applicant. Applicant will be on parole until 1951.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant was convicted of murder of the second degree. He was sentenced to serve a term from 7 to 20 years in the Western State Penitentiary. The Board of Trustees states: "If this inmate were eligible to apply for parole, we would probably recommend him for parole (1) first conviction (2) good institutional record." The trial judge has no objection to the granting of clemency.

The district attorney's representative appeared before us and stated he was not opposed to the granting of clemency. The applicant was never involved in any other trouble and has served over six and one-half years of his minimum sentence.

There were certain elements of self-defense in this case. We believe he was sufficiently punished and that he is not a habitual criminal.

The applicant will be on parole until 1951. Employment has been assured. His wife and four children are in urgent need of his support.

BOARD OF PARDONS

In re application of Jesse Raymond Hillberry, B-2368, No. 2483, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the sentences of Jesse Raymond Hillberry, convicted of felonious assault and battery (2), robbery (3), larceny of auto (2), in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and Quarter Sessions of Allegheny County on December 10, 1930, be commuted from (1) Bill No. 90, a max. of 7 years to 6 years, expiring December 10, 1936; (2) Bill No. 85, a max. of 7 years to 1 day, expiring December 11, 1936; (3) Bill No. 21, a max. of 20 years to 1 day, expiring December 12, 1936; (4) Bill No. 23, a max. of 20 years to 1 day, expiring December 13, 1936; (5) Bill No. 17, a max. of 20 years to 1 day, expiring December 14, 1936; (6) Bill No. 88, a max. of 10 years to 1 day, expiring December 15, 1936; (7) Bill No. 83, a min. of 5 years to 1 day, expiring December 16, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant plead guilty to a number of charges of robbery, felonious assault and battery, and larceny of an automobile. He was sentenced to serve a number of consecutive terms of imprisonment totaling forty-seven to ninety-four years. The Board of Trustees of the Western State Penitentiary states: "If this inmate were eligible to apply for parole, we would probably recommend him for parole (1) first conviction, (2) excellent institutional record, (3) similar sentence of accomplice Albert E. Kipp, was commuted to five to ten years, and he was released on parole on December 10, 1935."

The district attorney's representative, who appeared before us at the open session states there was merit in the application. The Family Society of Allegheny County is very much interested in the applicant, as he has a wife and four minor children who are in urgent need of his support. The trial judge is favorable to the granting of clemency. The applicant has been incarcerated for over six years. We believe he has been sufficiently punished and are satisfied he is not an habitual criminal. Employment and a home have been provided for him in West Virginia and our recommendation is contingent upon his removal to and remaining in that state. The applicant will be on parole until 1946.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant plead guilty to breaking and entering, larceny and receiving stolen goods in 1933. He was sentenced to serve a term of five to ten years in the Eastern State Penitentiary.

The district attorney's representative who appeared before us at the open session recommended clemency.

In re application of Henry Altmyer, B-3015, No. 2914, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the maximum and minimum sentence of Henry Altmyer, convicted of robbery, receiving stolen goods (2), Bills No. 102, No. 103, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Allegheny County on December 18, 1931, be commuted from (1) Bill No. 102, maximum of fifteen years; (2) Bill No. 103, minimum of five years, to (1) five years, (2) one day, expiring on (1) December 18, 1936, (2) December 19, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant plead guilty to robbery and receiving stolen goods in 1931. He was sentenced to serve two consecutive terms of imprisonment of from five to fifteen years. Two accomplices had their sentences commuted, one early in 1935 and the other in September of this year. The applicant was not any more culpable than the accomplices. He has served the minimum of one sentence. He was never involved in any other trouble. The Board of Trustees of the Western State Penitentiary states: "If this inmate were eligible to apply for parole, we would probably recommend him for parole (1) first conviction (2) excellent institutional record."

The trial judge interposed no objection and the district attorney's representative, who appeared before us at the open session, said that his office was not opposed to the granting of clemency.

We believe that the applicant has been sufficiently punished and are satisfied he is not a habitual criminal.

In re application of Curtis Tracey, No. 2957, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the maximum and minimum sentence of Curtis Tracey, convicted of murder of the second degree, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and Quarter Sessions of Lancaster County, on September 15, 1931, be commuted from six one-half years to five years three months, expiring on December 15, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

In 1931 the applicant was convicted of murder of the second degree. He was sentenced to serve a term of six one-half to fifteen years in the Eastern State Penitentiary. The homicide was the result of heavy drinking on the part of the applicant and others. The fatal shot was fired through a door, and there was no intent to do bodily harm. The applicant has an excellent institutional record and has made an honest effort to fit himself for the outside world.

He was never involved in any other serious trouble and has served over five years of his minimum sentence. We believe he has been sufficiently punished and are satisfied he is not an habitual criminal.

The district attorney of Lancaster County appeared before us and stated he had no objections to a commutation of sentence. The trial judge is not opposed to the granting of clemency.

The applicant enjoys a good reputation and a good home has been provided for him. Employment has been assured. Applicant will be on parole until 1946.

BOARD OF PARDONS

In re application of James O'Dowd, Jr., No. 2006, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the minimum sentence of James O'Dowd, Jr., convicted of rape, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Lackawanna County on December 14, 1935, be commuted from one one-half years to one year, expiring on December 14, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant was convicted of rape in 1935. He was sentenced to serve a term of one one-half to three years in the Eastern State Penitentiary. The facts of the case are as follows:

The prosecutrix was a former vaudeville actress, approximately 30 years of age. She alleged that the applicant, who had a wooden leg and two fingers in a splint, raped her in a Ford coupe a short distance from her home.

We seriously doubt that any rape was committed. The district attorney states: "In view of all the circumstances in the case, coupled with the good reputation and past good record of the applicant, and further, in view of the fact that he is the binding tie that has kept his family together for the past number of years and at most times been their main support, I heartily recommend to the Board that this application be granted."

We believe the applicant has been sufficiently punished and are satisfied he is not an habitual criminal.

Applicant will be on parole until 1938 and employment has been assured.

Respectfully submitted,

THOMAS KENNEDY,
Lieutenant Governor.

DAVID L. LAWRENCE,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.

CHARLES J. MARGIOTTI,

BOARD OF PARDONS

In re application of Ralph Vizzo, No. 3066, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that Ralph Vizzo, convicted of murder of the second degree in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Clearfield County, on November 9, 1914 be pardoned.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant was convicted of murder of the second degree in 1914. He was sentenced to serve a term of from five to eight years in the Western State Penitentiary. He was released on parole on November 9, 1919, and was finally discharged from parole on November 9, 1922. He was never convicted of any other crime and has an excellent reputation in the community in which he resides. The present district attorney of Clearfield County has no objection to the granting of a pardon, and neither has the president judge.

The applicant is a native of Italy and has a wife and four children who reside in this country. He desires to become a citizen of the United States but because of the conviction he is unable to secure his first papers. A pardon will clear the way for his naturalization and will in part remove the stigma of his crime from the applicant and his family.

Respectfully submitted,

BOARD OF PARDONS

In re application of A. W. Snavely, No. 3112, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that A. W. Snavely, convicted of false pretense, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Dauphin County, on March 20, 1934, be pardoned.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant plead guilty to two charges of false pretense in 1934. He was sentenced to serve a term of one year in the Dauphin County Prison and make restriction in the amount of $1,460. On June 27, 1934, he was released and placed on parole for two years. The crimes which he committed, and for which he was sentenced were the result of the depression. Applicant had never been in any other trouble, and since his release has conducted himself in an exemplary manner. He has attempted to make restitution by signing judgment notes, and turning them over to the persons who suffered loss.

The private prosecutor and the district attorney have no objections to the granting of a pardon. The trial judge also has no objections. The applicant is over 65 years of age and desires to obtain a real estate license in order that he may earn a living. His physical condition will not permit him to do manual labor, and at the present time he is unable to support his wife and himself and is dependent upon charity.

A pardon will enable him to secure a real estate license and make him self-supporting, and in part remove the stigma of the crime.

Respectfully submitted,

THOMAS KENNEDY,
Lieutenant Governor.

DAVID L. LAWRENCE,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.

CHARLES J. MARGIOTTI,
Attorney General.

THOMAS A. LOGUE,

The above recommendation is approved:

In re application of Lewis Lynn McClinsey, No. 3132, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the maximum and minimum sentence of Lewis Lynn McClimsey, convicted of felonious breaking and entry of a mine and stealing copper wire in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Clearfield County on July 22, 1935, be commuted from two years to one year five months expiring on December 22, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant plead guilty to breaking and entering and stealing copper wire in 1935. He was sentenced to serve a term of two to four years in the Western State Penitentiary. He was never involved in any other trouble.

The Board of Trustees of the Western State Penitentiary states "If this inmate were eligible to apply for parole, we would probably recommend him for parole (1) first conviction (2) excellent institutional record".

The trial judge states that he has no objection to the granting of the application.

The applicant has served over one-half of his minimum sentence. We believe he has been sufficiently punished and are satisfied he is not an habitual criminal.

The applicant will be on parole until 1949. Employment has been assured.

Respectfully submitted,

THOMAS KENNEDY,
Lieutenant Governor.

In re application of Boyd Ellsworth Hall, D-1278, No. 3136, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the minimum sentence of Boyd Ellsworth Hall, convicted of breaking and entering and larceny in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Adams County on May 2, 1936, be commuted from one and one-half years to seven months expiring on December 2, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant plead guilty to breaking and entering and larceny in May of this year. He was sentenced to serve a term of from one and one-half to three years in the Eastern State Penitentiary. The accomplices of the applicant had been involved in many other cases but the applicant had accompanied them only on one occasion.

The applicant was never involved in any serious trouble and has attempted to improve himself since his incarceration.

The trial district attorney stated: "... from my knowledge of the case and of the prisoner and his record I would recommend that he be paroled for the remaining term of his sentence. ..."

The trial judge did not oppose the granting of clemency.

The applicant has a wife and two children. The children are being supported by the wife who had to place them in a home.

We believe the applicant has been sufficiently punished and are satisfied he is not an habitual criminal.

The applicant will be on parole until 1939. A home has been provided and his mother will see to it that he has employment.

In re application of William Davis, B-2939, No. 3144, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the minimum sentence of William Davis, convicted of murder of the second degree in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Allegheny County on November 17, 1931, be commuted from six years to five years one month expiring on December 17, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant plead guilty to voluntary manslaughter in 1931. He was sentenced to serve a term from six to twelve years in the Western State Penitentiary. He was never involved in any other serious trouble. The district attorney's representative who appeared before us at the open session stated he was not opposed to the granting of clemency, because the killing took place during a drunken brawl and the death was unusual because it resulted from a fall.

The applicant has served over five-sixths of his minimum sentence. The Board of Trustees of the Western State Penitentiary states: "If this inmate were eligible to apply for parole, we would probably conditionally recommend him for parole subject to proper sponser (1) excellent institutional record (2) first conviction for felony." The trial judge was not opposed to the granting of clemency. We believe the applicant has been sufficiently punished and are satisfied he is not an habitual criminal.

The applicant will be on parole until 1943. A home has been assured in Ohio and our recommendation is contingent upon his removal to and remaining in that state.

In re application of T. J. Ridley, No. 3145, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the maximum and minimum sentence of T. J. Ridley, convicted of unlawful possession of explosives in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and Quarter Sessions Philadelphia County on January 4, 1935, be commuted from five years to two years, four months expiring on December 11, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant was convicted of the unlawful possession of explosives. He was sentenced to serve a term of five to ten years in the Eastern State Penitentiary.

After a careful examination of the case we find that there was no direct evidence to connect him with the crime, and while there may have been sufficient circumstantial evidence to justify conviction, the jury also would have been justified in finding him not guilty.

The applicant was never involved in any other trouble and has an excellent reputation.

The Board of Trustees of the Eastern State Penitentiary states "Applicant has made a very outstanding record in the Penitentiary. He has been a very conscientious worker and has done everything within his power to cooperate with the authorities.

"If this was a definite attempt to destroy property, he should be punished. According to his story, which sounds true, he is guilty of a foolish mistake, and he has served sufficient time.

"All his accomplices have been commuted".

The applicant has served over two years of his minimum sentence. We believe he has been sufficiently punished and are satisfied he is not an habitual criminal.

The applicant will be on parole until 1944. An excellent home has been provided upon his release and employment has been assured.

In re application of John Heidrick, No. 3152, December Session, 1936

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the maximum and minimum sentence of John Heidrick, convicted of robbery, being armed with an offensive weapon in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Philadelphia County on October 4, 1935, be commuted from two and one-half years to one year, two months expiring on December 4, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant entered a plea of guilty to the charge of robbery, being armed with an offensive weapon in 1935. He was sentenced to serve a term of two ond one-half to eight years in the Eastern State Penitentiary.

The district attorney's representative who appeared before us at the open session stated that he had serious doubts concerning the case, and had an investigation conducted since the imposition of sentence. From this investigation it appeared that the applicant had secured a check for $700 from the prosecutor by using a gun belonging to the prosecutor. The check was cashed the next day. The applicant said that the check had been given to him because he had threatened to reveal that the prosecutor had committed acts of sexual perversion. The investigation conducted by the district attorney's representative corroborated the applicant's contention, and after a careful examination of all the facts in the case we are convinced that there was no real robbery.

The applicant was never convicted of any other crime and is only twenty-one years of age. We believe he has been sufficiently punished and are satisfied he is not an habitual criminal.

The applicant will be on parole until 1943. Employment and a home have been provided.

In re application of Herbert Joseph Dorsey, No. 3170, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommended that the maximum and minimum sentence of Herbert Joseph Dorsey, convicted of robbery in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and Quarter Sessions of Philadelphia County on February 28, 1929, be commuted from ten years to seven years nine months expiring on November 28, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant plead guilty to robbery, being armed with an offensive weapon in 1929. He was sentenced to serve a term of from ten to twenty years in the Eastern State Penitentiary. He was never involved in any other trouble and has served almost four-fifths of his minimum sentence. We believe he has been sufficiently punished and are satisfied he is not a habitual criminal.

The Board of Trustees of the Eastern State Penitentiary states "The applicant works in the tailor shop and he spends all his spare time studying art. He has adjusted very well in the institution and has made every effort to improve himself. The Board is favorably impressed by this man".

The applicant will be on parole until 1949. A home has been provided for him at the Catholic Young Men's Association, and the Director will give him employment.

In re application of Charles Welsh, D-1603, No. 3171, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the minimum sentence of Charles Welsh, convicted of assault and battery with intent to steal, felonious entry, larceny, assault and battery to kill in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and Quarter Sessions of Franklin County on September 25, 1933, be commuted from two years to two months expiring on November 25, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

In 1929 the applicant was sentenced to serve from two to five years in the Eastern State Penitentiary for felonious entry. In 1931 he was released on parole. In 1933 he plead guilty to several bills charging him with assault and battery, felonious entry, larceny and assault and battery with intent to kill. For this he received a sentence of two to four years.

He has served the maximum of the original sentence and two months of the sentence imposed in 1933.

The trial judge stated: "I felt that, as I feel now, that the punishment of three years meted out to him for breaking of parole was sufficient punishment for the crime for which he is now serving his sentence.

"This man is weak in every way and easily led and in the crimes in which he has been involved has not been a leader but a follower. I feel that if he could be kept away from whiskey, he would not likely get in any further trouble.

"I am perfectly willing for the Board to exercise clemency and commuting sentence of this man if it sees fit to do so."

We concur in the trial judge's statements.

Applicant will be on parole until 1940.

In re application of Charles William Elliss, C-3031, No. 4005, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that the maximum sentence of Charles William Elliss, convicted of robbery in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Philadelphia County on September 23, 1920, be commuted from six years to four years three months, expiring on December 23, 1924, and that the minimum sentence of Charles William Elliss, convicted of robbery, being armed with an offensive weapon in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Philadelphia County on August 10, 1925, be commuted from ten years to one year and four months, expiring on December 10, 1936.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

In 1925 the applicant plead guilty to robbery, being armed with an offensive weapon and larceny of an automobile. He was sentenced to serve two consecutive terms of from five to ten and ten to twenty years in the Eastern State Penitentiary. Previous to this he had completed a term of four years and three months in the penitentiary for robbery. Accordingly, in the past sixteen years he has been incarcerated for about fifteen and one-half years.

The Board of Trustees states: "Applicant has served eleven (11) years. During the past five (5) years his efforts of self-improvement have been very noticeable. He has found a type of work in which he is very much interested and by diligent work and study has attempted to fit himself for release. It is our thought that he should be granted an opportunity to re-establish himself in the outside world.

"A study of the applicant's record (without personal knowledge of the individual) would probably lead to an unfavorable decision. However, if the record is analyzed, it will be found that sixteen (16) of Elliss' nineteen (19) arrests were made when he was between the ages of nine and eighteen years.

"His release would undoubtedly convince the prison population that honest efforts of self-improvement are really worth striving for and will be properly rewarded."

We realize that the applicant has a very bad criminal record. However, in view of the strong recommendation of the Board of Trustees and because the district attorney's representative who appeared before us in the open session stated that he was not opposed to the granting of clemency, we recommend a commutation of the sentence imposed in 1925 and 1920 in order that he will not be returned to the Western State Penitentiary as a parole violator.

The trial judge stated to us: "Under date of December 1, I wrote to you stating that I thought he was a confirmed criminal. Judging by his conduct between 1911 and 1925, he has been, but I find that during two uprisings of prisoners, he refused to participate although in the midst of them, and for the past five years he has industriously pursued a course in radio. Feeling as I do that rehabilitation is as much the purpose of imprisonment as punishment, I feel that such a change of front on the part of even a confirmed criminal should be taken sight of. I feel that this is real rehabilitation and as a reward for his voluntary re-adjustment. I desire to withdraw my protest of December 1, and if your Board sees fit to commute his sentence, I have no objection to it." We are in accord with the trial judge's views.

The applicant will be on parole until 1956.

Respectfully submitted,

THOMAS KENNEDY,
Lieutenant Governor.

Secretary of the Commonwealth.

In re application of Ernest Velez, 4090, December Session, 1936.

To His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Sir: The above application having been heard, upon due public notice, in open session, the undersigned members of the Board of Pardons recommend that Ernest Velez, convicted of Sodomy in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Schuylkill County, on July 27, 1925, be pardoned.

Our reasons for making this recommendation are as follows:

The applicant was convicted of sodomy in 1925. He was sentenced to serve a term of from three to six years in the Schuylkill County Prison. He was never convicted of any other crime and enjoys an excellent reputation in the community in which he resides.

The report of our parole investigator states that there is considerable doubt as to his guilt.

The applicant desires to become a citizen of the United States but cannot because of the conviction. A pardon will enable him to become a citizen of the United States and will in part remove the stigma of the crime from the applicant and his family, and will be of material assistance to his advancement.

REPORT FROM PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISION IN PURSUANCE OF RESOLUTION NO. 9 AND 31 SESSION 1936

THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

Harrisburg, January 8, 1937.

Mr. W. P. Gallagher, Chief Clerk,
House of Representatives,
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

Dear Sir:

At the direction of the Commission, I am sending to you herewith copy of joint report, dated November 30, 1936, of Directors Solly and Morgal of the Commission's Bureaus of Public Convenience and Accounts, Rates and Statistics, respectively, in re school ticket fares as disclosed by the tariffs on file with the Commission and replies from the companies involved.

This report is submitted by the Public Service Commission in pursuance of Resolution No. 9 adopted by the Senate on June 29, 1936, concurred in by the House of Representatives on July 13, 1936, and approved by the Governor on July 22, 1936, and Resolution No. 31 adopted by the House of Representatives on July 8, 1936, concurred in by the Senate on August 6, 1936 and approved by the Governor on August 24, 1936, requesting that the Commission make an investigation to ascertain whether on the basis of valuation and income, or any other basis, the street railway companies operating in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania may be required to issue tickets for school children only at a rate of not more than twenty-five cents per week.

Please acknowledge receipt.

Very truly yours,

SAMUEL ETTINGER, Secretary.

ENCLOSURE

THE PUBLIC SERVIC ECOMMISSION OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA
Bureau of Accounts, Rates and Statistics
Harrisburg, November 30, 1936

To the Honorable, The Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Harrisburg, Pa.

Gentlemen:

At an executive session on September 29, 1936, the Commission gave consideration to the following resolutions adopted by the legislature:

Resolution No. 9, adopted by the Senate on June 29, 1936, concurred in by the House of Representatives on July 13, 1936, and approved by the Governor on July 22, 1936, requesting the Commission to make an investigation, through its existing facilities, with a view of ascertaining whether on the basis of valuation and income or on any other basis, street railway companies operating in the City of Philadelphia, may be required to issue tickets for school children only, at a rate not to exceed twenty-five cents per week.

Resolution No. 31, adopted by the House of Representatives on July 8, 1936, concurred in by the Senate on August 6, 1936, and approved by the Governor on August 24, 1936, requesting that the Commission make an investigation, through its existing facilities, with a view of ascertaining whether on the basis of valuation and income or on any other basis, the street railway companies operating in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, may be required to issue tickets for school children only, at a rate not to exceed twenty-five cents per week.

These resolutions were referred to the Bureau of Public Convenience for study and collaboration with the Bureau of Accounts, Rates and Statistics with instructions to report to the Commission not later than December 1, 1936.

Since the subject matter of Resolution No. 31 embraces that contained in Resolution No. 9, this report has been so prepared as to cover all the street railway companies operating in the Commonwealth.

From the standpoint of valuation and income, there is presented as Schedule I, a statement showing the depreciated and undepreciated fixed capital as of December 31, 1935, and the income for the year of 1935 as disclosed by the most recent annual reports filed with the Commission by street railway companies operating in the State of Pennsylvania. This statement shows that out of the 34 companies reviewed, 18 show operating deficits and the remaining 16 show relatively small earnings in relation to the book value of their fixed capital. From the standpoint of earnings, it would therefore appear that there is little hope of success in securing rate reductions based upon recognized principles of rate making.

Under date of October 5, 1936, the Secretary of the Commission addressed the following letter to all of the street railway companies operating in Pennsylvania, designed to determine their attitude with regard to compliance with the resolution:

"At the direction of the Commission, I enclose a copy of Resolution No. 31, adopted by the House of Representatives, concurred in by the Senate and approved by Governor George H. Earle, relative to the cost of transportation of pupils to the school districts in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The Commission desires to be advised as to the attitude of your company toward compliance with the resolution; also, that you supply it with such information as you may have available with respect to special rates or tickets and other arrangements for the transportation of school children".

Examination of the replies received to the above letter in connection with the tariffs on file, discloses that only one company, namely, the Hershey Transit Company has a school ticket fare amounting to twenty-five cents per week or less, and that while some of the companies have reduced fares for school children, the general attitude is to the effect that no further reductions can be made.

The Pittsburgh Railways Company, serving Pittsburgh and vicinity and the Conestoga Transportation Company serving Lancaster and vicinity, have recently filed new tariffs applicable to school children, but the rates filed are in excess of the twenty-five cents per week suggested by House Resolution No. 31.

There is submitted as Schedule II, a statement showing the regular fare per zone, and special school transportation rates of all of the street railway companies operating in Pennsylvania as disclosed by their tariffs on file with the Commission. This statement also includes a brief digest of the replies received from each company to the Secretary's letter mentioned above.

Respectfully submitted,

W. C. SOLLY,
Director, Bureau of Public Convenience,

B. FRANK MORGAL.
Director, Bureau of Accounts, Rates and Statistics.

THE DOLLAR SAVINGS BANK

There are no stockholders, the deposits and earnings belong to the depositor; therefore, after expenses of operation are paid and a suitable amount set aside for surplus, interest or dividends will be paid on deposits at as high a rate as good judgment and conservative policy will permit.

REPORT FROM THE DEPARTMENT OF BANKING IN PURSUANCE TO RESOLUTION NO. 180 SESSION 1936 STUDY OPERATION OF SMALL LOAN COMPANIES

To the Honorable Members of the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Be It Remembered, That on the twenty-first day of June, 1935, the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania adopted the following resolution sponsored by Messrs. Mentzer and Simon:

Whereas, Many bills were introduced at this Session of the General Assembly seeking to amend the law governing companies authorized to make small loans; and

Whereas, Notwithstanding the apparent need, therefor, the Legislature has failed to enact any legislation on this subject; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Department of Banking be directed to make a study of the conditions and law under which small loan companies are operating in this and other states and countries, and make report thereon to the next regular session of the House of Representatives, together with such draft of legislation as is deemed necessary to correct deficiencies and inequities in the present law:

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted to the Department of Banking by the Chief Clerk of this House.

In accordance with the above resolution the Secretary of Banking has undertaken an extensive study of the business of lending money in Pennsylvania in sums of $300. or less, as well as other forms of consumer credit.

FOREWORD

The problem of legislating on the subject of interest rates is not new to Pennsylvania nor is it confined to this State. Volumes have been written in condemnation and in defense of the taking of interest. The problem is as old as history of mankind. It has been a constant controversy between the lender having capital and the borrower desiring the use of such capital. It has been only recently that the distinction between loans for production and consumption was recognized. In this study we are concerned only with the latter type of loan.

Under the classification of loans for consumption are included personal loans by small loan act licensees, pawnbroker's loans, financing of installment sales, financing the payment of insurance premiums, merchant's open credit accounts, credit union loans and banking institution personal loans. A consumption loan may be defined as one in which the proceeds are used by the borrower to purchase some article of personal property or to pay some personal obligation. It is distinguished from a production loan in that it is not used to create or enlarge capital.

Legislation on the subject of consumer credit is ineffective if it is merely prohibitive. Capital is invested in this phase of financing by reason of the existence of a very definite economic demand. This demand arises from human necessities and requirements. Legislation governing and regulating consumer credit must permit the flow of legitimate capital into these channels to meet the existing demand if it is to be successful.

HISTORICAL

Statistics show that 85% of the people of this country have no bank credit. Prior to the passage of special legislation restricting and governing the lending of money in small amounts for consumption purposes the members of this class were compelled, as their only recourse, to borrow from lenders operating outside the law. These lenders were commonly referred to as "loan sharks." The rates charged by the "loan sharks" varied greatly. The minimum average rate charged by these lenders was 120% per year. There seems to have been no limit to the maximum which a borrower might be required to pay. In the investigation of specific cases rates of 1000% per year were not uncommon. These conditions attending the business of lending money in small amounts throughout Pennsylvania received the serious attention of police officials, charitable agencies and finally of the legislature.

In Pennsylvania the legislature first attempted to regulate the small loans business by the Act No. 90 approved May 11, 1909, P. L. 518. This act was held unconstitutional in the application of the Jefferson Credit Company July 20, 1909, 18 Dist. R. 634. The Court in this case based its decision on the contention that the act constituted special legislation and attempted to legalize wage assignments which was contrary to the established policy of the Commonwealth.

In 1911 the Legislature passed House Bill No. 632. This bill made it unlawful to lend money on personal property unless such property was delivered to the possession of the lender who in turn was authorized to make a "reasonable charge" for storage. This bill also attempted to legalize assignment of wages. This bill was vetoed by Governor Tener on the grounds that it encroached upon the constitutional rights of the individual in prohibiting loans on unpledged personal property.

The next attempt to legislate on the subject was the Act No. 285 approved June 5, 1913, P. L. 429. This act authorized an interest charge of 6% per year plus an additional charge of one-tenth of the amount loaned but did not restrict the amount of the loan on which these charges could be collected. On loans of $50.00 or less a charge of $1.00 could be exacted in addition to the above. This act was declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania on March 15, 1915 in the case Commonwealth vs. Young 248 Pa. St. 458. Here again the courts held that the act constituted special legislation in that it provided for an unreasonable classification of lenders.

The first act to stand the test of constitutionality was the Act No. 432 approved June 17, 1915, P. L. 1012. This act permitted licensed lenders to make loans in sums of $300. or less to individuals pressed by lack of funds to meet immediate necessities. The rates fixed by this statute were 3% per month on loans of $100. or less and 2% per month on loans from $100. to $300. In addition an examination charge of $1.00 was permitted every four months on loans up to $50.00 and a $2.00 charge on loans in excess of $50.00. The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania held this act constitutional on April 22, 1919 in the case Commonwealth vs. Puder 261 Pa. St. 129. The court held that the limitation of the amount of the loans to $300 was a valid basis for classification for the business of lending money in small amounts, with or without security.

In 1919 the Legislature by the Act No. 189, approved June 4, 1919, P. L. 375 amended the Act of 1915. By this amendment the interest rate on all loans of $300. or less was fixed at 3½% per month and all fees or other charges were prohibited.

Since 1919 there has been no change or amendment in the Statute. At every session of the legislature acts were introduced to amend this act by reduction of the rate of interest permitted, but in every instance the acts failed to pass.

OPERATION OF THE SMALL LOAN BUSINESS

The licenses under the Small Loans Act of Pennsylvania are issued by the Secretary of Banking. The licenses are issued only after a careful investigation has been made of the character and reputation of the applicants. At least once each year the Secretary of Banking through his representatives makes an examination of the affairs of every licensed lender. The scope of this examination covers not only the legal aspects of the business but takes into consideration also the moral obligation of the lender to the borrowing public and society in general. The Department will not permit a lender to use harsh and unconscionable collection methods on delinquent borrowers who are unable to pay by reason of unfortunate circumstances. On the other hand, the Department cannot protect the borrower who is able to pay his just obligation but resists every attempt of the lender to collect.

Loans are made under the small loans act with or without security. The greater portion of the business is, of course, comprised of loans made on the security of household furniture. Co-maker loans, real estate loans and loans on the security of automobiles are next in point of volume. There are also loans on the security of personal property such as diamonds and watches, loans on insurance policies, loans on stocks and bonds, and, of comparatively recent origin, loans made on the security of a single name note to school teachers and others having a permanent income.

The household furniture loans are probably the most hazardous. They are made on the security of household furniture owned and used by the borrower. The borrower is not deprived of the use of this furniture during the term of the loan. A source of considerable loss in this type of loan is the case where a borrower moves his furniture without the knowledge of the lender and becomes a "skip." In the larger cities it is a difficult task to locate the "skip" account. If the account becomes delinquent the furniture constituting the security is of little or no value to the lender. It is not customary for the lender to issue a writ and have the furniture seized and sold for default in the payment of the account. If the lender does seize the security on a loan the proceeds realized from its sale are seldom sufficient to pay the account. Cases in which the borrower is forcibly deprived of his furniture are rare. In no cases coming to the attention of this Department has a borrower been deprived of his household possessions if he was found to be making an honest effort to pay and had defaulted by reason of circumstances beyond his control. There are certain circumstances under which the borrower voluntarily relinquishes possession of the furniture. Statistics in the Department of Banking show that during the year 1935 in 22 cases of a total of 211,243 accounts the borrower was compelled to relinquish household furniture given as security for a loan and in 103 cases the borrower voluntarily surrendered household possessions given as security on a loan. In connection with loans made on the security of household furniture a small percentage of licensees request the borrower to furnish life insurance which will protect the lender in case of death of the borrower to the extent that the loan balance will be liquidated by payment of the insurance policy. The cost of this policy, when obtained for the borrower by the licensee, is generally at the rate of $1.00 per $100. of the face amount of the loan when the liability of the insurance company is limited to the unpaid principal balance and $2.00 per $100. when the insurance company becomes liable for an amount equal to the original amount of the loan.

The co-maker loans are specialized in by the industrial loan companies otherwise referred to as imitation Morris Plan companies. The security on these loans is the endorsement or guarantee by one or more persons having an income independent of that of the borrower. In many cases a borrower having purchased goods from a merchant applies for a loan for the purpose of paying such goods and the merchant endorses or guarantees the notes. On many loans in this classification the notes are entered of record against the borrower and the endorsers or co-makers. The cost of this entry and satisfaction is borne by the borrower and constitutes a cost in addition to the interest charge. In numerous instances the borrower is required to furnish life insurance for the protection of the lender and the endorsers in case of death of the borrower. The cost of this insurance when obtained by the licensee for the borrower compares with that of similar insurance furnished in connection with household furniture loans.

Licensees granting loans on the security of real estate insist that either the borrower or an endorser has an equity in real property sufficient to protect the loan. The notes on loans of this type are generally recorded and the costs of recording and satisfaction are paid by the borrower as a charge in addition to the interest. In a small percentage of these loans the borrower is required to furnish life insurance as previously explained for the protection of the lender and endorser.

There are a number of licensees specializing in loans on the security of automobiles. Recently licensees who formerly confined their business to household furniture loans have entered the field of automobile loans. In a loan of this type it is the general practice for the lender to have a lien recorded on the title to the car. The cost of recording such lien is $2.50 including notary fees if the lender holds a dealer's license and $4.50 including notary fees if the lender does not hold a dealer's license. This cost is paid by the borrower in addition to the interest. The majority of licensees lending on the security of automobiles require the borrower to furnish insurance protecting the lender. In some cases only fire and theft and single interest collision insurance is required. In other instances conversion and other forms of protection are demanded of the borrower. The cost of this insurance varies considerably, the minimum charge being an average of $5.00. The cost of this insurance is paid by the borrower and is in addition to the interest charge.

Loans on the security of jewelry are exceptional. In these cases the lender takes the security in his possession. A description of the security is written into the collateral form of note. The borrower has no cost on these loans other than the interest charged.

Loans having as security the cash surrender value of life insurance policies or the short rate cancellation value of other types of insurance are infrequent. A description of the policy is written in the note obligation and an assignment thereof is taken as security. The only cost to the borrower on this type of loan is the interest charge.

Since the average bank will grant loans on the security of stocks and bonds, this type of collateral is not generally obtained by the small loans act licensees. The stocks or bonds which are pledged with licensees are generally unlisted or local securities which do not have a ready market. A collateral form of note is obtained in which the description of the securities is written and an assignment is required when the security is a stock certificate. The interest charged is the only cost to the borrower on this type of loan.

Until quite recently licensees refused to grant loans to unmarried persons on a single signature. The first departure from this custom was the granting of loans to school teachers who in many cases were unmarried. Many licensees will today grant loans to individuals on their own signatures, whether married or unmarried, regardless of any security. The only assurance which the lender has for the repayment of this type of loan is the character of the borrower. These loans require a very careful credit analysis of the applicant for a loan. As in the household furniture loans and the co-maker loans, many licensees require the borrower to furnish life insurance in connection with this type of loan.

The charges for recording and satisfaction of judgments of record, for placing an encumbrance on the title of an automobile, and for the premium on life insurance and automobile insurance are collected by licensees as a charge in addition to the interest by authority of opinions written by various Attorneys General. In each instance the Attorney General writing such an opinion has held that such charges are not within the prohibition contained In Section 2 of the Small Loans Act in spite of this very definite prohibition that "no fees, fines, or other charges, either in addition to or as a part of the above specified interest, shall be charged or collected under any pretext whatsoever."

RATES CHARGED IN PENNSYLVANIA UNDER PRESENT ACT

The Small Loans Act as now in force permits a maximum interest charge of 3½% per month calculated on unpaid principal balances. This rate is not the contract rate being charged in Pennsylvania today on all loans. Since the passage of the Small Loans Act the Department has fostered competition in this business on the theory that unrestricted competition will reduce the price of money.

A study of statistics showing the rate charged in Pennsylvania today by licensees operating under the Small Loans Act reveals that 48.18% of the total loans granted in Pennsylvania during the year 1935 carried a contract rate of less than the maximum permitted under the statute. The accompanying table has been prepared to show to what extent competition has affected a reduction in the rate of interest charged by licensees operating under the Small Loans Act.

The year 1935 marks the beginning of the era of rate reductions in the small loan business in Pennsylvania. While many licensees are still carrying on their books loans which will eventually be total losses, in the majority of cases licensees have readjusted their statements and charged off the loans which proved to be uncollectible. It is obvious that the persons who are compelled to borrow from this type of lender embody that class of society wherein the effects of the depression were most keenly felt. It is inevitable under the circumstances that, in a period of economic disturbance such as the country experienced during the last several years, the organizations which had extended credit to this group would suffer tremendous losses by reason of the absence of earning power of borrowers.

Until the beginning of the year 1935 practically all lenders were compelled to maintain the maximum rate on loans in order to recoup the extraordinary losses suffered during the depression. Since then, however, there has been a marked tendency to voluntarily lower the interest rates. As in any other business, the initiative in the reduction of interest rates has been taken by the larger organizations. The smaller lenders are compelled to meet the reductions in order to survive. The borrowing public has become rate conscious. Today the client of the small loan lender "shops around" for lower interest rates in the same manner in which he "shops around" when buying merchandise.

Statistics for the year 1936 are not available at this time. Reports of examinations made by the Department of Banking show that interest rates have during this year been further reduced. One of the larger organizations in this field has during the year reduced its rate on household furniture and unsecured loans to an aggregate rate of 3% on balances to $100.00 and 2% over. Here is further evidence that competition and abundant capital are bringing lower interest rates to this class of borrowers.

RATES CHARGED IN OTHER STATES

In addition to Pennsylvania there are twenty-seven states in the United States which have enacted a special statute, in the nature of the Small Loans Act in Pennsylvania, regulating the business of lending money in small sums. The rates charged under these acts vary greatly. As an example, in Alabama the rate is 8% per year of the face amount of loans of $100. or less. Georgia reduced its rate from 3½% to 1½% per month in 1935. New Hampshire has a rate of 2% per month. Under a flat rate or an aggregate rate there are three states which have fixed 2½% per month as a maximum, ten states which have fixed 3% per month as a maximum and eleven states which have fixed 3½% per month as a maximum.

In Pennsylvania lenders do not enjoy the convenience of a chattel mortgage law. In twenty-two of the twenty-seven states having a form of small loan act a chattel mortgage law has been passed.

It has been contrary to the policy of the Commonwealth to permit the assignment of wages in Pennsylvania. Lenders operating under the Small Loans Act do not, therefore, have the benefit of this very effective method of collection. In twenty-five of the other states having small loan acts the assignment of wages is permitted. In the majority of these states the wage assignment can be used effectively by lenders operating under the various small loan acts.

In a questionnaire addressed by this Department to the various states having small loan acts each state was requested to advise if the passage of the small loan act had effectively eliminated so-called "loan sharks" charging exorbitant rates. It is significant that Alabama having a rate of less than 1½% per month reports that its act has not eliminated the "loan sharks". Georgia with its 1½% likewise reports that the "loan sharks" have not been eliminated and to the Superintendent of Banks, Robert E. Gormley is attributed a statement, after the reduction of the interest rate from 3½% to 1½% in 1935, that the "licensed and regulated companies are withdrawing * * * leaving the necessitous borrower to the mercies of the unregulated loan firm."

It is perhaps better that we confine our study of rates in other states to those states bordering Pennsylvania and perhaps a few others having large centers of industrial population similar to Pennsylvania.

In New Jersey the small loans act has had a rather hectic career. Prior to 1929 the maximum rate permitted was 3% per month. In 1929 the rate was reduced to 1½% per month. It remained at this figure until 1932 at which time it was increased to 2½% per month. It is interesting to note the effect which the reduction in rates in 1929 had upon the small loan business in New Jersey. Prior to 1929 loans outstanding in New Jersey exceeded twenty millions, two years later the volume had dropped to less than six millions. In other words, practically all lenders had or were retiring from business in New Jersey. Many of the organizations licensed to do business in New Jersey prior to 1929 removed their offices to Morrisville, Pennsylvania, which is just across the Delaware from New Jersey's capital, Trenton, and to Philadelphia, where on the other side of the Delaware are Camden and many other smaller cities and towns in South Jersey. New Jersey borrowers came from points within a radius of fifty miles to obtain loans from Pennsylvania offices at 3½% per month for the reason that there were no facilities in New Jersey where these loans could be obtained at the then legal rate of 1½% per month.

Even though New Jersey did increase its rate to 2½% per month in 1932, residents of that state still continued to come to Pennsylvania in order to obtain loans. It is estimated that during the year 1936 more than 9,000 residents of New Jersey crossed the Delaware to obtain loans from Pennsylvania licensees totaling one million four hundred thousand dollars.

It is an open question whether 2½% per month is inadequate to induce companies to expand their lending facilities in New Jersey, or whether the continued influx of borrowers into Pennsylvania results from the fact that a large number of New Jersey companies moved into Pennsylvania following the rate reduction to 1½% in 1929 and have retained their Pennsylvania location or merged with Pennsylvania companies and have held their New Jersey clientele.

A somewhat similar situation developed in West Virginia when the rate was cut in 1929 from 3½% per month to 2% per month. In 1931 the Better Business Bureau of Huntington, West Virginia issued a bulletin from which we quote "The high rate lenders have flourished in West Virginia since 1929, when our State Legislature reduced the maximum rate that could be legally charged from 3½% to 2% per month on the unpaid balance on loans up to $300. This change in the laws virtually forced the legitimate lenders out of business and served as an invitation to the high rate operators." In March, 1933 the Legislature of West Virginia increased the maximum rate to 3½% per month on sums of $150. or less and 2½% on balances in excess of $150. but not exceeding $300.

A small loan act was passed in Missouri in 1927 permitting an interest charge of 3½% per month. Two years later in 1929 the act was amended reducing the rate of interest to 2½% per month. The 1927 act had not been in operation for a sufficient length of time to determine the effect of the rate reduction on the basis of outstanding loans. As an indication of the effect of this rate reduction, it is noted that the number of licensees declined from 174 prior to the rate reduction to 95 in 1931. Those licensed lenders who remained in business practically eliminated loans of $100. or less thus the borrower having need for loans in amounts less than $100. was deprived of the legitimate source of credit and compelled to resort to the higher rate lenders operating outside the law.

In New York State a law was passed in 1932 permitting an interest charge of 3% per month on loan balances to $150. and 2½% per month on balances from $150. to $300. Statistics are not available to indicate the effect of this act on the relative volume or character of small loans in that state.

It is noteworthy that these experiments in substantial rate reduction were made either at the end of the boom period of 1929 or in the early years of the depression, before recovery and a growing abundance of capital brought down interest rates in other lending fields.

In Ohio the rate of interest permitted is 3% per month and in addition an inspection fee of $1.00 may be charged every four months on loans of $50.00 or less.

In the State of Maryland the rate permitted is 3½% per month.

In the State of Delaware there is a statute which attempts to regulate the business of lending money in sums up to $500. This act has not, however, proved statisfactory, nor has it provided credit for the borrower in need of small amounts. This is evidenced by the fact that residents of the State of Delaware are clients of licensees operating under the Pennsylvania Small Loans Act located in Chester and Philadelphia and also of licensees operating under the Mary and Small Loans Act.

RATES ON OTHER FORMS OF CONSUMER CREDIT

In addition to the Small Loans Act Licensee there are many other agencies in the Commonwealth supplying consumer credit. These others may be divided into two general groups. The one group makes direct loans and includes pawn-brokers, credit unions and banking institutions with personal loan departments. The other group specializes in extension of credit in connection with the sale of merchandise and services. This group includes the automobile finance company, the household appliance finance company, merchants financing their own sales and insurance premium finance companies.

In the group making direct loans only the credit union is subject to supervisory legislation concerning the rate of charge on loans. The pawn-broker and the banking institution with the personal loan department are subject to the Usury Statute of 1858 which fixed the legal rate of interest at 6% per annum in Pennsylvania, but make other charges against the borrower, or provide a method of repayment which increases the cost to the borrower.

The second group of consumer credit agencies contend that their business has no relation whatsoever to that of lending money. In the final analysis, however, the lending of money is comparable to the extension of credit. These agencies extend credit for the purpose of purchasing specific personal property. Those identified with this type of financing contend that the charges for such credit are included in the selling price of the article to be financed and rely on the legal principle that sellers are entirely free to contract with buyers as to the terms and conditions of sales. The courts have upheld this contention and for that reason the business of financing sales of merchandise has expanded without restriction as to rates charged for this type of credit.

The pawn-broker operates in Pennsylvania under a municipal license in first, second and third class cities. This license is primarily a taxing license and provides a means of enabling the police officials of the various communities to check with the pawn-broker for stolen property. Only in the city of Philadelphia does the Licensing ordinance restrict the rates to be charged by pawn-brokers. In that city the pawn-broker is permitted to charge an interest rate of 6% per year and in addition a "storage charge" not exceeding 5% per month. These charges when reduced to a monthly rate are equivalent to 5½% per month on the amount owed. In other communities where the licensing ordinance does not restrict the rates the pawn-broker is limited in the "storage charge" only by the dictates of his own conscience. No attempt is made by the municipal authorities to maintain any supervision of the rates charged by pawn-brokers.

The Credit Union Act in Pennsylvania was passed on May 26, 1933. This statute permits organizations incorporated under its provisions to charge a discount of 6% per year on loans repayable in installments. This rate is approximately equal to 1% per month calculated on unpaid balances. Credit Unions are cooperative organizations selling their shares to the members whereby a fund is accumulated for the purpose of making loans to members. Credit Unions are generally organized among groups of persons employed in the same factory, school teachers, postal employees and others having a common bond of association or a community of interest based on employment, fraternal or religious association. The time and services of its officers are generally gratis, quarters for operating the business are usually obtained gratis, they are exempt from taxation and the investigation of loans and collection of loans is simplified by reason of the close association of its membership. This form of consumer credit is an excellent source of credit for those to whom it is available. Since the passage of the Act in 1933 fifty-nine organizations have been incorporated under its provisions. The total outstanding loan balances of the credit unions operating under the Pennsylvania Credit Union Act as of December 31, 1935 was $403,525.18. It is readily seen that this form of credit is at this time available only to a small percentage of the population having need for loans in this classification.

Some banking institutions have established personal loan departments during the last two years. It is difficult to ascertain if this should be attributed to a desire by the banks to furnish a source of credit at a lower rate of interest to persons desiring loans of this type or if it is the result of the bankers' attempts to find an investment for excessive cash reserves. Banks who have entered this field grant loans generally on the security of two endorsers or on real estate equity. The interest on the loan is discounted at the rate of 6% per annum and deducted from the face amount of the loan at the time the loan is granted. Periodic payments are required which are not credited directly to the loan account, but are credited to a deposit account. The balance in this deposit account is hypothecated as security for the loan and the theory is that at the end of the term of the loan the balance in the deposit account is sufficient to pay off the loan.

The charge made by banks in the personal loan departments is generally 6% discounted. As the banks as a rule do not pay interest on the pledged deposit accounts, the actual cost to the borrower is equivalent to .982% per month or approximately 1% per month. Some institutions, in addition to the 6% per month discount, charge an additional fee for investigation of the application or for some other similar purpose. This additional charge varies but is most often fixed at $2.00 per $100. of the principal amount of the loan. This additional charge increases the monthly rate considerably. When the additional charge plus the discount is $8.00 per $100. it is equivalent to a simple interest rate of 1 1/3% per month calculated on unpaid balances.

There are three primary factors in distinguishing the lending of money in personal loan departments of banks from the money lending business conducted under the small loans act. Banks are not restricted in the amount which may be loaned; whereas licensees operating under the small loans act are limited to $300. Banks lend depositors' funds, whereas small loan act licensees are not permitted to take deposits and can lend only their own funds or capital raised by the sale of stock or securities. Banks lend on the security of real estate or on the signature of two or more individuals in addition to the borrower; whereas the largest percentage of the loans granted under the small loans act have no security other than household furniture or only the signature of the borrower.

The automobile finance business stripped of its camouflage is simply a loan to the purchaser of an automobile which enables this purchaser to obtain the use of the car in spite of the fact that he does not have in cash the full purchase price. Those engaged in this business do not admit the logic of this interpretation. It is their contention that since the buyer does not have the purchase price in cash, the dealer arranges to lease the automobile to him at a stipulated monthly rental for a definite time. Upon the completion of this rental contract the purchaser then obtains ownership of the car by payment of a nominal sum usually $1.00. The finance company purchases the rental contract from the dealer upon discount terms mutually agreeable, but of no interest to the purchaser. As previously noted the courts have sustained the fiction of this procedure for extending credit.

The terms of the contract for financing an automobile are not readily understood by the average individual. The car has a fixed delivered cash price. When a sale of the car is to be financed the dealer adds to this price charges which he knows in advance he will be required to pay for discounting the paper with the finance company. He also adds an amount to cover the cost of insurance on the car. In some instances this insurance is limited to fire and theft and single interest collision. Double interest collision, conversion, confiscation, tornado, flood and other remote hazards are covered by the insurance policy required in some cases.

Certain licensees under the small loans act lend money on the security of automobiles and do not require the borrower to have insurance on the car. When purchasing a car through a finance company on a time payment contract the buyer is required to have insurance whether he wants it or not. Our comparison of rates is based on the total charges for financing which include the insurance cost. For financing unpaid balances on automobiles it was found that the charge reduced to simple interest calculated on unpaid balances varied considerably in the various companies. A few illustrations are in order.

Financing a balance of $200. on a used truck in one company is equivalent to a rate of 4½% per month. Financing a $200. balance on a new passenger car in the same company costs the buyer 3.81% per month. Financing a $200. balance on a used passenger car costs the buyer 4.20% per month. In another company the cost of financing a $200. balance is equivalent to 3.76% per month. The cost of financing a $250. balance on a new car in a third company is 3.23%. These rates are those of the larger nationally known companies. The rates on smaller balances are higher and the rates on larger balances are lower. The rates charged by the small local independent companies are generally higher than those of the national companies. The examples given are taken from the rate sheets of finance companies which advertise the so-called "6% plan." These calculations have all been based on a twelve month contract.

In no case do these charges include the "dealers rebate." A practice which has grown up with the automobile finance business is that whereby the dealer is paid a sum of money for sending his business to a specific finance company. In the trade this item is known by various names including dealers rebate, dealers reserve, dealers pack. The amount paid varies but is rarely less than $5.00 on a contract. This sum is added to the finance charges by the dealer or in some cases the charge is included in the differential between F. O. B. price and the delivered price of the car. In either case it increases the cost of financing to the purchaser.

There is no consistency in the rates charged for financing sales of household appliances. Investigation of specific cases by the Department of Banking discloses the financing of an electric refrigerator cost $15. for an unpaid balance of $210. over a period of twelve months which is equivalent to a monthly rate of 1.025% when calculated on the unpaid balances. The financing of a radio cost $10. for an unpaid balance of $125. over a period of twelve months which is equivalent to a monthly rate of 1.23% when calculated on the unpaid balances. The financing of air conditioning equipment cost $25.60 for an unpaid balance of $300. for a period of twelve months which is equivalent to a monthly rate of 1.31% when calculated on the unpaid balances. The rate chart of the same concern showed the financing of a balance of $50. would cost $5.02 for a period of 6 months which is equivalent to a monthly rate of 2.868%. The financing of a nationally known tire cost $2.05 for an unpaid balance of $11.90 over a period of 16 weeks which is equivalent to a monthly rate of 8.777% when calculated on the unpaid balances.

In a report on installment credit costs by Le Baron R. Foster of the Pollak Foundation for Economic Research appearing in the Journal of Business of the University of Chicago rates charged for financing certain commodities take a wide range. The following schedule shows the minimum and maximum rates found to be charged for this type of financing. These rates are based on variations in the amount of unpaid balances financed and the term of repayment. The rates have been reduced to a monthly percentage basis on unpaid principal balances.

Commodity	Monthly Rate
	Minimum	Maximum
Refrigerators	.691%	4.316%
Furniture	.5%	4.625%
Radios	.958%	8.175%
Auto Tires	2.8%	8.841%
Stoves	0%	5.716%
Mail Order Goods	1.083%	5.5%
Miscellaneous Commodities	0%	8.65%

While in some cases merchants who finance their own sales of merchandise make no additional charge for short term credit, in the majority of cases the rates for financing the sale of merchandise, when carried by a merchant, compares with the rates charged by established finance companies. Few merchants are in a financial position to carry all installment sales with their own capital. A merchant is required for competitive reasons to sell goods on the installment plan and since he is not in a position to do his own financing he arranges with one or more finance organizations to purchase his paper.

In recent years the financing of the payment of insurance premiums has grown rapidly. The insurance companies have made practically no provision for the payment of insurance premiums (other than life insurance premiums) on installment plans. Hence certain agencies have undertaken to lend the policy holder a certain percentage of the amount of the premium which he can repay by installments over a period of time depending upon the expiration date of the policy. The security on a loan of this type is limited to an assignment to the finance company of the return premium on a short rate cancellation basis. The rate of charge for this type of financing varies similarly to other types of financing dependent upon the amount of the premium financed and the length of time permitted for repayment. One company specializing in this type of financing determined its charge by the following formula. Six percent is added to the total premium, from this sum is deducted 25% which represents the down payment, the balance is divided into 8 equal monthly payments, which charge when reduced to a rate based on the unpaid monthly balance is equivalent to 1.814% per month. This may be considered as the average rate.

ADVERTISING BY LICENSEES

A careful survey has been made of the contents of the advertisements of licensees operating under the Small Loans Act. The Small Loans Act is entirely silent on the question of advertising. In a strict legal sense the Secretary of Banking has, under the present Act, no authority to regulate or restrict advertising by licensees operating under this Statute.

The principal methods of advertising are newspapers, either classified or display advertisements and circulars either mailed or distributed from door to door. A few licensees have adopted Radio advertising. The licensees lending on automobiles in some cases distribute circulars, cards or hand bills by attaching them to cars on the streets or parking lots. Display signs at the offices of licensees or on bill boards are used in many cases.

In some few cases advertisements have been found to be objectionable. It has been the aim of the Department of Banking to raise the standard of the advertising matter used by small loan act licensees. In pursuance of this policy advertisements which were false, misleading deceptive or which encouraged borrowing for improper purposes were criticized by this Department. In the vast majority of cases the licensees have cooperated with the Department in maintaining a high standard in their advertisements. In a small minority of cases licensees objected to the Department's assumption of authority in this respect and refused to cooperate.

Probably the most undersirable feature in the advertising of licensees is the stress placed upon the ease of repayment of a loan. Little effort is required to borrow money but the repayment of a loan is never "easy." Advertisements which feature "easy" payments or "repayment on easy installments" should be abandoned by licensees. They can properly be classified under the heading of misleading advertisements.

SOURCE OF OPPOSITION TO SMALL LOANS ACT

A search of the files of the Department will disclose complaints to the Secretary of Banking by borrowers. The Department makes a special investigation of every complaint received from a borrower. An examination of the report of these investigations will show that there are two types of borrowers represented by these complaints.

The one type represents a thoroughly honest individual who has obtained a loan in good faith but through misfortune is unable to repay his obligation. This individual, in looking about to find a plausible excuse for his failure to meet the terms of the obligation, decides that the high rate of interest permitted under the Small Loans Act is responsible. This is not, however, supported by the facts in the case. When it is found that a borrower's delinquency is the result of misfortune and other circumstances beyond his control, the Department recommends to the lender that the account be settled by waiver of accrued interest and payment of the principal balance only. The licensees have cooperated to the utmost degree and have invariably accepted the Department's recommendation of these cases. The payment of the principal balance only has been found to be a burden to this type of borrower and eventually the loan is written off as a loss.

The other type represents borrowers who file complaints with the Department of Banking in the hope of receiving assistance in their efforts to avoid the payment of a just obligation. These borrowers are capable of paying but feel that by attacking the rates of charge permitted under the Act they can escape fulfillment of their contracts. In these cases the lender cannot be asked or compelled to abrogate the terms of the contract. The borrower has, however, at all times the privilege of termination of the contract and avoiding the payment of the interest rate which he condemns, by paying off the entire obligation.

It has been found that the vast majority of borrowers obtaining loans from licensed lenders do so with the full understanding of the charges which they will be required to pay. Most licensees make a special effort to explain to prospective borrowers the terms of the contract so as to avoid misunderstanding and controversy in the payment of the account. Rarely has a borrower complained that he did not understand the amount which he was to pay for the use of the money.

There are in Pennsylvania in excess of 360,000 persons who have borrowed from licensees operating under the Small Loans Act. During the period of one year from July 1, 1935 to July 1, 1936 the Department of Banking received a total of 36 complaints. This represents one complaint for every ten thousand borrowers.

ANALYSIS OF REPORTS OF LICENSEES

Reports were obtained from licensees operating under the Small Loans Act for the fiscal year ending December 31, 1935. These reports were obtained from licensees operating 479 offices in the State. A tabulation of these reports shows information which is submitted in the following tables:

TABLE II

Loans receivable outstanding-balance due 1-1-35	$37,301,987.69
Loans receivable outstanding-balances due 12-31-35	37,484,553.13
Average loans receivable outstanding during 1935	37,393,270.41

Comparing these figures with those of previous years we find that loans receivable outstanding have decreased approximately sixteen million dollars since December 31, 1931. This is due to three causes. First, the depression curtailed demand for loans to purchase commodities. Secondly, a considerable part of the demand for loans was by persons whose financial condition during the depression was such that there was no reasonable expectation that they would be able to repay the loan, and the companies denied the applications. Thirdly, the establishment of personal loan departments by banks may have taken from the small loan licensees some of the better types of loans.

The maximum rate permitted under the Small Loans Act in Pennsylvania is 3% per month. Statistics show, however, that the average rate charged in Pennsylvania is 2.89% per month. In Table I of this report it was shown that slightly more than half of the loans receivable outstanding were being charged a flat rate of 3½% per month. More specifically 48.18% of the loans receivable outstanding were made at a contract rate of less than 3½% per month. This shows that competition in this business or other economic factors is effecting a reduction in the interest rates in Pennsylvania.

Previously in this report it was pointed out that in many cases licensees are compelled to waive interest on accounts entirely. When an account is charged to profit and loss there is a loss to the lender not only of the principal balance due but also of the interest accrued. Failure to collect the accrued interest on the profit and loss accounts and on the accounts wherein a part or all of the interest is waived reduces the collection rate of interest considerably below the contract rate. In 1935 the average collection rate of licensees operating under the Small Loans Act was 2.36% per month. In other words while the act permits licensees to charge a mximum rate of 3½% per month the average rate actually collected is less than 2½% per month.

When stated in other terms, licensees in Pennsylvania during the year 1935 actually collected 67.43% of the maximum rate permitted under the Act. The gross interest collected was found to be 81.66% of the interest earned under the average contract rate of 2.89% per month.

To determine the net earnings of licensees various methods may be adopted. Owing to the fact that some organizations are operated by individuals wherein the capital fluctuates with the demands of the business, and other organizations are operated as branch offices of national chains it is impossible to determine accurately the actual capital employed in the business. For this reason we have adopted the method used in determining earnings of public utilities. This procedure involves the total assets invested less reserves which we have ascertained are $43,697,274.12 and the net earnings, before interest and dividends, amounting to $2,989,916.98. Under this system of computation the average net earnings of licensees in Pennsylvania for the year 1935 were found to be 6.84%. It will be noted that the loans receivable outstanding amounting to $37,484,553.13 represent 85.78% of the total assets used in the computation to determine net earnings. Thus the items of cash on hand, office building owned, equipment, deferred charges and miscellaneous other assets represent less than 15% of the total assets used in the computation of net earnings.

The following table has been prepared to show the net earnings of licensees when classified according to the rates of interest charged. Note is made of the fact that in a great many cases a licensee will have loans on his books at varying rates. In such cases the classification was determined by the rate charged on the greatest percentage of loans outstanding. For example, in the group containing those licensees wherein the predominating rate of charge is three and one-half per cent per month the total of loans outstanding is $11,750,440.32. Of this amount there are loans at rates less than three and one-half percent per month which total over one million dollars.

The group comprising 105 offices charging "aggregate rates" embodies those offices which have voluntarily reduced their rates. In this group varying aggregate rates are charged as well as flat rates of 2½% and 3½. Aggregate rates are those wherein a portion of a loan balance carries one rate and the remainder of the balance carries a different rate. The aggregate rates in effect in this group were 3½% to $150, 2½% over; 3½% to $100, 2½% over; 3½% to $150, 2% over; 3½% to $100, 2% over; 3% to $150, 2% over, and 3% to $100, 2% over. Of the total loans outstanding in these offices $1,300,000.00 carries a flat rate 2½% per month; $3,500,000.00 carries a rate of 3½% on the first $100.00 and 2% on the excess; $1,400,000.00 carries a rate of 3% on the first $100.00 and 2% on the excess. A total of $10,200,000.00 carries the flat rate of 3½%. The tabulations cover the fiscal year ending December 31, 1935. As stated previously the year 1935 marked the beginning of the reduction in interest rates the full effect of which cannot be determined until the reports for the year 1936 are tabulated. These are not available at this time.

TABLE III

Rates Charged	No. of Offices	Loan Balances Outstanding	Percentage Net Earnings
1%	1	$89,057.79	Loss 2.01%
1½%	12	785,333.88	0.20%
2%	75	4,836,212.85	2.88%
2½%	54	2,222,837.60	3.59%
3%	9	475,779.85	7.32
3½%	223	11,750,440.32	3.59
Aggregate	105	17,324,887.34	11.22
Totals	479	$37,484,549.63	6.84%

We have been able to obtain the percentages of net earnings in some of the other states for purposes of comparison. In Table IV we furnish the rate of earnings as reported by certain other states having an act similar to the Pennsylvania Small Loans Act. In some states the rate of interest charged differs from that of Pennsylvania.

TABLE IV

State	Monthly rate permitted	Rate of earnings
Connecticut	3%	8.06
Illinois	3½%-2½%	7.90
Indiana	3% -1½%	7.9
Iowa	3% -2½%	6.6
Massachusetts	3%	7.13
Missouri	2½%	6.77
Rhode Island	3½%	6.7
Virginia	3½%	7.67
Wisconsin	2½%-2%-1%	8.4
Michigan	3½%	8.9

It will be seen from this table that the rate of interest permitted does not determine the earnings of licensees. In those states in which the maximum rates permitted are lower than in Pennsylvania, the licensees restrict their business accordingly. In states in which 2½% is the maximum rate lenders will make practically no loans of less than $100.00. By a system of cost accounting it has been determined that loans of less than $100.00 are unprofitable. Where the maximum rate of interest permitted has been reduced to a point where the earnings on the larger loans does not afford sufficient margin of profit to carry the smaller loans the borrower desiring a loan of $100.00 or less is deprived of the right to obtain a loan.

In Pennsylvania during 1935 a total of 393,964 loans were granted to borrowers. By dividing the total loans granted into the expenses it is found that the average cost for each loan for the year is $20.01. A loan of $100 payable in twelve equal monthly installments earns $18.79 at the average contract rate in Pennsylvania. Thus it will be seen that a licensee would lose money if the average amount of all loans made were $100 or less. Table V will show the classification of loans granted as to amounts and percentages.

Table V

Loan classification	Loans granted No. of accts.	% to total	Loans granted Amount	% to total
$50.00 or less	71,533	18.16	$2,966,173.95	5.49

Totals	393,964		$54,017,802.04

The total number of accounts granted in sums of $100. or less comprises nearly 50% of the total number of loans granted during the year. By way of contrast the volume of loans in this classification comprises less than 25% of the total amount of the loans granted. The interest paid on loans may be compared to the "fare" on a transportation system. The amount of the loan compares with the amount of the load and the time compares with the distance travelled. At a fixed rate the interest is determined by the amount of the loan and the time involved. Likewise at a fixed rate the fare is determined by the amount of the load and the distance. It has been estimated that a railroad loses money on short hauls but since the train is required to stop at all stations the additional fare obtained on the short hauls adds just that much to the revenues. Likewise the additional interest obtained by a lender on loans of less than $100. adds just that much to his revenues even though on a strict cost accounting basis he loses money on loans in this classification. If the revenue on the larger loans is not sufficient to carry the overhead on the smaller loans then the lender must eliminate the smaller unprofitable loans.

The loans granted during the year shown in Table VI have been classified to show the security upon which the loans are made. The percentage of this classification to the total loans granted has been furnished for comparison. It shall be noted that those loans wherein the lender has practically no security whatsoever, which are made up of the household furniture loans and the unsecured note loans, comprise nearly two-thirds of the total amount of the loans granted.

To determine the extent to which licensees operating under the Small Loans Act foreclose on accounts which are delinquent Table VII has been prepared. This table will show the number of accounts and the balances due in which the lender acquired possession of the collateral during 1935. In some cases the borrower voluntarily surrendered the collateral when he found himself unable to keep up the payments of an account. In other cases it was necessary for the lender to institute proceedings to obtain possession of the collateral. In the accompanying table we have separated those accounts in which the collateral was voluntarily surrendered (indicated by V), and those in which the borrower was compelled to surrender the collateral (indicated by C). The percentages given represent the ratio of the loans in each classification to the total loans outstanding in that classification at the end of the year.

The percentages shown in this table may be more readily comprehended if they are stated in a different manner. For example twenty-three accounts in which borrowers were compelled to surrender furniture represent a ratio of one account in every nine thousand accounts outstanding in which the collateral was furniture. The one hundred seventeen accounts in which the borrower voluntarily surrendered his furniture upon default represent a ratio of one account in every eighteen hundred accounts. The accounts in which automobiles were voluntarily surrendered amounting to eight hundred nineteen accounts represent a ratio of one account in every thirty-two accounts outstanding. The five hundred forty cases in which the automobile was replevied represent a ratio of one account in every forty-eight accounts. This comparison readily shows that for practical purposes household furniture has no value whatsoever as collateral on a loan. On the other hand the automobile which is moveable, of which possession can be easily obtained and which is readily salable, provides a desirable security for a loan.

It is rare that a licensee is able to avoid loss by replevin and sale of collateral on a loan. Table VIII has been prepared to show the amount and ratio of the proceeds realized from the sale of collateral in the various classifications. It will be noted that in no instance does the average amount recovered through the sale of collateral equal the full amount of the obligation.

TABLE VIII

There is much difference of opinion as to the amount of loss entailed in the small loans business. In Table IX are shown the loans outstanding and the loss on loans charged off in the last five years. The ratio in the table represents the percentage of the losses charged off to the loans outstanding.

TABLE IX

It was found that many licensees pursue a very conservative policy in charging off uncollectible accounts. This is done so as to show a favorable statement to the board of directors and stockholders. An analysis of delinquent accounts shows that there are many loans now carried as assets which must eventually be charged off as loss. In Table X are shown delinquent loans classified into two groups namely those which are delinquent ten to ninety days and those which are delinquent in excess of ninety days. The ratio shown represents the percentage of the total delinquent loans to the total loans outstanding in the respective classification.

In order to ascertain the purposes for which borrowers obtained loans from lenders operating under the Pennsylvania Small Loans Act, licensees were requested to furnish the Department with a special report showing the purposes of borrowing. These reports covered a period of nine months beginning November 1, 1935 and ending July 31, 1936. In Table XI we have shown the classifications of purposes of borrowing used in the said report and rather than indicate the amount loaned we have shown the ratio which it bears to the total amount loaned during the period covered by the report.

CONCLUSION

For generations the United States has been building up the greatest productive machine the world has ever seen. To make available and to capitalize the inventive genius of our people, the immense wealth of natural resources, the intelligence, industry and ability of the working people, huge credit agencies have been organized, financing the expansion and maintenance of our productive mechanism.

Consumption has been neglected. Through mal-distribution of income and a lack of credit facilities, the purchasing power of consumers has failed to keep pace with the ever expanding production of commodities. This is, no doubt, one of the maladjustments of our economic organization that contributes to the recurring periods of deflation. The country is now emerging from the worst depression in its history, and wisdom and common sense demand that every effort be made to support and enlarge the general purchasing power of the consumer to prevent underconsumption from retarding recovery and perhaps bringing about another deflation.

Under the leadership of the President purchasing power is being protected through the Social Security Act of the Federal Government and related acts of the various states, through maximum hour and minimum wage laws, the increase of workmen's compensation benefits, the elimination of child labor and the sweatshop. But all of these measures, vital and beneficial as they are, cannot alone accomplish the desired end.

Consumers must occasionally borrow to meet unexpected emergencies and to acquire goods and services that can be paid for by low income groups only in installments over a period of time. To that end, consumer credit agencies, lending at reasonable rates of interest, must be developed and expanded.

It is estimated that 85 per cent of the population cannot obtain credit from commercial banks, not because of any lack of honesty or good faith, but because their economic status prevents them from furnishing either the collateral or financial statement of the type required by commercial banks as a basis or security for loans.

Most of this 85 per cent should be able to obtain credit to improve their homes, to purchase necessary goods, to pay physicians' bills and hospital charges, or to meet any of the thousand and one emergencies which constantly confront the average family.

The Legislature, in seeking to provide adequate consumer credit, should be guided by two basic rules: the borrowing public must be protected against extortionate interest charges and the rates allowed must be sufficient to permit the lender to earn a fair return on his invested capital.

Experience has shown that it is impossible to apply the first rule without also employing the second. The Legislature when it enacted the Small Loans Act of Pennsylvania in 1915, as evidenced by the preamble to that statute, realized the futility of attempting merely to prohibit the lending of money at the exorbitant rates charged borrowers prior to the passage of that act.

In order to put a stop to the lending of money at excessive rates it was necessary to invite legitimate capital into the business of lending money to supply the demand which then existed. To attract legitimate capital it is necessary to offer a fair return on such capital commensurate with the risk involved. It was only through the establishment of legally operated small loans companies that the "loan shark" was gradually eliminated. After the borrowers learned that they could obtain loans at a lower rate of interest from legitimate lenders, the "loan shark" was finally forced to withdraw from the state.

Under the Small Loans Act now in force in Pennsylvania licensed lenders are permitted to charge up to 3½ per cent per month on unpaid balances. This figure was adopted by numerous states of the union on the basis of the recommendation of the Russell Sage Foundation many years ago.

At the time such recommendation was made ,the financial situation was entirely different. Bond holders were receiving 6 and sometimes 8 percent on their holdings. Government—federal, state and local—had to pay up to 4 and 5 per cent to obtain loans. Money was scarce and the borrower had to pay dearly for it.

Today that situation does not exist. Borrowers for productive purposes are obtaining funds from the banks and the general public at extremely low rates of interest. Government obligations are selling at a premium and paying the lowest interest rates in history.

It is time that the interest rates on loans for consumption be reduced in accordance with the trend in the money market. With the gradual return to prosperity and the accompanying greater security of employment and income, the risks of lending and the resultant losses should decrease. Finally, the growing experience and better organization in the small loan field should reduce costs and losses and make possible additional concessions to the borrower.

That such a reduction can be made in the maximum interest rate permitted small loan companies is evidenced by the statistics given in the body of this report. The average rate being charged in Pennsylvania at the time the survey by the Department was made, 1935, was 2.89 per cent per month on unpaid balances. (Preliminary reports received indicate that during 1936 this average will be even lower). Of the loans outstanding in 1935, 48.18 per cent were made at a contract rate of less than 3½ per cent per month.

Based on its survey of the small loan field, the Department of Banking recommends to the Legislature that the maximum contract interest rate be lowered. Mindful of the experience of such states as West Virginia, Missouri, Georgia and New Jersey, which lowered too drastically their rates and drove the legitimate lenders out of their jurisdictions, the Department urges that the Legislature move cautiously in making reductions.

Specifically the Department recommends that the Small Loans Act be amended to fix a maximum rate of 3 per cent per month on that part of the unpaid principal balances not in excess of $100. and 2 per cent per month on any remainder of such unpaid principal balances. The Department's investigation indicates that legitimate capital can operate successfully at this rate.

To show the savings which will be effected for borrowers under the proposed schedule the following table has been prepared. The figures shown are the actual charges, calculated on loans for various amounts to be equal monthly installments).

At 3½ per cent ...	$5.69	$11.38	$22.75	$34.13	$45.50	$56.88	$68.25
At 3-2 per cent ..	4.88	9.75	19.50	28.00	35.50	42.58	49.50
Saving	$0.81	$1.63	$3.25	$6.13	$10.00	$14.30	$18.75

Under the present act, a rate of 3½ per cent per month on unpaid balances amounts to 22.75 per cent per year on the face value of the loan, if the loan is repaid in monthly installments, and not 42 per cent as commonly believed. A man borrowing $100 for a year and repaying it in monthly installments, pays $22.75 in interest and not $42. To show how the interest rates on the face value of the loan will compare under the schedule as compared with the present law, the following table is appended. (Calculations are on the basis of a 12-month loan repaid in equal monthly instalments).

At 3½ per cent	22.75	22.75	22.75	22.75	22.75	22.75	22.75
At 3-2 per cent	19.5	19.5	19.5	18.67	17.75	17.0	16.5

It is urged that the Legislature adopt the suggested rate schedule at this session and empower the Department to continue its study of the consumer credit problem. It will be far better for the borrowing public if the Legislature errs at this time on the side of conservatism, rather than to risk the possibility of forcing out of the Commonwealth the legitimate lender to the consumer.

The Department is aware of the fact that the "loan shark" is only too eager to have the legislature set a rate of interest at which the legitimate lender cannot operate. Such action by the Legislature would deprive our people of adequate sources of credit and throw them into the hands of the unprincipled lender.

If the continued study of the problem by the Department shows that the 3-2% rate suggested is still too high, the Department will recommend to the next Legislature a further lowering of the maximum rate permitted.

The Department further asks for authority to issue rules and regulations governing advertising by licensees—a power now exerted only by suasion and without legislative sanction; to issue rules and regulations governing the period of loan contracts and repayment schedules, acceptance of security for loans, seizure and disposal of collateral in case of default, computation of interest charges, records and accounts to be maintained by licensees, and the general operation of the business.

A bill embodying these recommendations will be submitted.

A small loan business by its very nature can cover only a portion of the field of consumer credit. Another important source of consumer credit is the pawnbroker—the "poor man's bank." Pawnbrokers in Pennsylvania now operate under the restrictions of the Usury Act of 1858 which limits interest charges to 6 per cent per annum. But through storage and other fees levied on the helpless borrowers, some pawnbrokers are obtaining interest in excess of 66 per cent per annum.

It is essential for the protection of the public and to foster the operation of the legitimate pawnbroking business that these agencies be brought under the supervision of the state.

The Department of Banking recommends to the legislature that all pawnbrokers be required to obtain licenses from the Secretary of Banking, that maximum interest rates and storage charges be established by law, and that the conduct of the business generally be subjected to such rules and regulations as the Department of Banking may deem necessary for the protection of the borrowing public.

The Department recommends that interest charges on all types of collateral pledged with the pawnbroker shall be limited to 6 per cent per annum or one half of one per cent per month. The only other charges which shall be permitted are storage charges which shall be as follows:

A. 1% per month on jewelry, watches, gems, etc.

B. 2½% per month on other types of collateral.

A minimum storage charge of 25 cents is to be allowed on any loan.

The differing rates on jewelry and other types of collateral are recommended because jewelry has a more constant value, is more readily salable and more easily stored. Consequently the risk to the pawnbroker lending on jewelry is less than on loans made on clothing, musical instruments or other types of goods commonly pledged.

The Department also recommends adequate protection for the borrower against arbitrary sale of his property, insurance to protect pledged goods against loss through fire or theft, and a requirement that if pledged goods are sold the borrower shall receive any surplus resulting from the sale above the amount of the loan plus interest and storage charges due.

A bill embodying these recommendations will be submitted.

Adoption of the legislation recommended above will provide adequate credit facilities for borrowers in the lowest brackets but there is still a gap in the consumer credit set-up. The borrower who needs funds up to $300 can obtain them from either the small loan company or the pawnbroker. But few commercial banks in industrial areas will make loans for less than $1000.

To provide a credit agency for loans up to $1000, the Department recommends to the Legislature the authorization of companies to be known as Consumer Discount Companies. Such organizations shall be licensed by the Secretary of Banking and supervised by him according to rules and regulations prescribed by the Department.

In order to obtain a license the applicants must subscribe to capital in a minimum amount of $25,000 and shall pay an annual license fee of $100.

No limitation shall be set on the type of security which such companies shall require for loans, but the interest rate permitted shall be limited to 8 per cent per annum discounted. This is the equivalent of 1 1/3 per cent per month on unpaid balances.

The Department believes that the establishment of such agencies in Pennsylvania will serve a useful purpose and meet a real need. They should enable prospective purchasers of automobiles and the more expensive types of household furnishings to obtain credit for such purchases at a standardized rate of interest far lower than that generally prevailing throughout the Commonwealth today.

A bill embodying this recommendation will be submitted to the Legislature.

Continuance of recovery in the state and nation is to a large extent now dependent upon the fostering and maintenance of purchasing power. The Legislature of Pennsylvania will contribute greatly to recovery if it will adopt legislation along the lines recommended by the Department.

If the measures enacted are moderate—if they provide adequate protection for the public against unfair interest charges and at the same time make it possible for holders of capital to obtain a fair return upon their investment in consumer credit agencies—we shall see a healthy expansion in this type of business within our borders.

And nothing the Legislature can do for the people of the Commonwealth will be of more lasting benefit than making it possible for the wage and salary worker to obtain adequate credit for legitimate purposes.

Respectfully submitted,

LUTHER A. HARR,
Secretary of Banking.

February 8, 1937.

FIRST REPORT OF LOCAL GOVERNMENT COMMISSION

The Local Government Commission herewith submits the following as its first report.

The Commission was created by the Act of May 29, 1935, P. L. 244, which reads as follows:

An Act creating a Local Government Commission to study and report on functions of local government; their allocation and elimination; the cost of local government and means of reducing it; and the consolidation of local government; and making an appropriation.

Whereas, Local government of small areas was developed in the past principally because of the lack of adequate means of transportation and communication; and

Whereas, The development of local government has not kept step with the development of transportation and communication, and functions of government have been added, from time to time, without proper study or knowledge of the correct allocation of such functions; and

Whereas, The support of local government has become a financial problem, and ways and means should be devised to lessen the existing and ever-increasing cost of local government which is now mainly a burden on real property, and creating a more scientific and simplified system; therefore

Section 1. Be it enacted etc., That a commission is hereby created which shall consist of ten members, five of whom shall be appointed by the President pro tempore of the Senate, and five shall be appointed by the Speaker of the House. The commission shall be known as the "Local Government Commission." The commission shall organize, at the call of the President pro tempore of the Senate, by electing a chairman, vice-chairman, and a secretary. The secretary need not be a member of the commission. The members of the commission shall serve without compensation, but shall be reimbursed for all necessary expenses incurred in the discharge of their duties.

Section 2. It shall be the duty of the commission to study and investigate (a) the functions of local government, their proper allocation and the possibilities of eliminating unnecessary functions, and the duplication and overlapping of functions, (b) the cost of local government, and ways and means of reducing this cost and lessening the burden on local taxpayers, (c) the advisability and feasibility of increasing the areas or changing the boundaries of local governments; of establishing larger units for administration by consolidation of units by cooperative arrangements between them for the performance of certain functions, or by other means; and generally ways and means of organizing a simple system of local government, and to exercise such other functions as may be deemed necessary to carry into effect the spirit and intent of this act.

Section 3. The commission shall have power to recommend tentative plans for the consolidation or reorganization of any units of local government or changes in the boundaries thereof. The commission, after holding public hearings, shall prepare and recommend for adoption a plan or plans of local government consolidation, or changes of political boundaries, for any or all units of local government.

Section 4. The commission shall make a first report to the Legislature of the session of one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven, not later than February first of that year, said report to contain a statement of the progress of its work and such drafts of legislation and constitutional amendments, if any, as it deems necessary to carry into effect the provisions and objectives of this act, and as will, if enacted, enable the commission to complete its work.

Section 5. The commission shall have power to employ and fix the compensation of such experts, stenographers, and assistants as may be deemed necessary to carry out the work of the commission, but due diligence shall be exercised by the commission to enlist such voluntary assistance as may be available from citizens, research organizations, and other agencies in Pennsylvania or elsewhere, generally recognized as qualified to aid the commission with information as to existing conditions or advice as to possibilities in governmental economies or reorganizatior The Legislative Reference Bureau, The Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Internal Affairs, and other agencies of the Commonwealth, as well as all local governments within the Commonwealth, shall give the commission, on request, such information and assistance as may be reasonably accessible.

Section 6. The term "local government," as used in this act, shall be construed to include counties, cities, boroughs, towns, townships, school districts, and poor districts, except counties of the first and second class, and cities of the first, second and second class A.

Section 7. The sum of ten thousand dollars ($10,000), or so much thereof as may be necessary is hereby specifically appropriated to the commision for the two fiscal years beginning June first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-five, for the payment of the expenses of the members of the commission; for the compensation and expenses of the secretary and other appointees of the commission; for printing; for postage, supplies, telephone, telegraph, rent, and miscellaneous expenses; and generally for the purposes of carrying into effect the provisions of this act.

Under the authority of this act, Honorable John G. Homsher, President Pro Tempore of the Senate, appointed the following Senators as members of the Commission: Charles R. Mallery of Blair County; Peter Graff, III, of Armstrong County; George L. Reed of Dauphin County; Henry J. Pierson of Lancaster County; and John S. Rice of Adams County.

The then Speaker of the House, the late Honorable Wilson G. Sarig, appointed the following Representatives as members of the Commission: Samuel A. Weiss of Allegheny County; Thomas W. Barber of Erie County; Paul C. Moomaw of Franklin County; Roy E. Furman of Greene County; and Thomas Weidemann of Delaware County.

Mr. Furman was elected Speaker of the House after the death of Mr. Sarig, but at the request of his colleagues continued to serve as a member of the Commission and maintained his interest in its work.

I

ORGANIZATION

The organization meeting of the Commission was held at the office of the Secretary of the Senate at noon on Tuesday, January 14, 1936. Senator Homsher called the meeting to order, and Senator Mallery was elected Chairman of the Commission, and Representative Weiss, Vice Chairman. At its organization meeting the Commission resolved to have the preliminary work of the Commission conducted by permanent officers of the Legislature, and the following persons were then elected: Secretary in charge of records and correspondence, A. Boyd Hamilton, Secretary of the Senate; Secretary in charge of finances, William P. Gallagher, Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives; Counsel, John H. Fertig, Director of the Legislative Reference Bureau. Later in the year Henry W. Van Pelt, Director of the Bureau of Statistics, Department of Internal Affairs, was elected Statistician. These officers agreed to serve without compensation during such periods as they were officers of the Legislature or connected with other branches of the State Government.

At the preliminary meetings steps were taken to establish contacts with commissions in other states, with educational institutions, and organizations studying local government administration, with persons interested in local government, taxpayers' associations, chambers of commerce and other bodies. At all times the Commission has had the aid of the Department of Internal Affairs, Department of Property and Supplies, Department of Public Instruction, and other branches of the State Government as well as the legislative officers.

Between the date of the organization of the Commission and February 5, 1936, a special committee consisting of Senators Reed and Rice and Representatives Moomaw and Weidemann, in cooperation with the counsel of the Commission and the Secretary of Internal Affairs, Hon. Thomas A. Logue, prepared a tentative program for the Commission in which it outlined at length the subjects which it believed should be discussed at the public hearings held by the Commission. This program was given wide publicity and circulation.

II

The Commission determined to hold a series of public hearings and for this purpose divided the State into seven areas for the convenience of persons desiring to appear before it. Owing to the March floods it was necessary to cancel the hearing fixed for Williamsport, which was later transferred to Harrisburg.

The hearings produced much material of value. They were well attended. In every area, practically every organization concerned with the problems of local government sent representatives. The Pittsburgh hearing lasted until almost midnight and others continued long after the hour set for adjournment. The Commission heard all persons who appeared. Many briefs were filed supplementary to the oral remarks made at the meetings, which were all recorded by reporters. The Commission feels that these hearings were advantageous both to the public and to the members of the Commission.

III

SUB-COMMITTEES

The Commission was divided into three sub-committees for the purpose of considering the three main problems before it. The subjects assigned to these sub-committees and the members of these committees are as follows:

Functions of Local Government—Senator Reed, Representatives Moomaw and Furman.

Finances—Senator Pierson, Representatives Barber and Weidemann.

Consolidation—Senators Graff and Rice, Representative Weiss.

The Chairman served as an ex-officio member of each of the sub-committees.

GENERAL DISCUSSION OF WORK—TENTATIVE POLICIES

The work of the Commission was severely handicapped by the late appointment of its membership, by the March floods, by the two Extraordinary Sessions of the General Assembly during the year 1936, and by the Fall political campaign in which almost all of the members of the Commission were candidates. For these reasons the work of the Commission has not been advanced as far as was hoped at the time of its organization. Nevertheless the testimony taken at the hearings, and the briefs filed by various organizations, were at the request of the Commission digested by Spencer R. Liverant of the Legislative Reference Bureau under the personal direction of the Counsel, and copies of these digests were furnished to each member. These digests evidence scores of problems and innumerable suggestions, not all of which have yet had the full consideration of the Commission due to a lack of time, but many of the recommendations made in the present preliminary report owe their origin to suggestions made at the public hearings and in the briefs filed with the Commission.

Early in its work the Commission laid down several tentative policies: (1) that it would not make any recommendations destroying the existing structure of local government; nor (2) attempt any general revision of the codified local government laws; nor (3) recommend any consolidation of any local government units except with the consent of the electors resident therein.

With the aid of the officers of the Commission, a large amount of material from other states has been assembled, but it has been impossible for the Commission to study this and to check the success of experiments in other states. This will be one of the future tasks of the Commission if it is continued.

Particular mention should be made of the brief prepared by the Pennsylvania Economic Council which contains valuable suggestions for improvements in the administration of local government.

The Commission found very cordial support for its adherence to the long established principles of home rule in local affairs. Pronounced sentiment in favor of retention of the existing system of local government was manifested at all hearings of the Commission. The Commission recognizes the soundness of our traditional principle of local home rule and regards its outstanding feature to be the preservation to local communities of the right to determine local governmental policies. The Commission believes that local government should be protected from proposals which seek to undermine its fundamental nature, and those which seek to use the home rule principle as the cloak to stultify the sound development and improvement of our local governmental system and its adjustment to changing economic conditions. Local government is the training school for the future leaders of the State and Nation.

The Commission believes that Pennsylvania is exceptionally fortunate in that, with the exceptions of the county government and the minor judiciary, few details of local government are rigidly fixed in the Constitution. They were wisely left by the framers of that instrument to be determined and adjusted to changing conditions by the General Assembly. This places upon the General Assembly responsibility to keep itself informed as to the adequacy of the system of local governments, to periodically re-examine the system and to foster its study, improvement and development.

Through the shifting of population and changing economic conditions, an appreciable number of the present units of local government now contain populations too small and taxable resources too limited to maintain an adequate standard of government service. This condition constitutes a problem which is no longer confined solely to the residents of these areas, but which affects all the citizens of the Commonwealth. The Commission believes that the General Assembly should determine the general principles to be followed in the consolidation of units of local government, but it is not at this time prepared to propose any concrete plan, except to announce as a general principle that such consolidation shall be effected only with the consent of the electors of the communities affected.

Increasing demand for the performance of public service by local governments has resulted in the broad delegation of functions, with the result that much overlapping of jurisdiction and service exists. Students of government maintain that such overlapping produces both ineffectual and uneconomical performance of the service. This overlapping of functions also raises questions as to the most satisfactory source of financial support for such functions. The situation requires a thorough going study of the organization of both the state and local units for the performance of each of the major service functions of government, such as law enforcement, maintenance of highways, public health, etc.

The increasing performance of services and the accompanying increase in public expenditures has put on ever increasing responsibility upon the local officials who are in charge of administering the services, determining financial policies, and accounting to the public for the handling of public funds. This makes it essential that the Commission should in the future examine all the present laws affecting the various types of local units with particular reference to (a) the method of selecting local officials and employes; (b) the qualifications and training of officials and employes; (c) the delegation of authority and responsibility for local administration; and (d) the methods of levying, collecting, appropriating, spending and accounting for public funds. These constitute the overhead or administrative functions of local government which must be consistently revised and adjusted to meet changing conditions and the increasing volume of public business.

V

STUDIES OF LOCAL GOVERNMENT

The members of the Commission were given a fund of information by various detailed studies prepared by its Counsel. These studies deal with the following subjects: (a) The Pennsylvania system of local government and its variations; (b) the creation and consolidation of local government units; (c) the annexation of territory; (d) density of population; losses in population and the reasons therefor; and (e) a list of the small population units.

The Commission feels that these studies, which entailed much work and research and embrace material of permanent value, should be made a part of this report. They will aid materially in the future work of the Commission and are of information to the public.

VI

THE PENNSYLVANIA SYSTEM OF LOCAL GOVERNMENTS AND ITS VARIATIONS

The General Structure

Pennsylvania local governments are divided into (a) counties; (b) municipalities; (c) school districts; and (d) poor districts. These four systems are further subdivided and classified.

Municipalities are of three types: (a) cities; (b) boroughs; and (c) townships. Technically the term municipality is not properly applied to townships, which may strictly be termed quasi-municipal corporations. These units, however, are organized solely for the performance of municipal functions.

Counties are divided into eight classes, cities into four classes, townships into two classes, school districts into four classes, and poor districts, co-extensive with counties, into four classes. The poor district classification serves no useful purpose, no legislation having been enacted for particular classes of poor districts.

All classifications are based on population, although, in the case of townships, area also enters into the picture. Here the classification is based on density of population per square mile.

The Supreme Court has held that population furnishes the proper basis for classification.[1] The first classification of cities was made in 1874[2] by the Legislature without constitutional authority. This division of cities into three classes was upheld by the Supreme Court, which recognized the necessity for a reasonable number of classes to enable the Legislature to pass laws fitting the varying conditions brought about by great differences in population.[3] However, when the Legislature attempted to create seven classes of cities in 1887,[4] the Supreme Court held the classification too minute and in effect local and special legislation, prohibited by Article III, Section 7 of the Constitution.[5]

Finally in 1923 the extent of classification in local government was limited by constitutional amendment and the validity of legislation within these classifications assured. This amendment[6] permits eight classes of counties, seven classes of cities, five classes of school districts, and three classes of boroughs. No mention of poor districts is found in the amendment, and the number of classes for townships is not mentioned.

In enacting legislation, classifications may be used only when the legislation regulates an affair of the class of governments to which it applies. Such local government classifications may not be resorted to in other fields. For instance, private corporations may not be regulated by reference to the class of municipalities in which the corporations are located.[7] Nor may a classification system be used where the subject legislated on is one which is general and no inherent distinction should exist in its treatment.[8] Consequently great care must be exercised in applying a classification, for, if the classification is improperly used, the legislation enters the forbidden field of local and special legislation.

CLASSIFICATIONS

1. COUNTIES

Counties were first classified in 1919[9] and this law was later incorporated in the General County Law.[10] The classification is as follows:

	Population
1st class	1,500,000 and over
2nd class	800,000 to 1,500,000
3rd class	250,000 to 800,000
4th class	150,000 to 250,000
5th class	100,000 to 150,000
6th class	50,000 to 100,000
7th class	20,000 to 50,000
8th class	Less than 20,000

A county passes from one class to another automatic ally as its population increases or decreases, as ascertained by the decennial census of the United States.

2. CITIES

Cities were first classified in 1874.[11] The present classification was fixed in 1927[12] as follows:

	Population
1st class	1,000,000 and over
2nd class	500,000 to 1,000,000
2nd class A	135,000 to 500,000
3rd class	Less than 135,000

A city passes from one class to another automatically as its population increases or decreases, as ascertained by the decennial census of the United States.

Cities of the second class A came into being in the following manner. Prior to 1927 Scranton was in the second class along with Pittsburgh. Scranton had only approximately one-fourth the population of Pittsburgh. Legislation desired by the city of Pittsburgh was found, in many instances, to be unsuited to Scranton. A separation of these cities was found necessary and, since Scranton did not wish to enter the third class, the creation of a new class between the second and third classes was resorted to. In distinguishing the new class by the subletter "A," the re-writing of laws relating to the other classes of cities was avoided.

Note should be made here that four cities of the third class have less than 10,000 population, the constitutional minimum for incorporation. These cities were either incorporated by local law prior to 1874, or, if incorporated since, have lost population.

3. TOWNSHIPS

Townships were first classified in 1899.[13] The present classification is found in the First Class Township Law[14] and Second Class Township Law.[15] When this classification was first adopted, the dividing line was fixed at 300 inhabitants to the square mile. Those having at least this population were townships of the first class, and all other townships belonged to the second class. Townships of the second class which reached this per square mile population were required to become townships of the first class.

With the passage of the township codes, referred to above, the classification distinction of 300 per square mile was retained, but the passing from one class to the other was made dependent upon a vote of the people. Thus, not all townships having the required population are in the first class, and some first class townships, through a loss of population, may not have the required population.

4. SCHOOL DISTRICTS

School districts were first classified, and still remain so, by the School Code.[16] This classification is as follows:

	Population
1st class	Over 500,000
2nd class	30,000 to 500,000
3rd class	5,000 to 30,000
4th class	Less than 5,000

A school district passes from one class to another automatically as its population increases or decreases as ascertained by the decennial census of the United States.

5. POOR DISTRICTS

Poor districts co-extensive with counties (i. e., county unit poor districts) were classified by the General Poor Relief Act[17] as follows:

	Population
1st class	Over 1,500,000
2nd class	800,000 to 1,500,000
3rd class	100,000 to 800,000
4th class	Less than 100,000

This poor district classification has never been used and probably serves no useful purpose.

MUNICIPAL VARIATIONS

The one town added to the total units of local government is the incorporated Town of Bloomsburg, created by a local law prior to the Constitution of 1874 which still retains its original charter.

In the release of the Pennsylvania Economic Council enumerating the units of local government by counties, mention is made of two special road districts, one in Potter and the other in Columbia County. The one in Potter County was formerly a township, but, due to the acquisition of most of the lands in the township for State forest purposes, the township became so sparsely settled as to be unable to maintain a township government. By court procedure is was consolidated with another township and therefore is not a separate governmental unit. The one in Columbia County probably results from the peculiar town organization in Bloomsburg. The act incorporating that town[18] provides that this town shall "include all of the territory now included within the limit of Bloom Township and shall possess in addition to the organization and powers of a township, a town organization and government," which the act then provides. It is thus both a township and a town. It is probably the rural portion of this town which is referred to as a special road district.

No special or metropolitan districts with taxing powers exist. Special water districts are authorized by law,[19] but none such have been created.

Within townships of the second class, special lighting, sewer and water districts may be created[20] to serve villages which are not separate governmental units, but have problems distinct from the remainder of the township. Special taxes or assessments may be levied on such districts to construct and support such services. However, the functions of these special districts are administered by the township officers. No separate unit of government is created.

Two or more municipalities may combine in performing certain services. For instance, they may build joint sewer systems and sewage treatment works[21] and operate joint water works.[22] In such cases no new corporate entity is created; no separate taxing power is conferred. The machinery is provided by means of which a common object can be accomplished by joint action. Each municipality levies its own taxes or makes its own assessments and issues its own evidences of indebtedness to pay its share of the cost of construction and operation.

So, also, one municipality may furnish fire protection to another;[23] townships of the second class may join and appoint the same person as road superintendent[24] and may lease from or lend to other municipalities, machinery, road-drags, tools and implements.

SCHOOL DISTRICT VARIATIONS

The School Code of 1911 created each city, borough and township (i. e., each municipality) a school district. When this law was adopted the number of municipal units and school districts was the same. However, provision was made for the creation of independent school districts where exceptional circumstances, such as topography, warranted it. Fifty-three independent districts are now in existence, yet there are only twenty-five more school districts than municipal units. These differences are accounted for by three factors: (1) Union school districts, of which there are two, each embracing two municipal units; (2) recent incorporations of boroughs out of part of the territory of townships where no new school district was created, but the original township district retained. The State Council of Education has authority to prevent the creation of new school districts in such cases; (3) several townships where no school district is organized because of small population. These townships are located in State forest areas.

It is to be noted, however, that in 28 counties the number of school districts is the same as the number of municipal units, and presumably here the system established in 1911 still prevails intact.

One other factor also upsets the rule that each municipality constitutes a school district. Where territory of a township is annexed to a city or borough, it may happen that the annexed territory is not taken over for school purposes. The State Council of Education may prevent such annexations, if the remainder of the township would be seriously handicapped in maintaining its schools. Thus, a township school district may include territory in a city or borough, while the school district of the city or borough does not include all of the municipal territory.

POOR DISTRICT VARIATIONS

In 50 counties of the State, the poor district is co-extensive with the county. In 22 of these 50 counties, the county commissioners are ex-officio the directors of the poor. For all practical purposes the poor districts may, in these 22 counties, be considered as part of the county government, although technically a separate corporation exists. In 27 of these 50 counties separate directors or guardians of the poor are elected, and in the 28th county, Erie, the directors are appointed by the court.

In 15 counties (excluding Philadelphia and Allegheny), several different types of poor districts are found. The largest in number are composed of borough and township districts which are coextensive in territory with the borough or township. This was the original basis for all poor districts. The others are districts specially created by local laws. There are 17 such special districts. Two of these include territory in two counties, but in every case of these 17 districts, except two, the territory of the poor district can be measured by municipal lines. These exceptions are caused by the Jenkins-Pittston District, which includes one ward of the city of Scranton, annexed to that city since that district was created. Of course, this exception disturbs also the Scranton-Dunmore District by the exclusion of a ward of that city.

In Philadelphia County part of the territory of the city constitutes a poor district administered by the Department of Welfare, but certain former boroughs and townships, six in number, which were consolidated into the city for municipal purposes, were not taken over for poor relief purposes[25] and still remain separate districts. Their territory is measured by ward lines.

In Allegheny County the entire county, excepting the city of Pittsburgh, constitutes one district. The city of Pittsburgh is a separate poor district.

GENERAL COMMENT

The Pennsylvania system of local government is not complex. It is in fact simple in its essential features, notwithstanding the variations noted above. Local governments are, however, numerous and without question in excess of the number needed to afford all the conveniences reasonably to be expected. A reduction in number would not reduce the number of tax levies on a particular piece of real estate, except where special or borough and township poor districts would be abolished and the poor tax levied as part of the county tax. Reduction in the number of districts would reduce only the number of tax levying bodies. The principal question involved is whether a reduction in number would reduce administrative costs and operating expenses.

THE CREATION AND CONSOLIDATION OF LOCAL GOVERNMENTS

(A) Counties

Pennsylvania has 67 counties. Sixty-six of these were created by the Legislature through local laws. One, Lackawanna, was created under a general law, passed for this purpose, which has since been repealed. No statutory authority now exists by means of which a new county can be created or two or more counties consolidated. The Constitution prohibits the acomplishment of these objects by local and special legislation.[1]

Some years ago attempts were made to pass general legislation for the creation of new counties. In order to assure some measure of success, it had to be framed with such restrictions and limitations, to assure all counties (except the two which were to lose territory to form the new county) that they were not affected, that a point of order raising the constitutionality of the bill was sustained. This effort has been abandoned. In view of modern means of transportation and communication, it is unlikely that the future will witness further attempts to increase the number of counties.

The Constitution provides[2] that "No new county shall be established which shall reduce any county to less than four hundred square miles, or to less than twenty thousand inhabitants; nor shall any county be formed of less area, or containing a less population; nor shall any line thereof pass within ten miles of the county seat of any county proposed to be divided."

By amendment to the Constitution made in 1928[3] provision was made for the creation of a Metropolitan City-County covering the entire area of Allegheny County, which was to be known as the City of Pittsburgh. All county functions and some of the functions of the municipalities were to be vested in this metropolitan city. A charter based on this amendment was rejected at an election. By amendment to the Constitution in 1933, the first amendment was revised. No legislation has since been adopted to bring into being this Metropolitan City-County.

(B) Cities

All cities created prior to the Constitution of 1874 were inorporated by local act of assembly. No general law for the incorporation of cities existed. The necessity for a general law was established by the Constitution of 1874, which prohibited the passage of any local law incorporating cities, towns or villages, or changing their charters, or erecting new townships or boroughs, or changing township lines, borough limits or school districts.

The Act of 1874[4] first divided cities into three classes and provided for the incorporation of cities of the third class with the minimum population of 10,000 required by the Constitution.[5]

When adopted, the Act of 1874 did not apply to any city of the third class, but provision was made in this act for its acceptance by cities incorporated by local law.[6] Over a period of years, all of these specially created cities have accepted the general law. At present, including incorporations since 1874, there are 44 cities of the third class governed by the same code of laws.

No necessity exists to provide for the incorporation of other classes of cities. A city, having been incorporated, passes into another class by growth or loss of population. Cities of the third class are now incorporated and governed under the Third Class City Law.[7]

A city of the third class is formed by incorporating a borough, town or township, or two or more contiguous boroughs, towns or townships. The territory may all be in the same county, or in two or more contiguous counties.[8] The proceeding may be initiated by resolution adopted by the corporate authorities of the existing municipalities on their own motion, and the resolution must be adopted if 100 qualified electors petition.[9] This resolution is certified to the county commissioners who print a proper question on the ballot at the next general or municipal election.[10] If a majority of those voting in any one of the boroughs, towns or townships affected, vote against the city, the proceeding falls and may not be resurrected for three years.[11] If a city is incorporated, the existing indebtedness is paid by a uniform tax levy throughout the new city.[12]

The consolidation of cities may be effected under the Act of 1906[13] which provides that when two cities are contiguous or in close proximity, they may, with any intervening land other than boroughs, be united and become one by annexing and consolidating the lesser city and intervening land with the greater city. The proceeding may be initiated by the council of either city, or by two per centum of the registered voters of either city by petition to the Court of Quarter Sessions. The court fixes a time for hearing, giving proper notices. Exceptions to such petitions may be filed. If the court finds the petition regular, it orders an election to be held. All the electors in the territory comprised in the proposed consolidated city may vote. A majority vote in each city and the intervening land is required to effect the consolidation. Under an Act of 1915[14] when cities are consolidated, the existing and floating debts of the constituent units are paid by the consolidated city through a flat tax rate. Under the prior act each unit paid its own indebtedness.

(C) Boroughs

The first boroughs were incorporated by local law. In 1834[15] a general law was adopted for the incorporation of boroughs. This act as supplemented remained the law until the adoption of the first General Borough Law.[16] However, until 1874 the incorporation of boroughs by local law continued. Some boroughs so incorporated have never accepted the general law and still retain their special charters.

Under the Act of 1834, a borough could not be incorporated with less than 300 population, but the Borough Law of 1851[17] eliminated this requirement and allowed incorporations without regard to population. This is the present law.

Boroughs are now incorporated under the General Borough Law of 1927.[18] Application in writing for the incorporation of a town or village is made to the Court of Quarter Sessions, signed by a majority of the freeholders residing within the limits of the proposed borough. The application must set forth the name of the proposed borough and a description of its boundaries. Notice of the filing of the application is given and exceptions may be filed.

Discretion is vested in the court to grant or refuse the application or to order a further investigation. An appeal to the Superior Court from the decree of the court incorporating a borough may be had by any three persons aggrieved.

It is in point here to say that villages are not recognized as governmental units. They are small built-up communities in townships and are governed as part of the township.

Where a city of the third class was formed by joining together two or more boroughs, any one of such former boroughs may separate from the city and be re-established as a borough.[19] A petition signed by not less than one-third of the registered electors of the territory formerly comprised within the limits of such borough is presented to the Court of Quarter Sessions, which appoints three commissioners to investigate the facts and report on the expediency of granting the prayer in the petition. If the report is favorable an election is ordered. If a majority of the electors in such former borough vote favorably, the court decrees the separation.

Boroughs may have their charters amended and revert to the township from which taken.[20] A petition to the Court of Quarter Sessions signed by two-thirds of the taxable inhabitants is required. Notice of the filing of the petition is given and exceptions may be filed. A hearing is held and if the court finds the conditions prescribed by law have been compiled wtih and deems it expedient to grant the prayer of the applicants, it does so and the borough government ceases.

Two or more boroughs in the same or in different counties may be consolidated.[21] Consolidation proceedings may be initiated by the councils or by one hundred electors of each borough. The proceeding is commenced with an agreement entered into by the several boroughs, but if an agreement cannot be reached, the matter may be taken to the Court of Quarter Sessions by ten per centum of the qualified electors of each borough. In either event an election is held and a majority vote in each borough is required to effect the consolidation. The existing indebtedness is paid in such manner as is set forth in the agreement or decree of the court.

(D) Townships)

The first general law for the creation of townships was adopted in 1803.[22] In 1834 [23] a second act supplying the former was passed, which in turn was incorporated in the General Township Law of 1917.[24] The law for the creation of townships of the second class is now found in the Second Class Township Law.[25]

Townships of the second class may be created (a) out of parts of two or more townships of the second class located in the same county; (b) by the division of a township of the second class into two townships; (c) by the consolidation of two or more townships located in the same county.

To create a township of the second class a petition is presented to the Court of Quarter Sessions, signed either (a) by owners of real property representing at least 25 per cent of the assessed valuation of the township or townships affected; (b) by registred voters equal in number to at least 25 per cent of the highest vote cast for any township office at the last election. In the case of consolidations, petitions signed by a majority of the supervisors of each township may also be presented. When the petition is presented, it is confirmed nisi and, if no exceptions are filed within thirty days, it is confirmed absolutely. An election is then ordered by the court. A majority of all votes cast in each township affected is required to create a new township.

If a township of the first class no longer has the required population of three hundred to the square mile, it may be re-established as a township of the second class. This re-establishment is to be accomplished in the manner provided by the laws governing townships of the first class. However, the latter laws do not appear to be sufficiently definite to accomplish this purpose. Irrespective of population, a first class township may be reestablished as a second class township. This proceeding may be initiated by the township commissioners or by 25 per cent of the qualified electors. A vote on the question is taken and the future classification determined by this vote.[26]

Townships of the first class were first provided for by the Act of 1899.[27] They are now created and governed by the First Class Township Law.[28]

A first class township is created from a second class township when it is determined from the United States census or by a special enumeration made by a commissioner appointed by the court that the population density is three hundred per square mile. The creation is not automatic. An election is held to determine whether the voters desire to create a first class township.

First class townships may also be created by the division of a township or by the consolidation of two or more such townships. The procedure in such cases is the same as outlined in the case of the creation of townships of the second class.

(E) School Distrits

Each city, borough or township which is created becomes automatically a new school district, except where the municipal creation would take part of an existing school district and leave the remaining part of such district a fourth class district. In such cases the old district is to remain intact unless the State Council of Education approves the severance of the existing district.[29]

Two or more school districts may be consolidated to form a union school district. Each district proposing to join must file a petition with the county commissioners asking that the question of forming a union school district be submitted to the voters. A majority of the directors of each district must sign the petition. A majority vote in each district is required to form a union district.[30]

(F) Poor Districts

In the 50 counties where poor districts are co-extensive with the county, municipal creations have no effect on the poor district. The same is also true of the special poor districts created by local law. The lines of these districts remain rigid and are not affected by municipal creations. However, in those counties and areas where the old system of borough and township districts prevail the creation of a new borough or township would bring into being a new poor district.

County poor districts can be formed under existing laws,[31] but the more common practice is to amend the General Poor Relief Law [32] by removing the exception of a county from the sections creating county unit districts.

Two or more conveniently located poor districts may act together in providing for the relief of the poor, but no consolidation actually happens in such cases except in the ownership of real estate and in administration. Separate tax levies and indebtedness would exist.[33]

Provision was, however, made in 1935 [34] for the consolidation of poor districts where they are not co-extensive with counties. Two procedures are provided. The first is by joint agreement which may be initiated by the directors or overseers or by 100 electors of each district. An election is then held to ascertain whether the consolidation shall be effected. A majority vote in at least two of the districts is required to effect the consolidation. The second procedure is by decree of the Court of Quarters Sessions upon petition sgned by electors equal to at least two per cent of the highest vote cast for any office within the territory of each poor district at the last general election. Notice of such petitions is given and a hearing held. The court enters a decree as it deems proper. The debts of the constituent units are paid by a uniform tax levy on the consolidated unit.

(G) Reasons for the Creation of Municipal Governments

The underlying factors which brought into being the numerous units of local government are no doubt many. Necessity for the incorporation of the existing cities and the larger boroughs is apparent. They have a great many problems distinct from the rural districts surrounding them, and no community of interests. The reasons for the incorporation of many of the smaller boroughs no doubt rest on the inability or unwillingness of the township government to provide water, sewers, electric light and fire protection for these built-up communities, on pride in having a separate and higher form of government, on the control a particular industry had over a large part of the property within the limits of the corporation, on the development of summer and religious colonies, and because a sufficient percentage of the township moneys was not expended in the built-up section. Townships of either class now have sufficient powers to provide all the services needed in any small built-up community. Thus, one of the main factors is removed. The creation of new boroughs will necessarily be retarded in the future.

The creation of townships no doubt resulted in the main from lack of means of communication and difficulty of transportation. Residents of rural communities wanted a municipal government sufficiently small in area so as to have reasonable access to the township supervisors, assessor, tax collector, justice of the peace and constable. This factor is no longer of great consequence, due to the telephone and automobile.

It is likely that the maximum has been reached in the number of units of local government, and that, even under existing law, the tendency will be towards lessening the number by consolidation and annexation.

VIII

ANNEXATION OF TERRITORY

The act creating the Local Government Commission expressly provides that its powers shall not extend to cities of the first, second and second A classes. Consequently the laws for annexation of territory to these cities need not be reviewed here. The laws affecting each of the other classes of units will be considered in turn.

CITIES OF THE THIRD CLASS

A borough having less than 10,000 population, or a township or part of a township, may become annexed to a city of the third class. The borough council may pass an ordinance for annexation whenever three-fifths of the taxable inhabitants petition. In the case of a township, three-fifths of the taxable inhabitants of the township or part of the township to be annexed present a petition to the city council, accompanied by the written consent of a majority in interest and number of property owners. Where no taxable inhabitants reside in the part of the township to be annexed, the petition may be presented by three-fifths of the property owners in number and interest. The annexation is effected by an ordinance of the city and no electoral vote is taken. An appeal may, however, be taken to the Court of Quarter Sessions, and finally to the Supreme Court, but the appeal is limited to the regularity of the proceedings.[1]

Outlying lots in a township may be annexed under a separate procedure. A majority of the taxable inhabitants petition the Court of Quarter Sessions, accompanied with the written consent of a majority of the owners of property in number and interest. The area of the outlying lots may not exceed 100 acres. The petition is also accompanied by the petition of the city council containing its resolution approving the annexation. The court appoints three viewers who make a report and if the annexation is approved and no appeal is taken, the court enters a decree of annexation. The appeal is limited to the regularity of the proceeding.[2]

Territory in a borough may be detached and annexed to a contiguous city or to a city separated from the borough territory by a stream. A petition signed by a majority of the freeholders in the borough territory proposed to be detached is presented to the borough council and if the borough council finds that the assessed value of the territory is not in excess of five per cent of the assessed value of the entire borough, it may by ordinance detach the territory, subject to the acceptance of the detached portion by the city. The annexation is then made by ordinance. It is apparent that this act was passed for a special case.[3]

BOROUGHS

The General Borough Law[4] provides three different methods for the annexation of territory and two for the detachment of territory. The first procedure is by a petition to the Court of Quarter Sessions signed by a majority of the freeholders of the borough. The petition is laid before the grand jury. If the grand jury approves the annexation, it so certifies to the court which, at the succeeding term, confirms the petition. The court may order further investigation and, if it deems it proper, enters a decree of annexation.[5]

The same procedure may be used to detach territory which by decree of the court becomes a new township, a new borough or part of an adjacent borough.[6] It appears that this procedure is archaic and probably first designed to meet some specific case.

Territory located in the same county as a borough may be annexed by petition to the Court of Quarter Sessions which must also be approved by a grand jury. If the territory is in a second class township, the petition must be signed by a majority of the freeholders residing in the territory, and if in a first class township, by two-thirds of the freeholders. The court may, after grand jury approval, enter a decree of annexation.[7]

If the territory to be annexed is in another county, a similar petition is filed but grand jury approval is not required. Instead one commissioner is appointed by each of the courts of the several counties and these commissioners appoint a third one. The commissioners make a report to each court and if the commissioners approve and each court approves, the annexation is made.[8]

The most customary method to annex territory to a borough is by petition to the borough council. The petition must be signed by a majority or two-thirds of the freeholders residing in the territory to be annexed, depending whether it is in a second or first class township. An annexation ordinance is thereupon adopted. The ordinance and a plot of the territory is filed in the Court of Quarter Sessions. This procedure may be used whether the lands to be annexed are in the same or in different counties.[9]

SCHOOL DISTRICTS AND POOR DISTRICTS

The territory of a school district changes as the municipal district is changed by annexation of territory, unless the State Council of Education refuses its consent to the annexation. In the latter case the former school districts remain intact.

County poor districts and those created by local law are unaffected by the annexation of municipal territory. Where the borough and township poor district system prevails, the territory of the poor district would shift with the municipal territory as annexations are made.

POPULATION FACTORS

The total land area of Pennsylvania is 44,832 square miles and the density of population, based on the 1930 census, is 214.8 per square mile. Pennsylvania ranks fifth among the States in population density, being exceeded by Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Connecticut and New York. The extremes of population density in the United States range from 644.3 in Rhode Island to 0.8 in Nevada.

DENSITY OF POPULATION

In Pennsylvania the density of population, by counties, varies from 15,241.9 per square mile in Philadelphia to

POPULATION LOSSES

Nineteen Pennsylvania counties show a loss of population in the ten years between the census of 1920 and 1930. and five of these were counties having less than 20,000 inhabitants. The counties losing population and the percentages of loss are as follows:

Counties	1920	1930	Percentage Loss
Forest	7,477	5,180	30.7
Sullivan	9,520	7,499	21.2
Potter	21,089	17,489	17.1

Clearfield	103,236	86,727	16.0

Somerset	82,112	80,764	1.6
Juniata	14,464	14,325	1.0

It is to be noted that in a number of instances the loss of population in the foregoing counties has been progressive for a number of years, and in the case of four counties the decline has been continuous since 1880. This important question is raised—How much longer can some of these counties continue to maintain county government if this tendency continues?

The following table will illustrate these progressive losses in population, the first entry showing the peak of population:

In the other counties, except three, the growth of population has been steady and the 1930 census shows the peak of population. The three exceptions are Pike, Wayne and Wyoming Counties. The following table indicates that the peak of the population in these counties occurred some decades ago, but also that a recovery from the extreme low point is indicated by the last census:

Counties	1880	1890	1900	1910	1920	1930
Pike	9,663	9,412	8,766	8,033	6,818	7,483

Wyoming	.....	.....	.....	17,152	15,509	14,101	15,517

ECONOMIC REASONS FOR POPULATION SHIFTS

Taking into consideration the principal industries in the counties showing losses, it is apparent that the decreases in population are caused by economic conditions in three industries, to which a fourth factor or State policy contributes. These industries are agriculture, bituminous coal and lumber. Oil may have some effect, also, in several counties, although some of the principal oil centers like McKean, Warren and Butler Counties continue to show population increases. The fourth factor entering this picture is the development of State forests. The acquisition of large acreages by the State lessens the use of lands by private enterprise and results in the movement of population from these districts. Susquehanna, Bradford, Juniata, Perry and Tioga Counties are excellent illustrations of the tendency in agriculture; Fulton, Cameron and Forest Counties illustrate counties where private lumbering industries have lessened and much of the land has been acquired as State forests; while Jefferson, Clearfield, Indiana, Huntingdon and Somerset Counties are largely influenced by lack of markets for bituminous coal. Potter and Cameron Counties have probably been affected most by State forest areas.

In two of the counties which have shown signs of recovery, the growth of population is probably due to the development of summer resorts and recreation centers which require a permanent population for maintenance. This also stimulates agriculture because summer business affords a ready market for agricultural crops. It likewise means increased merchandising and automobile business. The factors which resulted in a 10 per cent population increase in Wyoming County between 1920 and 1930 are partly the summer resort business and partly a spread of population from the neighboring thickly populated counties of Luzerne and Lackawanna.

It may be interesting to note here that the smallest county populations in Pennsylvania since 1870 were reported that year, in Forest and Cameron Counties ,as 4,010 and 4,273 respectively. These counties still remain the smallest in the State. Forest County reached a peak of 11,039, and Cameron of 7,644. The decline from the peak in the case of Forest County is 53 per cent and in the case of Cameron County 31 per cent.

The following table indicates the total number of municipal units in each of the counties showing losses of population, and the number of units showing losses and gains between 1920 and 1930:

Counties	Total Units	Units Showing— Losses	Gains	No Change
Forest	9	8	1	0
Sullivan	13	11	2	0
Potter	30	28	2	0
Jefferson	34	25	9	0

Bedford	38	19	19	0
Huntingdon	48	31	17	0
Juniata	17	10	7	0

The above table is not entirely accurate on account of the incorporation of boroughs during this period or the annexation of territory. This may introduce a new unit of government where no comparison can be made or decrease the population of one and increase that of another. Instances of that sort, however, are few in number and do not alter the general picture. This table shows that the loss of population in these counties is not spotty, but prevails in most of the local units. In not one of these nineteen counties does the number of units showing gains exceed the number showing losses and in only two of the same counties. Bedford and Susquehanna, is the number of gains equal or approximately equal to the number of losses.

SMALL GOVERNMENT UNITS

A surprisingly large number of small governmental units exists, whose ability to provide adequate services for their residents at reasonable costs may well be questioned. Nine boroughs in the State have less than 100 population, 115 boroughs have less than 300, and 228 boroughs have less than 500. Nine townships have less than 100 population and 66 townships have less than 300. The names of these boroughs and townships, with their counties, are shown in the tables which follow.

PRELIMINARY RECOMMENDATIONS—GENERAL COMMENTS

The preliminary findings and recommendations of the Commission for submission to the present session of the Legislature are necessarily sketchy, due to the short time the Commission has had to study the matters and subjects referred to it. It has been unable to make the researches required and to ascertain the experience in other states where similar studies have been undertaken and experiments made. Consequently it could do nothing more than to scratch the surface.

It also happens that the jurisdiction of the Commission overlaps with that of other committees organized to consider particular fields of local government, notably the Legislative Committee to compile information as to the present cost of and functioning of the school system, the Committee on Public Assistance and Relief appointed by His Excellency, the Governor, to study the administration of the various forms of public assistance, and the Joint Legislative Committee to Prepare a Permanent Plan for the Administration of Unemployment Relief.

Your Commission is of the opinion that the special delegating of these functions to other committees justifies its withdrawal from these fields, except so far as the endorsement of a general policy may be concerned.

PUBLIC ASSISTANCE

The Commission recommends that all forms of public assistance, in which the State and local governments presently participate and which require the expenditure of public moneys, be consolidated and financed principally by the Commonwealth. The Commission submits no legislation on the subject.

HIGHWAYS

1. Liability of State for Snow Removal. The Commission believes that as soon as feasible the Commonwealth should be made responsible for snow removal on all main State highways.

2. State-Aid for Local Highways. The Commission believes that the system of aiding townships of the second class in maintaining roads not on the State Highway System, should be extended to cities, boroughs, towns and first class townships, but that, in the case of the larger of these units, direct grants should be made from the Motor License Fund for expenditure by these units under a system of strict accounting, and that a commensurate reduction in the tax on real estate should then be effected.

MAINTENANCE OF MENTAL PATIENTS

The Commission recommends that the entire cost of the maintenance of mental patients be assumed by the Commonwealth, and that counties and poor districts be relieved of contributions towards this maintenance. Here is an instance of overlapping functions. The mentally defective are wards of the State which should assume full responsibility. The Commission recommends that all county and poor district institutions, erected and dedicated to the treatment and maintenance of mental patients, deemed proper for such purposes by the Department of Welfare, be turned over to the State for future management, and the liability of the State to contribute towards the maineanance of mental patients presently maintained in such institutions be eliminated. Legislation to accomplish this object will be submitted.

COSTS IN CRIMINAL CASES

In many penal laws provision is made for the payment of fines, and, in some cases, of forfeited bail to the Commonwealth. The county, however, is responsible for the costs of trial and the maintenance of prisoners in such cases. The Commission deems this practice unjust to the county and recommends that an allowance be made by the Commonwealth in all such cases, from the fines and forfeited bail collected, to relieve the county from this liability. Legislation to accomplish this object will be submitted.

COUNTIES

The framework of the county is presently rigidly fixed in Article XIV of the Constitution, Section 1 of which enumerates sixteen county officers, at least thirteen of whom must be elected in each county. The Constitution also permits the creation of new counties (Article XIII), although no legislative machinery exists to carry this provision into effect.

The Commission recommends that Article XIV of the Constitution and related provisions in other articles be entirely revised to prohibit the future creation of new counties, to eliminate all county officers as constitutional officers, except the three commissioners, a controller and a district attorney. In this way the hands of the Legislature may be freed to organize the county government upon such plan as it deems most feasible, and at the same time abolish the system of compensating any county officer by fees whether for the performance of county or State functions.

The Commission believes that by a reorganization of the county, governmental costs may be materially reduced. A proposed Constitutional Amendment will be submitted on this subject.

ELECTIONS

1. Election Costs. In 1909 the election system of Pennsylvania was radically changed. Elections in odd-numbered years (municipal elections) were provided for the election of local officers. Elections in even-numbered years (general elections) were provided for the election of State and National officers. In 1913 the Uniform Primary Law was extended to State officers and a primary election provided in each year for the nomination of party candidates to run at the elections in November. At one primary local candidates are nominated, at another State and National candidates. When this separation was made the election costs were left saddled on the counties which must now pay the expenses to provide the State and the Federal Government with its officers. When the first primary act was passed in 1906, provision was made to have the State assume the costs of this election, but in 1913 this State contribution was abolished. The Commission recommends and submits legislation making the Commonwealth liable for all costs of primaries and general elections in even-numbered years.

2. Pay for Election Officers. At present the pay of election officers is fixed by State law. A uniform pay is provided for all counties except Philadelphia and Allegheny. Special provision has been made for these latter counties. The Commission is of the opinion that conditions vary in counties, that a uniform pay should not prevail and that this pay should be fixed by the county, taking into consideration local conditions and that the pay for municipal and general elections be the same. It submits legislation to accomplish this purpose.

3. Code of Election Laws. The Legislative Reference Bureau has drawn a Code of Election Laws which is to be submitted to the General Assembly. The Commission recommends the enactment of this Code in order to clarify and simplify the law, and also recommends that in the enactment of this Code permanent registration be provided for all districts in the whole Commonwealth.

TAXATION

1. County Assessment Boards. The Commission recommends the creation of county assessment boards in all counties, similar to those now existing in counties of the second and third classes. In counties of the sixth, seventh and eighth classes, such boards should be composed of the county commissioners, but in counties of the fourth and fifth classes separate boards should be created, whose salaries should be fixed by the county salary board. The county assessment boards should be authorized to make assessments for all purposes in the counties, including the assessment for city purposes.

2. State Fund to Bond Tax Collectors and Other Officers. A great deal of difficulty has been experienced by tax collectors in securing surety company bonds, or where surety companies agree to write such bonds the premiums demanded by bonding companies are deemed exorbitant. Many companies insist on basing their premiums on the whole amount of the duplicate without reference to the amount of liability on the bond itself or the penal sum in the bond. The condition has become so serious that the Commission believes the time has arrived when the State should undertake the furnishing of such bonds to tax collectors, and at the same time make provision for the carrying of the liability of all State and local officers who are required to give bond. The Commission believes that such legislation should be made optional. It submits legislation on this subject.

3. Synchronizing Fiscal and Tax Years. Fiscal and tax years of local governments are not uniform and are, in most cases, not synchronized. The fiscal year of municipalities, counties and school districts of the first class, coincides with the calendar year, while that of the other three classes of school districts runs from July to July. The tax years of cities and school districts of the first class run with the fiscal year, but those of counties, boroughs, townships, poor districts and the other three classes of school districts run from July. The result of that, as to these latter districts, about seven months of the fiscal year have expired before the tax moneys levied for that year become available. This results in much temporary borrowing necessitating the payment of interest. Appreciable savings can be effected if the fiscal and tax years are synchronized. The Commission recommends this be done and that the years be made to correspond with the fiscal year of the Commonwealth which runs from June to June. The legislation to be submitted will apply to all units of local government except cities of the first, second and second A classes, and school districts of the first class. This change of fiscal years will necessitate a temporary adjustment of tax levies. Either an extra levy for a five months' period, or an annual levy for a seventeen months' period will be required. This latter provision is incorporated in the bill submitted.

4. Tax Limitation. Much sentiment exists principally among real estate interests for an overall limitation on the rate of tax on real estate. Many tax experts and many of those concerned with local government management deem a rigid constitutional limitation unwise. On the other hand, there are those in these classes who believe such limitations to be proper and that new sources of revenue will be found to fill the gap. The experience of some states which have adopted such limitations has not been satisfactory due, no doubt in part, to the low mill rate limitation initially adopted. The Commission has not been able to complete its study of this question and is consequently not in a position to make a final recommendation. Realizing, however, that this question will come before the 1937 Session of the General Assembly, the Commission recommends that no bill be adopted which would fix an overall limitation of less than twenty mills, exclusive of the rates required for debt service. Any lower overall rate, without greatly increased State subsidies, would in the opinion of the Commission handicap many communities in extending proper services and protection to their citizens. The limitations found in other states vary from 10 to 40 mills on true value. Any rate lower than 20 mills would probably result in some of the experiences found in Ohio, where appropriations in excess of revenue were sometimes made, resulting in operating deficits, floating indebtedness and finally deficiency bonds. There is also some evidence that sinking funds were used by certain municipalities for current expenditure. It is also to be noted that in three states (Colorado, Georgia and Oregon) proposed overall limitation constitutional amendments were defeated by the voters last November, while in Nevada and Washington present limitations of 15 and 40 mills were continued.

5. Centralized County Tax Collections. In 1921 the Tax Law Revision Commission created by the Legislature of 1919, proposed the establishment of a centralized county system for the collection of all local taxes through the office of the county treasurer. The Pennsylvania Tax Commission which was created in 1923 and which reported preliminarily in 1925, and finally in 1927, endorsed the recommendations of the earlier commission in this field. Bills to provide such system have been before the Legislature practically every session since 1921, but have failed of passage. The Commission has not completed its studies and is not prepared to make any recommendation at this time.

6. Income Tax. In the case of Kelly v. Kalodner, 320 Pa. 180, the Supreme Court held unconstitutional the 1935 Income Tax Law on the theory that a tax on income derived from property (unearned income) was a property tax, and that, because the rate imposed by the act was graduated, the tax was not uniform as required by Section 1, Article IX, of the Constitution. The court did not decide the question whether a graduated tax on salaries and wages alone (earned income) was an excise tax or whether our constitutional clause on uniformity applied to excise taxes. So long as Pennsylvania adheres to its personal property tax, particularly at its present combined State and local rate of 8 mills on actual value, the imposition of an additional tax on income derived from stocks and bonds does not appear justified. The passage of an income tax at this time is not feasible but the Commission recommends the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution to make possible the enactment of a graduated income tax, and also recommends the adoption of an income tax law as early as possible which will provide for the return of the revenues therefrom in relief of real estate taxation for school purposes. Such a constitutional amendment is now pending in the Legislature.

7. Tax Collections by Appointed Treasurers. If no centralized system for the collection of taxes is established, the Commission recommends the adoption in boroughs and second class townships of a system of collecting taxes through the office of the borough and township treasurer, and that such an officer be appointed jointly by the municipal and school authorities to act for both bodies, in the collection of taxes and as treasurer, the compensation of such treasurer to be fixed by the appointing power. Some saving could no doubt be effected by such a consolidation. Legislation to accomplish this purpose will be submitted.

8. Fidelity Bonds for Tax Collectors. In an effort to reduce the cost of bonds for tax collectors, the Commission recommends that all of the tax collectors bonding laws be revised and that tax collectors be required to give only fidelity bonds. Legislation to accomplish this purpose and to clarify conflicting amendments in the Third Class City Code on this subject will be submitted.

9. Tax on Real Estate of Public Utilities. The Commission calls attention to the exemption from taxation of the real estate of public utilities essential to the exercise of their corporate franchises. This exemption does not result from legislation, but from a long line of judicial decisions having their origin prior to the Constitution of 1874. These decisions hold that the taxing acts did not evidence any intent to make such real estate taxable. By special act certain railroad property in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh is made taxable. The Commission makes no recommendation on this subject, but calls attention to the situation.

INDEBTEDNESS

In many local governments inadequate sinking funds are common, and the use of sinking fund moneys for other purposes is not unknown. Several states now deny to local governments the power to issue bonds except in serial form. The Commission believes this to be a sound business practice because it prevents the necessity of accumulating sinking funds, the tax funds of the particular year, levied for debt service, being applied to the payment of interest for the year, and to the retirement of indebtedness maturing during the tax year. The Commission submits legislation on this subject.

MERIT SYSTEM

People no longer accept the doctrine that "anybody can work for the government." Today services performed by local governments are technical and their proper performance require the same training and experience as in private business. The spoils system is frequently recognized as the greatest handicap to the efficient and economical conduct of local government. The Commission believes that the merit system should be further extended in the field of local government.

VITAL STATISTICS

The statistical records of births and deaths are collected by local registrars appointed by the Secretary of Health. They are compensated by fees, fifty cents for each birth and death recorded. The State pays these registrars' fees in cities of the first and second class, but in the remainder of the Commonwealth, they are a charge on the county. The records are preserved in the Department of Health and the State retains all fees collected for certified copies of these records. The Commission can find no justification for this overlapping of functions and the imposition of registrars' fees in most localities on counties, and recommends that these costs be assumed by the State. Legislation to accomplish this purpose will be submitted.

JOINT PURCHASING

The Commission has not had the time to investigate laws of other states providing for joint purchasing by units of local government. It seems reasonable to the Commission, however, that savings can be effected where quantity buying is made possible. It therefore recommends and submits legislation in permissive form to enable two or more units to combine their purchases under a single cotract.

BOROUGHS

The factual material compiled and printed in this report shows that there are 228 boroughs in the State having a population of less than 500. Every year witnesses the creation of additional boroughs having a very small population and limited resources, insufficient, in the opinion of the members of the Commission, to function efficiently. While the Commission has announced as a policy that no unit of local government should be abolished without the consent of the electors thereof, it believes it is fully justified in announcing as a principle that no additional units of local government, without a definite population, should be created in the future.

1. Incorporation. The Commission therefore recommends that the future creation of boroughs in second class townships be prohibited unless the area to be incorporated has a population of at least 2,000. The Commission further recommends that the future creation of boroughs within the limits of first class townships be prohibited. Townships of this class have substantially the same powers as boroughs and can provide equally as efficient services. Legislation to accomplish this object will be submitted.

2. Surrender of Charters. A borough may now surrender its charter upon petition of two-thirds of its taxable inhabitants. No election is held but the surrender is effected by court decree. The territory of the borough returns to the township from which taken or may be created a new township. The Commission recommends that the surrender be made possible by a vote of the people initiated by petition signed by five per cent of the voters, and that if the charter is surrendered, the territory return to its original township, the real estate in the area of the former borough to become responsible for the payment of any outstanding borough indebtedness. Legislation to accomplish this object will be submitted.

3. Consolidation of Boroughs. Proceedings to consolidate boroughs may be initiated by councils or electors, after which a joint agreement of consolidation is entered into to effect the consolidation, and if an agreement is not arrived at, a court procedure may be begun by ten per cent of the electors, the court decreeing the terms of the consolidation. In either event, the question of the ultimate consolidation is left to the decision of the electors. The Commission recommends that the number of petitioners required where a court procedure is necessary be reduced from ten per cent to two per cent. Legislation to accomplish this object will be submitted.

4. Re-establishment of Boroughs. Where a city is formed by joining two or more boroughs, one of the original boroughs may secede and again become a borough. The Commission recommends that this procedure be abolished Legislation to accomplish this object will be submitted.

5. Annexation of Territory. A number of different procedures are now found in the borough law for the annexation of territory. Some of these are archaic and seldom if ever used. It is suggested that these, provided for in sections 401 to 408 and 425 to 438 of the Code of 1927, be repealed. Legislation to accomplish this object will be submitted.

6. Budget. Most units of local government are now required to prepare budgets on forms provided by the Department of Internal Affairs. This procedure, however, is not mandatory in boroughs. The Commission recommends and submits legislation to provide for the same budget and financial reports by boroughs as by other units of local government.

TOWNSHIPS OF THE FIRST CLASS

1. Creation of Townships. Two new townships may be created by the division of an existing township of the first class. This procedure makes possible the increase of the number of these governmental units. The Commission recommends that this procedure be abolished and submits legislation to accomplish this purpose.

2. Consolidation of Townships. Where two townships are to be consolidated the procedure must be initiated by (a) the owners of 25 per cent of the assessed value of real estate, (b) of 25 per cent of the registered voters, or (c) by the majority of the township commissioners of the units contemplating consolidation. It is suggested that procedures (a) and (b) be eliminated and five per cent of the electors be enabled to initiate the proceeding. The initiation should be made simple since the voters at an election decide the question. Also in the present procedure the petitioners may be held liable for costs in case the election is against consolidation. The Commission recommends that these costs should be paid by the townships. It submits legislation to accomplish this object.

3. Classification of Townships. Some sentiment appears to exist for the further classification of townships, particularly of those now in the first class. The Constitution permits the classification of townships and imposes no limit on the number of classes. The courts would probably not object to the creation of an additional class for the benefit of the few very large townships having more population than many of the third class cities. The Commission makes no recommendation on this question at this time.

TOWNSHIPS OF THE SECOND CLASS

1. Creation of Townships. The Commission recommends that all procedures for the creation of new townships be abolished except the one for creation of a new township by consolidation of two or more existing townships. It also recommends that five per cent of the electors be permitted to initiate consolidation proceedings and that the provisions placing costs on the petitioners be eliminated. Legislation to accomplish this object will be submitted.

2. State Forest Areas. The Commission believes that where township areas are in a large measure covered by State forest lands the continued maintenance of a township and school district government is a burden. Some special provision should be made for such townships, probably a direct administration of the roads and schools by the Commonwealth. The Commission has been unable to make the studies required to submit legislation at this time.

3. Budget. The Commission recommends that townships of the second class be required to make budget and financial reports to the Department of Internal Affairs in the same manner as other units of local government and submits legislation to accomplish this object.

CRIME

The Commission is in hearty accord with the present movement for a revision of the criminal laws. Crime constitutes one of the heaviest financial burdens of local government. Any revision of these laws should stress as one of its major points a decrease in the costs of administering them.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE AND CONSTABLES

In some counties the practice prevails among justices of the peace and constables to rove without the jurisdiction for which elected in order to increase their business. This practice results in the increase of the number of cases, imposes additional costs on the county, and constitutes an unfair encroachment of the jurisdiction of those officers whose territories are invaded. The Commission recommends legislation to stop this practice.

XI

CONTINUATION OF COMMISSION

The act under which the Local Government Commission was created provides for a first or preliminary report at the Session of the General Assembly of 1937. It does not contemplate a final report. In other divisions of the report, the work still to be accomplished is outlined. By the end of the fiscal biennium, the Commission will probably not have expended more than one-half of its $10,000 appropriation. This saving has been effected through the free services which have been given by the officers and appointees of the Commission. The unused appropriation will lapse at the end of the fiscal biennium. In order to complete its work, it will be necessary for the Commission to employ full time assistants and at least one expert on research, and the Commission, therefore, requests an appropriation of $20,000.

Part I

To the Honorable, the Members of the Pennsylvania General Assembly:

This Commission will not endeavor to speak through the balanced phrases usually employed by the educational technician. We will speak as laymen, to laymen, but in no instance will we voice unsupported lay opinion.

The Commission has nothing new or novel to present by way of conclusion. The classification and tabulation of facts and figures does not lead into new ground. The facts we present are within the range of what Department of Public Instruction executives have known or believe, are within the range of what progressive teachers have known or have had reason to believe, are within the range of what progressive and intelligent school directors and laymen interested in the schools have known or believe. Pennsylvania's pending school problems do not remain unsolved—do not hang fire—because there is a lack of information.

> The difficulty now, as in the past, lies in mobilizing public sentiment in support of constructive definite action, in conciliating and reconciling conflicting special interests and in integrating a progressive school program with the general fiscal and taxation policies of the various administrations as they come and go.

The Commission finds, as a matter of opinion and of fact, that school district classifications are unsound—are under existing conditions, wholly without scientific justification. Since school district classifications are unsound, the classification structure of necessity presents wholly unnecessary financial and administrative problems.

We find, as a matter of opinion and of fact, that the classifications, rules and regulations governing the measure of financial support extended the various school districts are inequitable.

We find, as a matter of opinion and of fact, that local property assessment valuations, as used as a measure of State support for the schools, are chaotic, disorganized, unscientific and result in continued inequalities and injustice.

We find, as a matter of opinion and of fact, that State subsidies do not bear a constant relation to district inability to pay.

We find, as a matter of opinion and of fact, that school district classification automatically creates situations which mitigate against sound administration.

We find, as a matter of opinion and of fact, that so long as the schools are to any material degree dependent for financial support upon real property assessments, the State is obligated to equalize inequalities in valuations as between districts in a county, and as between counties, by creating the scientific assessment machinery as the basis for tax levies upon real property.

We find, as a matter of opinion and of fact, that while it is possible for the Commonwealth and the local communities to establish sound administration even in the face of taxation inequalities, it is not possible to cure financial defects arising as a result of inequitable assessments unless assessment values are equalized.

We find, as a matter of fact, that in many states schools are supported on the basis of a uniform minimum tax levy imposed upon real property, supplemented by State subsidies designed to equalize local ability to pay and make possible the projection of a state-wide educational system based upon a definite high standard below which educational opportunity is not permitted to decline in any district however isolated.

This section of the Commission's report is based upon a study of the ability of individual school districts in Pennsylvania to finance public school education from local funds and the operation of the present state-aid system. This study was supervised by Dr. Edward B. Logan, associate professor of political science, University of Pennsylvania, who functioned as a member of the staff placed at the disposal of the Commission by the Pennsylvania Economic Council. The Commission herewith transmits to the Legislature, for the use of its Committees on Education and for the information of its members, copies of Dr. Logan's report. In subsequent installments, the Commission will transmit other studies made by various individuals and members of groups whose services were also placed at the disposal of the Commission.

Dr. Logan's report calls for study. The significance of the facts and figures he presents cannot adequately be set forth in the form of a summary. However, for the purpose of indicating the range of Dr. Logan's study, we present the following wholly inadequate outline:

> There is a wide divergence in the relative ability of districts to finance the schools. This divergence is indicated by tables showing the true valuation per capita in the various districts, the true valuation per pupil and the true valuation per teacher.
> Further light on the relative ability of school districts to support education is indicated by the table giving the number of districts where debt service charges would exceed a stated millage—five mills, for example—and the number of districts where such a stated millage exceeds debt service.
> The divergence in the relative ability of the local districts to support education is also shown by tables giving the per pupil yield of a five-mill tax and the per capita yield of a five-mill tax imposed on the various districts.
> Another factor affecting local ability to pay is found in the total burden carried by taxpayers of the various school districts. Tables show the extent to which school millage is exceeded by the total millage in the various districts.
> Since school support is primarily based upon local ability to pay due consideration should be accorded local situations in which there is an actual absence or relative absence of local ability to pay.
> The question arises as to whether present property valuations indicate the composite ability of those who reside within a school district to support their schools.
> When property is not uniformly assessed, property valuation is a poor indication of taxpaying ability.
> Taxes on property must be paid out of income—and property values do not invariably affect income.
> Under the present system, property owners, when paying taxes, are paying various percentages of their income.
> Pennsylvania has yet to evolve an equitable system of local taxation in support of the schools and it has yet to evolve an equitable system of distributing State-aid.
> In this State, information showing income in school districts is not available.
> In some States, notably Wisconsin, individual income within the school district is one of the factors which determine relative ability to pay.
> To distribute State-aid upon the basis of taxes actually collected frequently places a premium upon tax delinquency.
> As long as school funds are obtained from real property taxes, the only feasible, equitable index that can be used in determining State-aid allotments is property value.
> Taxes levied upon the actual rental value of properties would, in many instances, more closely reflect taxpaying ability than would taxes levied on the basis of existing valuations.
> The chief defect in using property valuation as a measure of ability to pay lies in the difficulty now encountered—in securing correct valuations.
> The facts are that corect valuations are not now being obtained—that no uniform standard is used among districts within a county. Moreover, there is no uniform standard used among the various counties.

Tables show that assessments for school purposes are based upon valuations representing as low as 28 percent of the actual sales value and on up to 138 percent of the actual sales value.

A comparison of sales prices—actual sales—and county assessments in various counties shows startling inequalities.

The figures indicate that rural property is valued at a higher percentage of its actual value than urban property. Asessment figures indicate that rural property is bearing an undue share not only of the burden of the schools, but also of the burden of all other local government.

Under the Pennsylvania system, the true valuation of property per teacher presumably serves as a basis for distributing State-aid. Secretaries of school boards report the percentages at which property is ostensibly assessed in their districts. Application of this percentage to the assessment as a whole gives the true valuation. If the true valuation is to be discovered, the percentage reported must be correct. This very frequently is not the case.

Many school boards apparently report assessment percentages higher than sales values would justify. When assessment percentages reported are too high, districts secure a higher rate of State-aid than is justified under the law.

If property valuations were corectly reported and assessment percentages correctly reported, many school districts would pass from one State-aid group to another State-aid group.

In the interests of equity in apportioning school subsidies, there is a pressing need—and long has been—for the improvement of the assessment system, to the end that each school district may obtain the aid to which it is entitled.

The assessment system needs revision from top to bottom.

Inequality in assessments is not a recent condition.

Pennsylvania has made no consistent effort to equalize asessment valuations—although it annually distributes millions in school subsidies on the basis of assessments.

The State Council of Education has power, under existing statutes, to equalize assessments under certain conditions. The State Council of Education, however, has never functioned along these lines since it has never had any appropriation available for such purposes.

Assessment work should be done by technically trained assessors working full time.

Not only is there no State supervision over assessments, but in many instances there is only a shadow of supervision by county officials. In many counties, each local district now constitutes, for all practical purposes, an independent assessment unit.

The administration of assessments should be handled by men trained in assessment work.

The method of revising assessments has not proven to be efficient. In 60 counties, this work is done by the county commissioners, acting ex-officio, as a board of revision. Only in the exceptional case are the commissioners able to give sufficient time to this task.

There is a lack of adequate publicity concerning inequalities in assessment. Full publication of all property assessments should be required.

Property should be assessed at full value as is required by law.

Distribution of State-aid is actually based upon two factors:

In school districts where the property valuation per teacher is more than $100,000, population is the State-aid factor.

In districts where true valuation is less than $100,000, valuation is the basic factor.

Only in districts with less than $100,000 valuation per teacher does the State-aid plan actually take the local ability of districts to pay into account.

There are 1,626 districts out of a total of 2,583 in which ability to finance the schools is recognized in some measure, while in 957 districts population is the basic factor.

School millages range from 5 mills and less up to 65 mills, and this figure is based upon true valuations.

There is no approach to uniformity in the millage levied.

There is no approach to uniformity in the per capita school taxes levied.

About half of the districts have a school tax of from $5 to $10 per capita, while about one-fourth fall within the $10 to $15 per capita group.

Third class districts, with valuation per teacher from $30,000 to $40,000 receive 75 percent reimbursement of teachers' salaries and so do many districts with valuations between $40,000 and $50,000.

A fourth class district, with a valuation per teacher of from $40,000 to $50,000, receives 75 percent reimbursement, the same as the district with less than $10,000 valuation.

Districts with valuation per teacher between $100,000 and $120,000 receive reimbursement of 35 percent of teachers' salaries, the same as districts with valuation per teacher from $2,400,000 to $2,420,000.

Some fourth class districts receiving 50 percent reimbursement actually have higher valuations per teacher than do many second and third class districts which receive 35 percent.

There are 13 fourth class districts with valuations per teacher between $160,000 and $180,000 which receive 50 percent reimbursement, while there are 13 third class districts with valuations per teacher from $100,000 to $120,000 which receive 35 per cent reimbursement.

The percentage ratio of State-aid bears no constant relation to the return of any particular uniform millage imposed in the various local districts.

If State-aid were distributed so as to provide districts having the same tax resources with like amounts of aid, there would be a constant relationship of State-aid to the proceeds of any stated millage.

The fact is clearly apparent that the 2,583 school districts of the State have greatly varying abilities to finance their schools, and it can be seen clearly that the present system of distributing State-aid fails to make distribution in accordance with the relative abilities of the school districts.

District groupings are not sound since there is no logical reason why a school district with a valuation per teacher of $49,000 should receive 75 per cent of its expenditures for teachers' salaries from the State while one with $51,000 valuation per teacher receives 60 per cent.

There is no sound reason why a district with $99,000 valuation per teacher should receive 60 per cent while one with $101,000 receives either 50, 35 or 25 per cent.

A fourth class district with a valuation per teacher of $101,000 receives 50 per cent of the teachers' salaries and so does the district with twice the amount or four times the amount.

It is wrong in principle to base some subsidies on population and others on valuation. Population is very rarely an indication of relative ability to finance the schools.

Assessment percentages reported by school boards may or may not be accurate and the school districts may or may not be obtaining the rate of aid to which they are entitled.

When the valuation per teacher of a school district is close to the division line in determining State-aid percentages, a slight boost in the assessment percentage or in the number of teachers can put the district in a group receiving a higher percentage of State-aid.

About three-fourths of the States use the system of supplying from State funds the amount necessary to finance a standard school program after a flat millage has been applied to the valuation of property. The problems that would arise in Pennsylvania would be the amount of the flat millage rate to be levied and the cost of a minimum standard program for which, above the proceeds of the flat millage rate, the State would provide.

* * *

In the final section of his study of the ability of individual school districts in Pennsylvania to finance education, Dr. Logan reviews the New York State-aid formula and commends it to the attention of Pennsylvania educators, statesmen and other legislators. Dr. Logan expressly states that it is reasonable to believe the New York system in principle, if used in Pennsylvania, would distribute State-aid with a greater recognition of the relative ability of school districts to finance their schools than does the present system. As he correctly points out, the questions that would immediately arise would involve the flat rate millage to be levied and the cost of a minimum standard program for which, above the proceeds of the flat rate millage, the State would provide.

As to whether or not studies made by the Commission have been sufficiently comprehensive to make it possible, on the basis of the facts submitted, accurately to determine minimum costs, it is nevertheless true that the studies completed would make it possible very closely to approximate costs in the State as a whole—provided, however, the money available was expended by and through sound administrative units. There can be no correct approximation of costs when the basis of administration itself is incorrect. Consequently, while it would be quite possible, we believe, to approximate the cost of a standard educational program under existing conditions, correct administrative procedure would inevitably modify the cost factor.

At this point the Commission desires to emphasize a governing consideration, which is this:

Plans looking toward any material readjustment in the State's educational system, whether they are within the purview of Dr. Logan's study or are based upon the observations of any other competent observer, are basic. They are intimately related to the State's budget. They comprise, in effect, a part of the Commonwealth's fiscal policy and they involve the entire tax structure to which the State is committed. Therefore, those who would grapple effectively with Pennsylvania's school problems must have a seat at the council table when tax programs are considered, when budget figures are adopted, when administration policies are formulated.

It is because school legislation has so long remained outside this charmed circle that so many school problems have accumulated. In the past, there has been a disposition upon the part of the various administrations to regard school problems as matters to be avoided—dodged—glossed over—rather than as questions or issues which required an immediate answer if the interests of the Commonwealth were to be well served.

The Commission is convinced that while Pennsylvania has had the benefit of rare administrative talent in administering its schools—in maintaining the school system as a going concern—in preserving, so far as possible, the legal status quo—there has been an absence of the machinery, the human implements, the human agencies through which to initiate and persistently champion the readjustments in methods and practices which, in the opinion of all competent observers, should be made.

Moreover, the Commission is convinced that Pennsylvania's school problems are not properly the subject for consideration simply at hectic legislative sessions but deserve the day-by-day, month-by-month, year-by-year attention of a group competent to serve as a planning board, which is required by legislative mandate to plan and by so doing give continuity to legislation affecting education.

It is with this need that the Commission will deal at greater length in a subsequent section of its report.

PART II

TO THE HONORABLE, THE MEMBERS OF THE PENNSYLVANIA GENERAL ASSEMBLY:

However prodigal the Commonwealth may be in its distribution of funds for the support of education, it does not now have the facilities with which to effect an equitable distribution. This is the point stressed in Part II of this report, which has received the Commission's endorsement.

There is little likelihood legislation basically affecting Pennsylvania's school system can be casually conceived and casually passed. As has been pointed out in the previous section, Pennsylvania's school problems—at least of the sort with which this Legislature can deal directly—are so fundamental in their nature they necessarily affect the State's fiscal policies and tax structure. That being so, legislation which does anything more than attempt to put a patch here or put a patch there must, from the practical standpoint be identified with administration policies in order that it may have the benefit of administration support.

Irrespective of whatever contributions to the solution of Pennsylvania's school problems fact-finding commissions may make, it nevertheless will remain a fact that the enactment of remedial legislation is dependent, not upon the ability to submit facts, but rather upon the ability of responsible agencies to reconcile the views of the various parties at interest. Only after the facts are well in hand is it possible to begin the conferences and negotiations with the interested groups which, as a matter of necessary practice, must precede effective action.

Fact-finding commissions, while free to confer, are not in a position to negotiate or to reach agreements and make commitments. Only the various administrations, as they come and go, or agencies representing these administrations can negotiate, reach agreements and make commitments.

The conventional procedure now—and in the past—has been to project, under the auspices of the State Department of Public Instruction, all legislation affecting the schools which was destined for enactment. The present range of school problems now confronting the Commonwealth is in itself evidence of the fact that the State Department of Public Instruction has not proved to be a conspicuously effective legislative agent. Had there been effective action, school problems would have been handled as they arose and would not have been permitted to accumulate.

This statement is in no wise a reflection upon the department in question. The Department of Public Instruction is primarily an administrative agency. It serves the people of this Commonwealth to best advantage in providing educational leadership.

The State Department of Public Instruction is the one department among all the others which cannot advantageously be continually contending for the modification of the statutes which are the basis of its authority. The department cannot afford, in the interests of sound administration, to become the center of controversy. It must operate entirely outside the political melee. It cannot permit its purposes to be misunderstood. The department must further, as a practical consideration, recognize the fact that a portion of the lay public is inclined to view proposals advanced by professional educators with suspicion. That this suspicion is unfounded does not remove it or cure it.

The Commission is convinced that, as the State's activities and responsibilities in the field of education have increased, there has arisen a pronounced need for a FUNCTIONING group—preferably laymen—which will act as a permanent planning agency. Such a group will be at once the arm of the Department of Public Instruction, and also of whatever administration was in power, in formulating legislative policies, in carrying them to the people and in providing the forum in which all parties at interest could be heard.

The functioning, planning agency, established on a year-around basis, would have, as one of its primary responsibilities, the maintenance of CONTINUITY in legislation affecting education.

Many sections of the school laws of Pennsylvania are, for one reason or another, INOPERATIVE. The School Code provides for a State Council of Education—a body formerly known as the State Board of Education. Among the duties specifically imposed upon the State Council are the following:

To report and recommend to the Governor and the General Assembly, legislation needed to make the Public Schools of this Commonwealth more efficient and useful.

To equalize through special appropriations for this purpose, or otherwise, the educational advantages of the different parts of the Commonwealth.

If educational advantages were equalized and if a Legislative Program were "reported and recommended" to the Governor and to the General Assembly there would be no reason for the existence of this Commission. And neither would the General Assembly be called upon to deal with an accumulation of problems facing the Public School System.

The State Council of Education—formerly the State Board—was not created simply as an advisory body. The name "State Council" would indicate that this body functioned through the Department of Public Instruction—advising with the Superintendent of Public Instruction only when that executive desires advice.

There are, however, under existing law, many instances in which the Department of Public Instruction must function through the Council—which if it exercised the authority conferred upon it by EXISTING statutes would actually function as a BOARD.

The Commission finds as a matter of fact that the Department of Public Instruction is not in the possession of figures showing the TRUE valuation per teacher in the various districts. It is the DUTY of the State Council of Education to ascertain the TRUE VALUATION per teacher. Where there is any doubt as to the accuracy of figures submitted, the State Council of Education is "given full power and authority to make such investigations, to take such action, and to institute such proceedings, as may be necessary to determine any of the questions that may be raised in the determination and adjustment of the aforesaid true valuations and the decision which the Council reaches shall be final and conclusive."

The State Council of Education has all of the authority necessary to enable it to act as a STATE TAX COMMISSION. The State Council, by virtue of various sections of the School Code, is established as a LAW ENFORCEMENT AGENCY and is at least invested with IMPLIED POWERS giving it control over district boundaries when such boundaries should be changed in the interests of a sound educational program.

* * *

The State Council is clearly responsible for such planning activities, such conferences and hearings as may be essential to the end that SOUND administrative local school units may be formed.

As to whether the State Council of Education should be denominated a Board or a COUNCIL may perhaps be a relatively unimportant matter. It would at least appear that the Council functions AS a board and that the authority it now enjoys as a board should not only be exercised but should actually be increased.

The activities of the State Council have hitherto been limited because there has been a failure to make appropriations for its use. Funds which could properly have been made available for the use of the State Council have been segregated in the name of the Department of Public Instruction.

As to whether the failure to finance the activities of the State Council of Education is primarily responsible for the accumulation of school problems may be a matter of opinion. That these problems have been permitted to accumulate is a fact.

* * *

In its discussions with leaders in the field of public education the Commission has heard many of them voice the regret that their "time was so occupied with administrative details of a routine financial nature that they had little time left in which to think about education."

Obviously a State Council—or Board—of Education, operating as a planning agency, would mantle legislative proposals with greater prestige than a fact-finding commission can possibly give them. Such a Council—or Board—enjoys an official status which enables it at all times to maintain contact with the various administrations as they come and go, with the Department of Public Instruction and—equally important—with the public—a privilege which legislative commissions cannot uniformly claim.

* * *

But more important than all other considerations is the fact that State Council—or Board—of Education must, if it is a functioning body, be consulted as a matter of official procedure concerning budgetary requirements.

The State Council—or Board—of Education is the natural agency—even under existing law—through which grievances are adjusted. The State Council—or Board—is the Department of Public Instruction's natural "trouble shooter."

But there is a still broader purpose which the State Council—or Board—of Education should serve. It is the natural medium through which, under existing conditions, local districts are assisted over and above the standard legal formula. It is to the State Council—or Board—of Education to which local districts naturally bring their transportation and tuition problems. If the State Council—or Board—is to observe the mandate of the law and "equalize educational advantage" it must have the power to act when confronted by local situations which curtail these advantages.

In the absence of mandatory legislation governing the organization and re-organization of school districts into sounder administration units, it becomes the function of the State Council—or Board—of Education to encourage and actually assist the various communities to create the attendance and administrative school units which will best serve the needs of the children in any particular area. That the State Council—or Board—of Education should be empowered to end the present inconsistencies and absurdities which characterize the transportation of school children is obvious.

If Pennsylvania's children are uniformly to have the benefit of school facilities possible only on the basis of sound administrative units—if a State-wide educational system is to be established on the basis of a standard curriculum below which no community is permitted to decline—much continuous, constructive work along what might be termed "missionary" lines must be done. The State Council—or Board—of Education is the natural missionary.

* * *

The Commission's technical advisors inform it that the present mandated elementary program in many fourth class districts is administered neither effectively nor economically. We are informed there are grave weaknesses in organization, instruction and administration in the present system. In a considerable number of districts, we are informed, subjects named in the school law are not presented at all or are presented in a perfunctory and ineffective manner.

Our technical advisors still further advise us that inadequacies and inequalities in the secondary school program are even more pronounced. That many Pennsylvania pupils are denied opportunity for adequate secondary school education is an admitted fact.

It is this general situation as it roots in emergency situations, as it may root in local inefficiency or as it roots in existing school legislation which are properly committed into the keeping of a State Council—or Board—of Education— which, operating from the laymen's point of view would give effect to the educational programs for the formulation of which the State Department of Public Instruction is primarily responsible.

This Commission is convinced that our educational structure—as a STATE SYSTEM, suffers from lack of balance. We have, on the one hand, a strong Department of Public Instruction, which is capable of effective leadership but which is without power to make certain it is followed. On the other hand, we have local districts, many of which are almost wholly dependent upon STATE support, which, in many respects, are a law unto themselves—but which are unable to offer a well-rounded educational program.

While there is a wide divergence of opinion concerning the proper range of educational opportunity, as well as concerning the effectiveness of our educational system, there would seem to be one point of general agreement.

Many children in Pennsylvania are denied the educational opportunities to which they are entitled by natural right and under existing law.

Moreover, there are few who will not admit that the content of our educational system has outrun its administrative structure. Further, there would seem to be a general agreement concerning the initial steps that must be taken in bringing about a generally improved educational situation. That is, there would seem to be agreement as to WHAT should be done, but disagreement as to HOW.

Obviously, if it is impossible to take the first steps in a program, the successive steps become matters which have only an abstract interest.

If we concede, as we must, that Department of Public Instruction executives are competent, highly trained men, that the members of the various legislatures who have come and gone with the years have been persons of good intent and that, in the main, a majority of our local school boards earnestly desire to do good work, we must conclude that the very existence of many existing problems, which preplex the schoolmen and laymen alike, is due to some defect in our administrative machinery. When it is properly administered, the ills engendered in an educational system are treated as they arise and are not permitted to accumulate. Nothing is quite as disheartening as to be compelled to face evils and difficulties only to discover there is no power under the law to deal with them effectively.

Only a PERMANENT BODY, specifically dedicated to the task can maintain continuous contact with what have been the "perennial problems of tuition, transportation, consolidation" and the senseless duplication of services growing out of an illogical organization of school administrative units. In this connection, the Commission must recognize the very human fact that the people of Pennsylvania, while welcoming an improvement in their educational facilities, will instinctively resist any comprehensive changes in the existing system. In dealing with our school problems we must—fortunately or unfortunately—take only a few steps at a time—and walk slowly, at that.

There are those who believe that every educational system or administrative unit affords a place for a group of laymen who function as laymen. Universities and colleges have their lay boards of trustees, school districts have their lay boards of directors. As to whether the State Council—or Board—of Education should be composed exclusively of laymen is a question which the Commission submits without prejudice to educators, the general public—and the Legislature.

But irrespective of the personnel involved—whether lay or professional—the fact remains that a FUNCTIONING State Council—or Board—of Education holds the key position in the solution of Pennsylvania's school problems. Not only is it essential that the State Council—or Board—be allotted funds ufficient to enable it to function under existing statutes—but its powers should be increased—whenever the fact dsvelops that the welfare of the schools is impeded because there is no body vested with power to act—to the end that the maladies of our School System may not only be treated but cured.

The Commission recommends that the General Assembly immediately—through its proper committees—consult with the State Council of Education and the Department of Public Instruction with the view of obtaining estimates as to the appropriation necessary in order to enable the State Council actually to function under existing law—particularly in the capacity of a PLANNING AGENCY—and also as the agency through which the educational advantages are equalized—by means of those activities the Council is empowered to initiate under existing statutes.

The Commission further recommends that the General Assembly—by legislative enactment—impose upon the State Council the responsibility for making such studies and surveys as the General Assembly may deem necessary in the light of the reports submitted to this Commission by its various cooperating agencies.

The Commission further finds that the powers vested in the State Council, if wisely exercised, open the way to a broad field of service which should be entered and occupied. The State Council—or Board—cognizant of its responsibilities—under the law—can properly insist that it be given an appropriation sufficient to enable it to function.

By the Commission,

H. G. Andrews, Chairman

PART III

SQUARE DEAL FOR FOURTH CLASS DISTRICTS

The foundation of the State's educational system is the classroom teacher. School codes may be drawn at great length, departments of public instruction may function at great expense, school boards may go through the processes of financial control, supervision may meet every technical requirement, but if the classroom teacher is weak, the school system is weak; and if the classroom teacher fails, the system fails.

Teachers—by reason of their calling, the ethics of their profession, their special training—are obligated to give their best to the service of the Commonwealth. The State, in its turn, is obligated to deal fairly with the teachers, to preserve and protect them in the exercise of their duties, to preserve and protect them against political intrigue and coercion, to preserve and protect them against favoritism or "pull" and to create for their support salary standards which can be defended on the grounds of both propriety and equity. This, the Commonwealth has not done.

From the standpoint of the Commonwealth, teachers' salaries are stated in terms of minimums, which are based upon district classifications. As has been pointed out in Part I of this report, district classifications in their turn are based upon population. A district of the first class is one having a population of 500,000 or more. A district of the second class is one having a population of not less than 30,000 and not more than 500,000. A district of the third class is one having a population of not less than 5,000 nor more than 30,000, while a district of the fourth class is one having a population of 5,000 or less. Teachers' salaries increase as population increases—the lowest minimums prevailing in the fourth class districts.

Teachers' salaries, therefore, are related more to geography than they are to function. The implication of the minimum salary schedules is that pupils living in fourth class districts are not entitled to as much teaching skill as pupils living in other districts.

Examination of the facts submitted to the Commission, and investigations made by affiliated agencies cooperating with the Commission, indicate that the variation in minimum teachers' salaries as between the various classes of districts is not based upon a cost-of-living factor. Nor is the variation based solely upon technical attainments, because it is by no means invariably the case that all of the teachers in third class districts excel all of the teachers in four class districts. Moreover, there is no indication that the difference in minimum salary schedules as between the districts invariably reflects a difference in professional attainment.

However, if it were true that all of the teachers in first, second and third class districts were invariably and inevitably better than teachers in the fourth class districts, then it would follow that the pupils in the fourth class districts were not receiving the consideration at the hands of the Commonwealth to which they were entitled.

The Commission is convinced that minimum salaries should be related to function rather than to location.

Minimum salaries for teachers employed in the elementary schools should, the Commission believes, be uniform. The existing salary schedule places a premium upon a teacher's ability to escape from the employment of a fourth class district.

As a result of the minimum salary schedules now in force, fourth class districts are the laboratories in which beginners practice. Fourth class districts now serving as proving grounds. They train teachers only to lose their services after they have maintained the facilities for training.

There is no reason to believe that minimum salaries in first, second and third class districts are too high. The contrary is true. The minimum salary schedule in fourth class districts is too low.

According to the statistical report of the Superintendent of Public Instruction for the year ending July 2, 1934, the median salary for classroom teachers in fourth class district elementary schools was $798. This figure was the median salary for 16,720 teachers.

Various efforts have been made to devise formulas governing an increase in the salaries guaranteed classroom teachers in fourth class districts. The Commission believes that all of these proposals are, in a measure, unsound, because they are based upon a district classification which is unsound.

Educational need is not dependent upon population density.

In the elementary grades, the educational needs of the pupils are practically identical throughout the State. The core curriculum of the elementary schools in first class districts, if sound, can contain very little that should not be a part of the core curriculum in the most remote fourth class district of the State. The Commission dissents from the theory that a fourth class district is a sort of "poor relation" who can be maintained by being allotted the leftovers that are not needed by the rich relatives.

Under existing conditions, many teachers are paid the bare minimum—although minimum standards are so low that a teacher who is actually worth only the minimum is probably an instructor who is dear even at that price.

If educational advantage is to be equalized and if ditsricts which from the standpoint of school facilities are now underprivileged are to advance their standards, they can only do so by being able to draw upon the State's wealth of teaching experience and talent.

It is true, of course, that no district is obligated to pay the minimum and no more. It is also true that many districts, as a matter of traditional practice, pay more than the minimum. They do this because they desire to attract and keep strong teachers. However, it is unfair to the fourth class districts to constitute them, by law, a pedagogical proving ground.

Therefore, the Commission recommends that the minimum salary schedules be overhauled to the end that minimum salaries may be based upon functions, that the minmum salaries for classroom teachers in the elementary schools be more nearly uniform throughout the State and that annual increments also be uniform throughout the elementary grades.

The mandated minimum salary schedules for the various districts were as follows:

FOURTH CLASS DISTRICTS:
Elementary teachers, minimum monthly salary	$ 100.00
High school teachers minimum monthly salary	130.00
THIRD CLASS DISTRICTS:
Elementary teachers,
minimum annual salary	1000.00
minimum annual increment		$100.00
minimum number of increments			4
High school teachers,
minimum annual salary	1200.00
minimum annual increment		100.00
minimum number of increments			4
SECOND CLASS DISTRICTS:
Elementary teachers,
minimum annual salary	1000.00
minimum annual increment		100.00
minimum number of increments			8
High school teachers,
minimum annual salary	1400.00
minimum annual increment		100.00
minimum number of increments			8
FIRST CLASS DISTRICTS:
Elementary teachers,
minimum annual salary	$1200.00
minimum annual increment		$100.00
minimum number of increments			10
ior high school teachers,
minimum annual salary	1300.00
minimum annual increment		125.00
minimum number of increments			8
or minimum annual salary	1300.00
minimum annual increment		175.00
minimum number of increments			8
High school teachers,
minimum annual salary	1300.00
minimum annual increment		175.00
minimum number of increments			8

The Commission is not at this time discussing minimum salary schedules as they apply in the secondary schools—being convinced that the "foundation program" is identified with the elementary schools and that the crying need for revision is represented by the fourth class district minimums. As a matter of principle, the Commission would relate all minimum salaries to function.

Moreover, the Commission is convinced that the present method of classifying districts solely on the basis of population makes it practically impossible to formulate sound minimum standard formulas. Many teachers in third class district secondary schools perform functions which entitle them to the highest minimum paid any instructor who performs a similar function.

The solution of the minimum salary puzzle lies ultimately in the reclassificat n of districts along sound lines, to the end that the classification may represent sound administrative school units.

The fact should be noted that school teachers are practically the only servants of the State whose salaries are based upon population. The trained social workers employed by the State's welfare agencies are not paid a fourth class district salary when sent into a fourth class district.

The fact should also be noted that trained social workers are given initial salaries which, at their minimums, are practically twice the median salary paid fourth class district classroom teachers. It would seem that there was very little justice in salary schedules which will pay a teacher who has completed the courses prescribed in an approved high school, who may have spent two or three years at a normal school and two years at a college or university, a median salary of $798, while trained social workers, who may be fresh out of high school, receive, as a matter of common practice, $1400, $1600, $1800 a year—and up.

However, the Commission desires to reiterate the view that it is not the teacher who is the object of consideration when minimum salaries are discussed, but rather the pupil.

The contention is that the existing arrangement is unfair to many pupils who reside in fourth class districts. That the arrangement is also unfair to many fourth class district high school teachers simply adds force to the central contention, which is, to repeat, that minimum salaries paid teachers in the elementary schools be based upon function and be uniform throughout the State, with the responsibility devolving upon the district to make the local adjustments which reflect the differences in cost-of-living totals.

By the Commission,

H. G. Andrews, Chairman

PART IV

SOME INJUSTICES FROM WHICH TEACHERS SUFFER

In this section of its report, the Commission desires briefly to review a few of the varieties of injustice inflicted upon teachers against which, under existing conditions, they have no defense. In addition, the Commission will also outline—briefly—the type of administrative machinery which will in its opinion protect the teacher, protect the public and, by protecting both the teacher and the public, protect the pupils by helping establish a sounder system than we now have.

Testimony before the Commission and evidence gathered by its agents show that teachers in more than one section of the State have systematically been made the victims of political coercion. There are teachers who have been compelled—and we use the word compelled advisedly—to enter politics on what was virtually a "ward heeler" basis, being required to "work" certain blocks and make certain the vote was "delivered" the right way.

There is evidence that teachers have lost their jobs because they refused to change their party registration at the behest of a local party leader. There have been instances—repeated instances—in which there is reason to believe that political leaders furnished school boards with lists of men and women who were to be hired or fired as teachers and that members of boards submitted to this type of control.

Competent teachers have been fired in order to make a place for a relative of some member of a school board. As everybody knows, teachers have been dismissed by platoons in order to make it legally possible to reduce salary schedules.

Not only have teachers been compelled to take what might properly be termed an improper interest in local and State political affairs, but they have, upon coercion, been prohibited, under pain of losing their jobs, from taking a normal, healthy, proper interest in the affairs of their community.

While there are many methods by which a teacher can be restrained from engaging in objectionable movements and from continuing to make indiscreet utterances, there is, on the other hand, no way at the present time whereby a teacher can maintain not simply her academic freedom but her freedom as an individual if her lot happens to be cast with that of a narrow, provincial, bigoted or overly politically-minded school board.

Members of the General Assembly are themselves familiar with the fact there are no means by which members of school boards which actually resort to political coercion can be restrained or punished. Members of the General Assembly are further familiar with the fact teacher tenure is what might be termed a "live issue." Teachers are entitled to tenure if they proficiently practice their profession and are not properly subject to criticism on the ground of their personal conduct.

The Department of Public Instruction, committees representing the teachers and individual members of the General Assembly have been wrestling with the tenure problem. The various groups have found difficulty in devising a formula which, while protecting the good teacher, would not likewise give similar protection to poor teachers. Manifestly, tenure statutes or regulations which perpetuate inefficiency tend to reduce the members of the teaching profession to a common denominator.

Many proposals seeking to safeguard tenure throw so many restrictions around school boards that an initial mistake in selecting a teacher becomes a perpetual embarrassment. Other proposals designed to protect the teacher are so drawn that horses and chariots could be driven through the holes in them.

In some tenure proposals, the suggestion is made that in case of disagreement an appeal be had to the Dauphin County Courts—a procedure at once disturbing to the local schools involved, to the school system as a whole, and which is, in addition, relatively expensive.

The Commission suggests the propriety of using the State Council—or Board—of Education as the instrumentality through which to administer a statute relating to tenure and also through which to protect teachers who are the victims of intimidation or coercion. The State Council—or Board—of Education, in the event complaints are made that teachers were being made the victims of political coercion, could very properly be empowered to appoint referees who would proceed to take testimony. Upon the basis of the testimony taken, the State Council—or Board—of Education could, if invested with the proper powers, discipline school boards found guilty of objectionable practices and re-instate teachers who had been improperly dismissed.

The State Council—or Board—of Education could likewise be charged with the responsibility of administering a statute relating to tenure. When questions arose under the terms of the teacher tenure act, the State Council—or Board—of Education could be empowered to appoint referees and take testimony. Indeed, if the State Council—or Board—of Education were given the opportunity under the law to exercise its discretion and enforce its findings, it could, by functioning as a tribunal, serve all the purposes that a tenure act, administered on the basis of final possible appeals to the courts, could be made to serve.

We are not suggesting that the members of the State Council—or Board—of Education should be required to tour the State whenever local differences arose. It would only be necessary for the Board to be empowered to appoint referees to take testimony to make certain that very few teachers were unjustly dismissed, provided the statutes expressly stated in unmistakable fashion the causes for which a teacher was properly subject to dismissal.

The occasion calls, not for statutes which will complicate administration by giving tenure to the incompetent, but for statutes which will, on the other hand, protect the teacher from reprisals, coercion and persistent intimidation.

The State Council—or Board—of Education, if given broad discretionary powers, could undoubtedly protect deserving teachers while according school boards, in their turn, a reasonable freedom of action.

Certainly there is no reason to believe that teachers who had a real grievance would fare better at the hands of the courts than they would at the hands of the State Council—or Board—of Education. Moreover, there is no sound reason why the Commonwealth cannot create within its own school system the agencies through which to settle grievances that arise within the system.

There is one other matter to which the Commission desires to direct attention in this section of its report. Money due school districts for teachers' salaries should invariably be promtply paid. There is no reason why all of the other servants of the Commonwealth should be paid regularly—in full—upon every payday, while teachers in all parts of the State have payless paydays.

The Commission specifically recommends, therefore, that teachers' salaries be placed upon a parity with all other salaries—judicial, executive or legislative and that when the Commonwealth is delinquent in its payments to the school districts that funds available for salaries be distributed rateably.

SOME GOVERNING CONSIDERATIONS

As to whether there are 100,000, 200,000, 300,000 children, more or less, who are denied the educational opportunities to which they are entitled, is a matter concerning which there might be disagreement. That is, those who made the survey might disagree concerning the exact number of children now denied an educational Square Deal, but there would be agreement concerning the essential fact, which is this: Entirely TOO MANY children find they are the victims of persistent neglect, because inadequate provision has been made for them in the State's Educational Program.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania supports schools in what is popularly believed to be an extremely generous manner. Our State is well toward the top of the list as regards total expenditures for public education, but it is well DOWN the list when the rating is made upon the basis of expenditure per pupil.

These are facts so well known they have ceased to impress. Is it not rather peculiar, however, that the general public and the Legislature are greatly concerned because a few thousand children are exploited in industry, but are not equally concerned when several hundred thousand children are denied educational opportunity.

There has long been the impression that eventually the State would make adjustments in its tax program, shift the burden from the shoulders that now bear it to other shoulders, and cure present inequalities. But is it not rather unfair that children should be neglected while Legislators and financiers deliberate. Is it not incumbent upon the Legislature to evaluate EDUCATION and place it at least upon a parity with Labor Legislation, Relief Legislation, or other legislation affecting the routine of government. Are not neglected school areas entitled to a place upon the MUST program, and is it not incumbent upon the STATESMANSHIP of our day to formulate the plans and create the agencies essential in dealing with emergency situations in the field of education and in projecting the year by year program through which a STATE SCHOOL SYSTEM will actually be established? For there is reason to conclude that while the Commonwealth supports SCHOOLS it is not creating a comprehensive adequate, integrated SCHOOL SYSTEM based upon some ACCEPTABLE MINIMUM STANDARD below which educational opportunity does not fall even in the most remote and financially distressed district.

The problem involves the extension rather than the equalization of educational opportunity. That is, there is no disposition to reduce standards in progressive districts abundantly able to finance a well-rounded educational program in order that standards in other districts may be raised. The primary consideration is not to level but rather to encourage the progressive districts, favored by reason of local conditions, while at the same time assisting the underprivileged to achieve at least an acceptable minimum.

Every step to be taken is necessarily dictated by the needs of the child. It is from the standpoint of these needs that all problems regarding attendance and administration units must be answered. However, the needs of the children and the financial necessities of the Commonwealth impose the obligation upon administrators and legislators to make certain that every dollar raised in the name of education performs a maximum service.

* * *

Competent observers express the belief that the cause of education is best served when at least 85 percent of the SCHOOL BUDGET is devoted to instruction. They further state that, as a rule, if 85 percent of the school budget is not devoted to instruction the public is overtaxed or the children are denied the educational advantages which should properly be their portion.

Pennsylvania's school problem, as has been shown, is complicated by reason of the fact that districts are classified on the basis of population whereas population bears no relation to the relative ability of the various districts to support an adequate educational program. Moreover, as a result of the prevailing inequality in assessment standards of valuation, assessment figures do not always establish local ability to pay. These are matters intimately related to the plan of financing the schools. It is, however, from the standpoint of administration that we are immediately concerned. No financial plan or program can be satisfactory from the standpoint of sound economy unless the ADMINISTRATIVE unit is sound. No amount of argument can gloss over or sidestep that one governing consideration. In order to establish a sound school system, administrative units must be large enough to make a sound system economically possible.

According to the classification, a Fourth Class district is one which has a population of 5,000 or less. There is a vast difference between saying that a Fourth Class district must have a population of AT LEAST 5,000 and saying that districts falling under this classification are the ones having a population of 5,000 OR LESS. It is the "OR LESS" which develops an ever-increasing range of problems. First of all, it is not the "population" which goes to school but rather the children: The number of children who go to school represents an important cost factor. It is quite possible to hire one teacher to instruct one pupil. In order that the child might have the benefit of diversified teaching talent and specialized instruction it would be quite possible to employ two, three or even four teachers to instruct one pupil. But, while possible, this procedure would be very expensive. It is possible to maintain a high school attended by fifty, sixty or seventy pupils—but it is expensive—if an acceptable high school course is offered by competent instructors. A school district should represent a sound administrative unit—an assertion which we repeat. A sound administrative unit is one in which an acceptable elementary and secondary school program can be provided at a reasonable cost.

If the State, having established acceptable MINIMUM educational standards, assumes the major financial responsibility and finances education upon the basis of the minimum it is justified in insisting upon the creation of SOUND ADMINISTRATIVE UNITS. If, on the other hand, there is no immediate shifting in the base of financial support, the State must nevertheless assist the districts which are unable to assist themselves. In doing so the creation of sound administrative units immediately becomes a matter of major State concern.

Obviously, the logical course, in any event, is to ESTABLISH the MINIMUM STANDARDS and then ascertain the districts which are BELOW the standard as established. If all the districts were above the established minimum, the problems that arose would largely revolve around administrative processes initiated in the interests of economy and increased efficiency. If, however, the fact developed that there were districts below the standard it would immediately become the duty of the State AND the districts involved to organize educational effort in agreement with the standard. Traditional groupings would cease to have significance in the face of a mutual duty—and determination—to extend educational opportunity into underprivileged areas.

The problem becomes one involving AGENCIES and METHOD.

MINIMUM STANDARDS

Whatever the Commission's accomplishments in other directions may or may not be, it was fortunate in its functioning as a convenor. Realizing that the integrity of the Commonwealth's educational system involved the maintenance of standards below which educational advantages should not be permitted to decline in any district, however remote, the Commission early sought the advice of Pennsylvania educators for the purpose of ascertaining how best, in their view, minimum standards could be established and what, in their opinion, those standards should be.

Through the good offices of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, Dr. Lester K. Ade, and Dr. Q. A. W. Rohrbach, President of State Teachers' College, Kutztown, the Commission established contact with representative schoolmen who consented to function as members of committees appointed to study minimum standards. * * *

The Commission regards the work done by these committees as one of the most significant developments in the field of public education in Pennsylvania during recent years. Members of these groups contributed their time, meeting week after week. The Commission regrets that its limited appropriation made it impossible for it properly to support the minimum standards committees by supplying them with resear personnel.

The minimum standards committees were in a position to supervise exhaustive and authoritative studies of educational costs based upon minimum standards requirements as applied in the various local districts had they been sustained by a sufficient appropriation. Notwithstanding the handicaps under which they worked, the report of the minimum standards committees represent a real achievement because it has established educational benchmarks which will serve as a guide, not only to future commissions and committees, but likewise to the Department of Public Instruction and the State Council —or Board—of Education.

The platform or statement of policy to which the committees appointed to study minimum standards subscribed was:

> There should be guaranteed to every boy and girl of normal ability in the State of Pennsylvania an education from the first grade through the high school, usually twelve years of public education. In range, content and quality, the first six years of the elementary school should be equalized throughout the State. In the secondary field, there should be a certain core curricula for all normal pupils, but, in addition thereto, the curricula in the individual districts should be varied so as to satisfy the needs of the community and the needs and ability of different pupils.

In its outline of policy, the committees, while standing decisively for the equalization of educational advantages, took an equally decisive position against any tendency to so standardize educational processes that the needs and abilities of different pupils would be overlooked as a result of over-emphasis upon regimentation.

The committees further emphasized the conviction that a distinction be made in organization, instruction and subject matter between the elementary education of the pre-adolescent and the secondary education of the adolescent.

They also pointed out the need for State regulations determining the minimum secondary school enrollment for which any district may maintain or establish an independent secondary school and they were of the view that districts which may not have a sufficient number of secondary school pupils to enable them to maintain such a school economically or to the advantage of the pupils be encouraged to combine with neighboring districts, additional State appropriations being the consideration.

Throughout the reports of the minimum standards committees there runs the implication that ways should be uncovered to reward those districts which, in the language of the street, are inclined to "play the game." Under existing conditions, it very frequently happens that the districts which persist in defying the mandates of sound policy fare better at the hands of the Commonwealth than do other districts which are committed to sound practices.

Members of the minimum standards committees also point out, quite correctly, that it is very important some decision be made as to what is the proper units of instruction—class size—in both elementary and secondary schools in order to produce the best results within the range of available funds. In this field the Commission is convinced there remains much work to be done, since uniform class groupings applying to all branches can hardly be defended on the basis of present experience.

Specifically, the recommendations made by the committees appointed to study minimum standards, together with the Commission's action upon these recommendations, are as follows:

1. The Commonwealth shall reimburse school districts of the third or fourth class for furnishing transportation for pupils of school age who reside more than two miles by the nearest public highway from the nearest school.

(Approved by the Commission and endorsed for action at the pending session of the General Assembly.)

2. Boards of school directors shall reassign children of school age living more than two miles from the nearest school in their own district to a school, including high schools, in another district.

(Approved by the Commission and endorsed for action at the pending session of the General Assembly.)

3. Children of school age who have completed the elementary course of study and who reside three or more miles from the nearest high school in their district may attend a more convenient school in another district; and the district in which they reside shall be liable for the cost of their tuition. These children shall also be furnished free transportation to the high school which they attend, for which the Commonwealth shall reimburse districts of the third and fourth class furnishing such transportation in the same manner as reimbursement is made for other transportation.

(Approved by the Commission and endorsed for action at the pending session of the General Assembly.)

4. All persons regularly employed in school districts, including personnel commissioned by the Department of Public Instruction and those employed by institutions under the jurisdiction of the department, shall undergo a physical examination annually.

(Approved by a majority of the Commission and endorsed by this majority for action at the pending session of the Legislature. A majority of the Commission felt that if there was only one school district employee in all the State suffering from a siphilitic affliction, the examination would be justified.)

5. All the public elementary and high schools in districts of the first, second, third and fourth class shall be kept open each year 180 days.

(Various members of the Commission felt that this recommendation called for further study in view of the fact that increased costs must necessarily be met either by the local districts or by the Commonwealth. Information at hand indicates that, as would be expected, it is the distressed school districts, some of which are now practically the financial wards of the State, in which the school term is most likely to be reduced under the 180-day figure. From the information at hand, the Commission is not in a position to determine the exact increase in the State's educational budget which would be necessary if this recommendation was adopted. Members of the Commission were also divided in their opinion as to whether the 180-day figure should be applied to both elementary and secondary schools or simply to the secondary schools. The Commission recognizes the "weight of the authority" back of the recommendation and therefore submits this item as the finding of the minimum standards groups.)

6. The State Council of Education shall make such regulations as shall be necessary to insure proper standards for the various grades of the twelve years of the public school program of education. High schools shall be classified on the basis of an 180-day school term, the grades they serve, the employment of the required number of qualified teachers and their conformance to regulations established by the Department of Public Instruction. The State Council of Education shall also approve the establishment of new high schools or the addition of a year of work to the program of a high school already in operation.

(Approved by the Commission and endorsed for action at the pending session of the General Assembly.)

7. The State Council of Education shall determnie the minimum secondary school enrollment for which any district may maintain and establish an independent secondary school.

(Approved by the Commission and endorsed for action at the pending session of the General Assembly.)

8. Fourth class school districts which do not have a sufficient number of secondary pupils to maintain a high school economically may arrange with neighboring districts for the education of their high school pupils, and the district receiving such students shall be reimbursed for their tuition costs, which shall not exceed $50 for a high school pupil in any year.

(The Commission approves this recommendation in principle but suggests that the State Council—or Board—of Education be made a party at interest in such situations and be vested with power to act as arbitrator in the event there should be disagreement concerning the amount of the tuition charge. There are, undoubtedly, instances in which it would be decidedly to the advantage of a district to receive tuition pupils at a tuition cost per pupil of less than $50. There are other instances in which, under existing conditions, a slightly higher tuition charge might be justified. The Commission suggests that the State Council—or Board—of Education be given broad powers to act in such cases, even to the extent of being empowered to enforce its decisions.)

9. The full costs of proper free transportation for all pupils of one-teacher and two-teacher schools which may be permanently closed or discontinued after June 1, 1937, in districts of the third and fourth class shall be paid annually by the Commonwealth.

(Approved by the Commission and endorsed for action at the pending session of the General Assembly.)

10. Upon petition of the parent, school districts of the fourth class which agree to provide transportation for any pupils may pay for suitable board and lodging for such pupils in lieu of providing transportation. Such board and lodging must be secured in the home of a near relative of the pupil or in a proper school home approved by the parent. The State's share in the cost of such board and lodging shall in no case exceed one dollar per day per pupil.

(This provision applies in the case of pupils who, because they live in sections remote from schools, are now, as a matter of fact, actually denied educational opportunity. This recommendation has been approved by the Commission and endorsed for action at the pending session of the General Assembly.)

11. In order to encourage the establishment of approved consolidated elementary and junior high schools, the Commonwealth shall pay annually the full cost of transportation of pupils to and from such consolidated schools, provided the cost does not exceed the standard maximum per pupil according to law.

(The Commission approves this recommendation, emphasizes its importance and endorses it for action at the pending session of the General Assembly.)

12. Beginning with 1938-1939, the Superintendent of Public Instruction, upon due hearing, shall be authorized to withhold the State appropriation of any school district which refuses or neglects to maintain the program of instruction approved by the State Council of Education.

(This recommendation is endorsed in principle by the Commission, which recommends that legislation, if enacted, read that the State Superintendent of Public Instruction "shall, after due hearing and with the approval of the State Council—or Board—of Education, withhold State appropriations from school districts which refuse or neglect to maintain the program of instruction approved by the State Council." The Commission feels that until the distressed school district problem has been reduced to a more definite policy, appropriations should be withheld only with the approval of the State Council—or Board of Education.)

13. The board of school directors of every district shall employ a sufficient number of teachers in its high school to give instruction in the subjects included in the program of studies of the State Council of Education for which there shall be an application by fifteen or more pupils belonging, to the grades in which the subject is specifically applied. No teacher shall be employed to teach any branch other than those enumerated in his certificate.

(The new material in this suggestion is found in the last sentence of the foregoing paragraph. This recommendation is approved by the Commission and endorsed for action at the pending session of the General Assembly.)

14. Pupils who reside in a school district where no high school is maintained may attend, at the expense of the district in which they live, the most conveniently located high school of such class as they may desire to attend; in which case the home district shall be liable for the cost of the tuition.

(Approved by the Commission and endorsed for action at the pending session of the General Assembly.)

15. The Commonwealth shall not pay to any class of school district any part of a teacher's salary in regular day school if the average daily attendance is less than twenty pupils to a one-teacher school and twenty-five pupils in a school of two or more teachers—except by the approval of the State Council of Education.

(Approved by the Commission and endorsed for action at the pending session of the General Assembly.)

16. The Commonwealth shall pay to the several school districts the same per centum of the minimum salary required to be paid to part-time teachers in extension schools as is paid to such districts for the minimum salary of full-time teachers.

(Approved by the Commission and endorsed for action at the pending session of the General Assembly.)

17. A secondary program of studies as designated and approved by the State Council of Education shall be made available to every boy and girl in the Commonwealth.

(This recommendation is approved in principle by the Commission. It is, however, necessary to emphasize the fact that the establishment and maintenance of minimum standards are dependent upon factors involving the State's fiscal policies and taxation structure. In 1934 there were 1,423 districts which did not offer any secondary school facilities. The establishment and maintenance of reasonable and proper minimum educational standards are dependent upon the formation of sound administrative school units, the equitable apportionment of State subsidies, the equalization of local real property values for the purpose of taxation and an agreement as to the standard millage which will be imposed upon local real estate for the support of the schools.)

18. The State Council of Education shall prepare standards for pupil transportation which shall be included in all contracts for this service at public expense. Pupils shall not be required in any instance to walk more than one and one-half miles by public highway to meet the school bus.

(This recommendation is approved in principle by the Commission. Pupils of tender age should not even be required to walk one and one-half miles. However, the rule which might apply in more favorably located centers would be impractical in various sparsely populated sections of the State. The one and one-half mile stipulation, in the opinion of the Commission, should stand until there is more knowledge available concerning "local exceptions to the general rule.")

19. Teachers in fourth class districts shall receive a minimum of $100 per month with provision for four increments of $50 per year, to become effective in 1938-1939. The minimum salary for high school teachers shall be $1,170, with four annual increments of $50 each for both teacher and principal.

(A majority of the Commission has accepted the principle that teachers' salaries should be equalized on the basis of function rather than being based upon district classifications. The Commission's view is that the local districts should themselves recognize cost-of-living index figures, while minimum salaries—particularly the salaries paid teachers in the elementary grades—should be uniform in the case of all of those who have the same scholastic rating and teaching experience and who perform an identical function. The Commission is most emphatically of the view that existing minimum salary schedules discriminate against teachers employed in fourth, third and even second class districts.)

20. Secretaries of commissioned superintendents of schools shall be eligible to join the Pennsylvania School Employees' Retirement System.

(Approved by the Commission and endorsed for action at the pending session of the General Assembly.)

21. The Superintendent of Public Instruction may grant a provisional college certificate to every person who presents satisfactory evidence of good moral character and of being a graduate of a college or university approved by the State Council of Education and who has completed such work in education as may be approved by the State Council. This certificate shall entitle the holder to teach for three annual school terms.

(Approved by the Commission and endorsed for action at the pending session of the General Assembly.)

22. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall issue a renewed college certificate to every graduate of a college or university approved by the State Council—or Board—of Education when such graduate furnishes satisfactory evidence of good moral character and successful experience in the public schools on a provisional college certificate for three annual school terms and has completed such work in education as may be approved by the State Council of Education. This certificate shall entitle its holder to teach five annual school terms.

(Approved by the Commission and endorsed for action at the pending session of the General Assembly.)

23. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall issue a permanent college certificate to every graduate of a college or university approved by the State Council of Education when such graduate has completed such additional work or experience as may be approved by the State Council of Education.

(Approved by the Commission and endorsed for action at the pending session of the General Assembly.)

24. All persons, including janitors, drivers of school buses, in addition to teachers who are employed by public schools admitting children of compulsory school age and whose work affects the education and welfare of children shall be certified by the State in accordance with such educational requirements as may be prescribed by the State Council of Education.

(This recommendation is being held by the Commission for further consideration.)

25. Whenever a teacher holding a probationary or a permanent certificate shall have been out of service for five years or more, such teacher shall be required to demonstrate competency in accordance with the requirements of the State Council of Education before his certificate shall be considered a valid certificate to teach in the public schools in this Commonwealth.

(Approved by the Commission and endorsed for action at the pending session of the General Assembly.)

26. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall cause to be inspected and require reports of the educational work in the colleges and universities incorporated in accordance with the provisions of the School Code, provided that a copy of the report of the inspection of any such institution which may be made to the State Council of Education shall be sent to the head of each institution which has been inspected.

(Approved by the Commission and endorsed for action at the pending session of the General Assembly.)

The committees for the study of minimum standards particularly recommend that the State Council—or Board—of Education be granted appropriations, in addition to their other needs, for the following specific purposes:

To make such investigations and to take such action and to institute such proceedings as may be necessary to determine the true valuation of the assessable property per teacher and to determine any of the questions that may be raised as to adjustments regarding the true valuations.

That the State Council be authorized and directed to investigate the needs for consolidation in various districts and to aid in the establishment of consolidated and joint consolidated schools.

These recommendations are in line with the policies to which the Commission is committed. It is significant that the Commission and all of the agencies cooperating with it have reached an identical conclusion in this matter.

The committee appointed for the study of minimum standards in districts under the jurisdiction of county superintendents has recommended a modified county unit plan. The Commission is transmitting the committee's findings to the General Assembly. Members of the Commission desire to point out, however, that the recommendations made by the committees appointed to study minimum standards are somewhat prejudiced by reason of the fact there are now pending in the Legislature proposals relating to the consolidation of school districts and the creation of a county unit system of school administration, which apparently have Administration and Department of Public Instruction support. Various members of the Commission incline to the belief that it would probably be better to center attention upon measures now pending in the Legislature than it would be to divide attention by urging the consideration of proposals more sweeping in their score. The Commission therefore transmits to the General Assembly, for its study, the modified county unit plan submitted by the committee for the study of minimum standards in districts under the jurisdiction of county superintendents—a plan upon which much earnest, intelligent effort has been expended.

The committees appointed to study minimum standards recommend that the tax on real estate shall be five mills uniformly throughout the State. In considering this proposal there are a number of factors which must necessarily be noted.

There is, first of all, a lack of definite information as to what amount would actually be raised by means of a five-mill tax based upon actual values. In the second place, if the State is to guarantee a foundation program in the interests of greater equality in education—which is the objective of the committees appointed to study minimum standards—the Commonwealth must have more definite information than it now possesses concerning the cost of particular types of education in districts of different sizes.

The equalization of valuations for assessment purposes and the formation of school administrative units which can be uniformly administered economically and efficiently are steps which must necessarily precede the determination of a uniform millage levied on real property for school purposes.

The Commission is in complete sympathy with proposals looking toward the centralized collection of school taxes and with suggestions looking toward the equalization of valuations.

The committee suggests that the State subsidy for the various county units—which would be, in effect, the State subsidy for the units now existing—should be equal to the difference between the cost of the mandated minimum program and the amount of money raised in the local districts from per capita taxes and levies on real estate.

Here, again, it is necessary to make the reservation that local ability to pay on the basis of a uniform millage cannot be determined until valuations have been equalized, and neither can acceptable per pupil costs be established until sound administrative school units have been created. The program looking toward the actual equalization of educational advantages is estopped by these two factors.

The committees appointed to study minimum standards suggest a principle with which the Commission is in sympathy but which it frankly confesses it has so far been unable to state in the terms of a workable formula. The committees would reward districts—and county units—which show a willingness to conform with the provisions of a sound administrative program. The probabilities are that instead of endeavoring to follow a hard-and-fast rule, the best results could be achieved through the use of a special fund to be used in promoting consolidation and expended at the discretion of the State Council—or Board—of Education.

The committees named to study minimum standards, in their report and in the record of their deliberations, definitely emphasize the importance—the necessity—of creating or recreating the State Council—or Board—of Education as a functioning organization responsible for the formulation of educational programs and policies as well as for the maintenance of those activities, outside the realm of formal education, necessary in developing the State's educational system as a system.

The present State Council—or Board—of Education is a commission functioning within the Department of Public Instruction. The committees named to study minimum standards have formulated a program which can only be carried into effect through an agency such as the State Council—or Board—of Education can and should be.

As the Commission has already stated in a previous section of its report, the major responsibility properly devolving upon the Department of Public Instruction is to furnish educational leadership and guidance. There is need for a body—an official group—which will have as its major responsibility the duty of so organizing the field in which the Department of Public Instruction labors that it can work effectively and economically. This the department cannot do unless it is accorded the advantages accruing from a sound tax situation, a sound budgetary situation, a sound grouping of school administrative units.

In the opinion of the Commission, the committees named to study minimum standards not only deserve the thanks of the General Assembly, the Department of Public Instruction and the State Council—or Board—of Education, but should be continued in being as an auxiliary to the State Council—or Board—of Education, working with it in promoting the solution of the problems with which members of the committees have been directly concerned over a period of many months.

The Commission, in conveying the committees' intents and purposes to the General Assembly and to the State Council or Board of Education, is conscious of the fact much of real value will be lost in the process. Doubtless a more direct contact would be helpful to the Council and beneficial to the cause of education in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

The Commission transmits to the General Assembly the complete reports of the committees named to study minimum standards as those reports came to it from the professional members of the Board of Review.

In succeeding installments of its report, the Commission will discuss school expenditures in selected districts and will devote attention to some of the problems arising as a result of the Commonwealth's subsidy policies.

Respectfully submitted by the Commission,

H. G. Andrews, Chairman

PART VII

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is constructively interested—and properly—in the physical welfare of children, comprising a comparatively small group, who are subject to exploitation in industry, but, apparently, it is not equally interested in the mental, physical and ethical well-being of the 300,000 to 500,000 children in Pennsylvania who are denied the educational advantages to which, by natural right, under the Constitution, and by virtue of statutory enactments, they are entitled.

The question arises as to what we are going to do about it, because there can be no gainsaying the facts. The time has come to cut across much of the polite palaver which so frequently characterizes the discussion of educational problems.

Pennsylvania admittedly has many, many fine schools —schools which have no superior anywhere in the country. The State is further fortunate in the fact that it has many, many fine teachers. Moreover, we have a Department of Public Instruction capable of giving the Commonwealth educational leadership.

All of these are the fortunate phases of the situation. They comprise the bright and alluring facade behind which our education delinquencies are concealed.

These delinquencies are not the fault of the Department of Public Instruction, which is powerless in the situation. They are not the fault of the teachers. They, too, are powerless. The conditions which call for action can only be remedied by and through legislative action. The Commonwealth's educational problems are on the doorstep of the General Assembly, where they rap insistently for attention.

The tree of education in Pennsylvania is encircled by a band of district organization which stunts and starves. The children in the elementary schools are the blossoms on the educational tree, while the children who graduate from our secondary schools are the fruit. It is the blossoms and the fruit which are wronged when the tree itself is starved.

This section of the Commission's report is based upon a study of educational costs in selected school districts of Pennsylvania made by Dr. Raymond S. Short, assistant professor of political science in Temple University. Dr. Short made his study under the auspices and supervision of the Pennsylvania Economic Council, one of the agencies which has cooperated with the Commission in extending the range of its inquiry. The cooperation of the Pennsylvania Economic Council has involved, among other activities, the tabulation and analysis of the more important items from the fiscal reports of each and every public school system in Pennsylvania—2,583 districts in all—for the school years 1923-1924, 1928-1929, and 1933-1934. Dr. Short's findings have been based on the result of this detailed study, which is an outstanding contribution to the cause of sound educational procedure in this Commonwealth.

The Commission commends Dr. Short's report in its entirety to attention of all members of the General Assembly, to all members of the teaching profession and to the public generally. The Commission, in transmitting Dr. Short's study to the General Assembly, desires to call attention to the following outstanding and highly significant facts;

ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS

In the school year 1933-1934, there were 1,423 districts that offered no secondary school facilities.

Nearly one-half of these districts—672—had less than 150 pupils.

Approximately 29 percent of these districts had fewer than 100 pupils in daily average attendance.

An analysis of current expenditures per pupil for elementary education in these districts—less tuition, debt service and transportation—shows per pupils costs in the various districts ranging from $13.72 to $163.

The lowest median or middle cost, $33.76, is found in the group of districts having an average daily attendance of from 400 to 500. In the districts having from 300 to 700 pupils, median costs are in close agreement, ranging from $35.35 to $35.90 per pupil.

From the studies made by Dr. Short, it would seem that economical administration of elementary education, on the basis of Pennsylvania's experience, requires an average daily attendance of at least 300 pupils. Considered on a present cost basis, the large majority of districts fall in average daily attendance groups whose central tendencies show they are not of a proper administrative size.

At this point the Commission desires to emphasize what is, in effect, an outstanding indictment based upon "things as they are." The examination shows that an expenditure of $35.50 per pupil can be considered basic, since it is approximately the median low cost on the basis of attendance. However, the districts which are now operating at a per pupil cost of $35.50 are not offering programs that committees on minimum standards consider adequate.

Adequate programs are found only in the districts having 1,000 or more pupils, and in these districts the cost is approximately $47.00 per pupil. Even in these areas the educational offerings do not meet the standards considered adequate by educational authorities.

Further, an examination of the costs of the elementary program in school districts maintaining four-year high schools, with from 400 to 1,000 pupils in average daily attendance—the districts found to be most economical for high school administration—shows median costs of approximately $51.00 per pupil. These districts, it is admitted, offer an adequate—even superior—educational program. It would seem to be certain that, under existing conditions, acceptable educational programs cannot even be approximated for costs less than $45.00 per pupil and yet hundreds of districts fall below an acceptable median per pupil cost.

An elementary program in small districts costs, on the average, nearly twice as much as it does in districts having from 450 to 500 pupils.

The largest number of one-teacher schools is found in districts having from 350 to 400 pupils—districts which are presumably large enough to support consolidated schools.

Nearly one-third of the districts in the State have too few pupils to organize even one school of sufficient size to secure a desirable division of labor.

The teacher is the most important element in the school system.

Efficient teachers require adequate salaries.

When one-teacher schools are maintained by a district regardless of its size, salaries are apt to be low.

There were 1,263 teachers employed in 108 districts which were made the basis of a specific study. Of these, 47 per cent received less than $800; 68 per cent, less than $900; 75 per cent less than $1,000, and 7 per cent, $1,200 or more.

Here is a fact which will be startling at least to many casual observers. The largest percentage of salaries less than $700 is found in districts with from 700 to 800 pupils. Districts which show the lowest cost for current expenditures fall in the group which has the largest percentage for teachers receiving less than $800.

Something should undoubtedly be said from the standpoint of the districts. Only 12 per cent of the elementary teachers of the districts studied have college degrees. Of these, 33 per cent were employed in the largest six districts where there were the most multiple buildings and where salaries were the highest.

Generally speaking, the typical district offering only an elementary program confines its curriculum to elementary subjects Of 108 districts studied, only two employed an art teacher. None of them had special teachers for work in industrial arts, manual training, kindergarten, music or physical education. No special classes were maintained for the socially, physically or mentally handicapped.

If the 108 districts studied are typical, only a very small percentage of the districts that offer merely elementary programs provide any supervisory assistance.

Health examination has been neglected. As a result, schools are faced with the added burden of carrying retarded and repeating students, many of whom are physically defective. The small district is unable to make proper provision for this type of pupil.

A study of some of the low-cost districts shows that they spend less per pupil than the general average, mainly because the number of pupils per teacher is far above the average.

Among the districts with an average daily attendance of between 25 and 50 pupils, the middle cost districts spent nearly $30.00 more per pupil than did the low-cost districts, but each teacher in the low-cost districts had, on an average, 25 pupils more.

Many small districts overburden their teachers. On the other hand, there are small districts in which the median number of pupils is 11.

Multiple teacher schools make it possible to employ teachers who have specialized in certain grades or subjects. Pupils in the one-teacher schools are denied this advantage.

Specialization in teaching is found only in districts having 200 pupils or more.

SECONDARY SCHOOLS

In the case of secondary schools, the median per pupil cost was $47.00 more in districts with an average daily attendance of less than 50 pupils than in districts with average daily attendance of from 250 to 300 pupils.

The data studied indicates that a foundation program for districts supporting secondary four-year high schools now costs approximately $72.00 per pupil. This per pupil cost of $72.00 does not include any payments for transportation or debt service.

Four-year high schools, on the basis of the data studied by Dr. Short, should have at least 400 pupils in average daily attendance in order to be both economical and large enough to offer an adequate program.

On this basis, approximately 82 per cent of Pennsylvania's schools offering a four-year secondary program are too small for the greatest possible degree of efficiency and service.

Differences in the cost of offering a secondary program of four years and one of six years must be considered before it is possible to determine an acceptable foundation or minimum program. The committee on minimum standards urges that school districts be organized on a 6-6 basis—that is, six years of elementary schooling and six years of secondary schooling. It would seem from the studies Dr. Short has made that the average costs per pupil for six-year programs are higher than for four-year programs in districts with average daily attendance up to 700 pupils. Therefore, it would seem to be essential, if the General Assembly decides to organize districts on a 6-6 basis, that it provide for districts making possible larger attendance.

The median cost of a four-year program in the smallest attendance group studied was approximately $40.00 more per pupil than the $72.00 per pupil accepted as the approximate cost in district of the more economical size.

In return for this added burden, the children of the taxpayers in small districts were offered inferior education opportunities.

It is not until high schools of 400 pupils or more are reached that courses in home economics, industrial arts and manual training are, as a rule, offered.

Districts with less than 200 pupils in their high schools, as a rule—although there are pronounced exceptions—show themselves inferior to larger districts in practically every respect, whether it be cost, the character of the educational program or the quality of the teaching.

The defects observed in small districts can be corrected in larger districts at a total lower cost per pupil.

Not only is the program as a whole relatively more expensive in small districts, but certain courses are particularly so, due to the small number of pupils enrolled in these courses. In the smaller districts there are many classes in which less than 10 pupils are enrolled.

Differences of from 10 to 17 pupils per teacher exist among the smaller districts.

One reason for the employment of a relatively large number of teachers for the number of pupils enrolled is the desire to offer a more extensive program. This is a factor in districts near large cities.

A less worthy factor is the one which Dr. Logan's study brings to light—the reduction of the local assessed valuation per teacher in order that the school district may obtain a larger percentage of State aid.

There are a few districts—especially in Luzerne and Schuylkill Counties—where high costs cannot be explained on the basis of the offerings. A study should undoubtedly be made to ascertain the reasons for high costs in such districts.

SUMMARY

No matter from what angle the subject of school costs and school programs is approached, the small district stands out as the major weakness in the present school system.

The operating budget for such districts are generally relatively high, as are their administrative costs.

The average elementary district cannot offer its program economically with less than 300 pupils in average daily attendance.

A four-year high school program cannot be offered economically with less than 250 pupils; and if an adequate secondary program is to be offered economically, the district must be larger.

Not only do pupils living in the average elementary district fail to get a proper elementary education, but many of them fail to get a high school education of any kind.

In fourth class districts not maintaining high schools, approximately 15 percent of all pupils were enrolled in high schools in other districts; but in school districts of the fourth class having four-year high schools, approximately 23 percent of all pupils were enrolled in high schools.

In third class districts, 24 percent of the pupils were enrolled in high schools; in second class districts, 26 percent; and in first class districts, 29 per cent.

The conclusion is inevitable—that districts not large enough to maintain an adequate 12-year program must eventually be abolished or consolidated with other districts.

The State, as well as the local school district, has a decided interest in enlarging districts that are too small for efficient operation. The districts studied show that the median amount of State aid per pupil was twice as much for the districts in the smallest elementary group as it was for the districts in the largest elementary attendance group.

The Commonwealth grants more aid per pupil, on the average, to districts offering only an elementary program than it does to districts offering all 12 grades.

The State is vitally interested in district organization, since it is obligated to see that its children have every opportunity to enable them to adjust themselves to modern economic and social conditions through the advantages that a progressive educational system places at their disposal.

It is apparent that the State is now subsidizing expensive and inferior districts and that better education could be given in Pennsylvania at a lower cost per pupil if existing districts were reorganized into larger units of administration.

On the basis of the studies made, approximately 89 percent of the present districts in Pennsylvania are too small.

The foregoing comprises, at best only a sketchy review of the study Dr. Short has made. The Commission has every reason to rely upon Dr. Short's figures since they have been checked and rechecked.

When Dr. Short concludes by saying that the need for district reorganization is clearly demonstrated, the Commission concurs in that finding. But once again the members of the Commission desire to point out that they are not interested in reorganization for reorganization's sake. Their primary concern is to make proper educational advantages available for all the children of the Commonwealth.

Moreover, the Commission is conviced that consolidation cannot be effected instantaneously by fiat. It is, by reason of local conditions and accepted traditions, a long-range proposition involving further study concerning the following specific matters:

Capital expenditures that will be necessary in effecting district reorganization along sound lines.

The actual cost of an acceptable foundation or minimum program.

The establishment of local ability to pay upon a sound basis.

Transportation costs that must necessarily be increased if district reorganization is to be effected.

Necessary increase in instruction costs that must be incurred if a better type of education is to be offered to more pupils.

Offsetting all of these factors, there are undoubtedly types of current school expenditure which can be either eliminated or decidedly curtailed. As a matter of fact, district consolidation and reorganization in the mountainous sections of Pennsylvania will actually call for an intensive study upon the ground, and then there must, of course, ultimately be a decision as to the size—the extent—of school districts from the standpoint of administration.

Even those who accept the county unit as the ultimate goal must realize that much intensive research effort is necessary before county units can be established and developed to the point where they function effectively.

Respectfully submitted by the Commission.

H. G. Andrews, Chairman.

PART VIII

Pennsylvania's General Assembly, its Department of Public Instruction, members of the teaching profession and the various State Administrations, as they come and go, have not performed their appointed function until Pennsylvania has admittedly the best—the soundest—State educational system in all the land.

How far down on the list is Pennsylvania? The only proper answer, under all of the circumstances, is—TOO FAR. It would be too far down if it were generally rated among educational authorities as second. Since its rating according to commonly accepted standards, runs all the way from fifth to twelfth, the showing is unnecessarily humiliating.

This showing is humiliating—and unnecessarily so—because Pennsylvania possesses sufficient wealth, sufficient brains, sufficient educational institutions, sufficient educational vision and leadership to enable it to do a first-class educational job if its resources are coordinated and utilized in conformity with the provisions of a long-range plan—a plan, however, which is constantly revised and kept in step, not only with public sentiment, but also with educational needs, special and general, as they may from time to time arise in any section of our Commonwealth's educational domain.

Pennsylvania possesses all of the human factors necessary in the creation of a public school system which would set the standard for the nation.

These human factors have not been coordinated and, as a result, educational opportunity has been needlessly restricted.

While we are not spending too much for education, we are emphatically not spending the money available to the best advantage.

The probabilities are that the solution of Pennsylvania's educational problems should, in the future, develop less commendatory back-slapping and more soul-searching—less smug approval of our very real accomplishments and more attention to our admitted failures.

In the consideration of Pennsylvania's educational problems, this Commission, members of the General Assembly, the Department of Public Instruction and members of the teaching profession are continually threshing old straw. There is no disagreement concerning the steps which must ultimately be taken. Every group of laymen and every group of educators reach practically the same conclusions. Moreover, the conclusions reached by Pennsylvania groups are in almost complete agreement with the findings of various National Commissions.

There is no lack of knowledge as to what should be done. There has been, however, a failure definitely to place responsibility for doing.

What are some of the admitted facts?

We do not have a balanced system of taxation.

The burden of school support has not been scientifically apportioned.

We do not have equalized assessments and therefore we cannot actually equalize the apportionments of State subsidies which are based upon asessments.

We do not have sound administrative school units. Since we do not have sound administrative school units, we do not have economic administration.

We have not in any real sense equalized educational advantage.

All of these contentions, and many others of similar vein, have been established beyond the shadow of a doubt through the studies made by this Commission and its affiliated agencies—studies which have been submitted for the consideration of the General Assembly and its educational committees.

The fact that those who concern themselves with Pennsylvania's more pressing educational problems are continually threshing old straw is made evident when it is realized that the Department of Public Instruction now, and in the past, has correctly stated the Commonwealth's educational objectives and has also phrased the formulas which must necessarily be used in achieving those objectives.

Here is the program to which the Department of Public Instruction, the various administrations as they come and go, the General Assembly, forward-looking men and women throughout the State, progressive school boards and members of the teaching profession are, and have long been, committed in principle:

For every child in Pennsylvania, protection of his constitutional rights to an education—suited to his need—economic, mental and spiritual; a recognition of the fact that no educational system is suited to the need of the individual child which does not actually recognize that child as an individual.

For every child, an understanding, competent teacher; a recognition of the fact that schools are not being maintained for the benefit of school boards or for the benefit of teachers and the recognition of the further fact that those who are most insistent upon protecting the teacher will also be most insistent upon the promotion and the protection of teaching ability.

For every child, an adaptable educational program—instruction and practice—in how to become a competent citizen—training and guidance to do some part of the world's work well—activities for the development of worthy home membership, wise use of leisure time, health, culture and character. However, it is not enough simply to repeat this formula, since every now and then the objectives stated must be critically checked against results. There is reason to believe that this check is not systematically made.

For every child, a school term sufficient in length to enable him to profit to the full extent of his capacities from opportunities offered by education.

For every child, safe, sanitary, hygenic and properly equipped school buildings and grounds.

For every citizen of the Commonwealth provision for a continuing education—to make up for the opportunities lost in earlier years—and to provide means whereby the individual may adjust himself to new civic, social and economic responsibility.

This statement, admirable in its range and purpose, is a feature in current literature issued by the Department of Public Instruction. If we are actually doing all of these things, there would be no reason why anyone should question the established order. However, we are falling short of our own objectives. We are not continuously and persistently ascertaining the exact point at which we are failing. Moreover, when we have ascertained the points of failure, we are not using the remedies which lie near at hand.

The need for constructive action is abundantly set forth in a statement made not so many months ago by a former superintendent of public instruction, who, after pointing out Pennsylvania's substantial educational achievements, went on to say:

> We have, in many parts of Pennsylvania, an educational program which is both a danger and a menace. In many of our rural areas, many of our small towns, the level of educational opportunity provided for boys and girls living there can only be properly described as being disgraceful.

In the last decade, educational conferences, one after the other have pointed out it was necessary to begin "rethinking our whole program of public education." Some years ago the Department of Public Instruction affirmed and reaffirmed its allegiance to the "Program of the three R's," which included:

> Reconstruction and restoration of the instructional program to meet the needs of Pennsylvania's diverse communities.
> Reorganization of school districts in terms of efficiency and economy.
> Revision of the system of school support so as to guarantee a foundation program to every district and equitably to distribute the burden over all of the taxable units and resources of the State.

At an educational conference in 1934, the present treasurer of the Commonwealth in his address said:

> I am firmly convinced that we are due and overdue for a reorganization of school districts and a revision of school support. Educational leadership should not be sacrificed and the best brains at the disposal of our public school problems should be set to work to present to our General Assembly such legislation as will assure a maximum of educational benefits and at the same time, if possible, a reduction in the heavy drain of local taxation that has become almost confiscatory.

In its program for 1936, the Department of Public Instruction carried the following financial planks:

> Providing a financial program that will equalize educational opportunity in all parts of Pennsylvania:
> (a) By increasing State subsidies to districts which have improved educational opportunities through consolidation.
> (b) By granting sufficient special aid to enable districts in extraordinary financial distress to maintain an adequate educational program.
> Adapting school plant construction to the new requirements of consolidation and other needs of an ever-expanding educational program.
> Improving transportation service to provide larger attendance areas with the fullest possible educational facilities.
> Evolving a formula for the equitable allocation of appropriations to education with due regard to the respective requirements.

Members of the State Council of Education have been equally insistent that changes be made in our manner and method of handling our educational problems. Francis R. Cope, Jr., a member of the State Council, in a widely quoted statement said:

> Let us insist on some kind of an impartial state-wide or state-control method of assessment as the next most important step in school recovery.

Many of the educational problems that face Pennsylvania are not peculiar to this Commonwealth. If this Commission had been able to extend the range of its inquiry into every nook and corner of the State, it could not have gone beyond the basic conclusions reached by the National Conference on the Financing of Education, which convened in 1933. The recommendations made by this conference fall so aptly at this time into Pennsylvania's situation that we are impelled to make them a part of this report.

The National Conference on the Financing of Education pointed out, first of all, that in every step taken it was essential to safeguard local initiative. It was pointed out, however, that as a result of the depression, by reason of a shift in population, because of regional declines in values and because arbitrarily-formed districts were inherently weak, local initiative in many sections had been stifled. It was therefore the business of the Commonwealth to so modify State support and to so organize local districts that they would once again be strong enough to exemplify local initiative in the terms of better schools.

> Local initiative is frequently rendered inoperative because of low regional financial ability, an unbalanced tax system and a lack of local leadership in many relatively small districts.

The National Conference on the Financing of Education correctly points out that the operation of local initiative constitutes the most effective means yet developed whereby the schools of the State may be guaranteed that flexibility and constant adaptation to the social needs of a rapidly changing civilization which is fundamental to educational efficiency.

That being the case, it is manifestly the business of the State to create such local school districts as are capable of effectively exercising local initiative.

The studies made under the auspices of this Commission serve simply to place local facts and figures back of conclusions reached by the National Conference. As a result of a rather extended inquiry, the Commission has found exactly what the National Conference said we would find, namely:

> That the size and type of reorganization of the local unit of school administration is a determining factor in meeting the problems associated with economy and efficiency in school managament and finance;
> That, in many instances, a reorganization of local school units must be effected before a genuinely economical administration of the schools is even possible.

These are exactly the conclusions which Dr. Short reaches as a result of his study—conclusions that are sustained by incontrovertible figures.

The results of intelligent district reorganization can be briefly summarized as:

> More adequate elementary school opportunities.
> More adequate high school opportunities.
> More adequate opportunities for other educational services.
> Less per pupil costs for equal or better services.
> Increased probability of securing, at an economical cost, more adequate administrative and supervisory services.
> The simplification of the problems of apportionment of State school funds and the equalization of educational opportunities.
> The standardization of teachers' salaries upon higher levels.
> The certification of teachers upon higher levels.
> Increased opportunity for local initiative.
> More adequate professional leadership.
> Standardization of transportation costs.

Consolidation in and of itself, however, is not the answer—as many of the districts which have been reorganized and which are listed as consolidated districts are actually too small to perform their proper service economically. Such districts, in many instances, have come about as a result of enthusiastic but badly guided and inadequately informed local initiative and have not been set up in accordance with any acceptable criterion.

As the National Conference, to which repeated reference has already been made, very properly pointed out, the only way to avoid the formation of undesirable districts as a result of local initiative is to make state-wide plans and to provide dependable guidance.

That there is a trend in the direction of consolidation cannot be denied. Since 1920, some 800 consolidated schools have been organized. It is stated that these schools have an enrollment of some 200,000 pupils. This is an average enrollment of 250 pupils. Many of these consolidated schools obviously have less than 250 pupils. Such consolidations, however commendable from various local points of view, have not served to create sound administrative units.

The question at issue, therefore, is not the desirability of consolidation but rather how to achieve it.

This Commission is convinced that comprehensive district reorganzation cannot be brought about, under existing circumstances, immediately as a result of legislative fiat.

In many sections of this State, any sound district reorganization program must be based upon an intensive study of local areas for the purpose of ascertaining:

Relative sparsity and density of population.
Topography.
Relative ability to pay of the various school units within the district studied.
Existing school buildings and equipment.
Probable necessary capital expenditures.
Transportation costs.
Tuition charges.
Cost of a foundation educational program based upon the contemplated reorganization.
Cost of specialized educational offerings for which there may be a pronounced need in the district surveyed.

These are only some of the phases of each local situation which must actually be studied before a sound district reorganization plan can be inaugurated.

The planning feature of the program is its all-important phase.

The Legislature could, of course, create school districts arbitrarily as it creates other districts. Such procedure would obviously be unwise. The Legislature can delegate authority to create, alter or reorganize local units, but nothing worth while is likely to be accomplished unless some State agency, now existing, is authorized to proceed; or, if power is not to be vested in an existing agency, then it is necessary to create a commission authorized and equipped to plan and, at least within certain limits, empowered to give mandatory effect to its findings.

The importance of an adequately financed planning agency, functioning on a year-around basis, cannot be over-emphasized.
The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is faced by many of its pending educational problems and by problems in other fields because it has failed to make adequate appropriations for planning and for research.

The State of New York is attempting to find out whether the public is getting what it needs in education and is spending $500,000. A survey covering a two-year period is being made in that State for the purpose of establishing costs for each of the courses in the curriculum.

Owen D. Young, Chairman of the Survey Commission, in explaining the purpose of the work being done, said that the people of New York have long known what they were paying for their entire educational menu. However, no one seemed to know exactly what the various dishes which formed a part of the menu were costing.

"After this survey is made," said Mr. Young, "the price of every dish on the educational menu will be marked after it. Prices of new dishes will be estimated and then it will be for the public to say what dishes it wants."

In Pennsylvania, at the present time, the best that can be done is to compile estimates as to what various types of education or courses in the educational menu are costing. The absence of data makes it very difficult to formulate and intelligently finance a state-wide minimum foundation program.

It is possible, it is true, to analyze existing costs under existing conditions, but, on the other hand, it is impossible to tell, on the basis of existing data, what particular items on the educational menu should cost because many items that should form a part of the menu in various localities are not now included.

Pennsylvania, on the basis of experience in other States and in view of the needs that exist, should spend at least $300,000 a year on planning and research in the field of education.
In addition, the Commonwealth should make an appropriation with which to encourage and finance approved educational experiments.

Here again it is necessary to cite New York as an example. The Speyer School in New York City is making a five-year study of how to teach and what to teach the exceptionally bright student. Benjamin B. Greenburg, the assistant superintendent of the New York City Schools, in discussing this matter says:

For the mentally sick, for the delinquent, we do something; but for the gifted, we do nothing. It is strange that in a democracy such as ours, we neglect the superior child.

Educators generally concede that gifted children are not getting the right kind of education. Teachers rate them as troublesome or as just plain nuisances. Educational psychologists are not certain how to handle such pupils. As a result, brilliant students are unnecessarily retarded. Pennsylvania could well afford to make its contribution toward the solution of this particular problem.

We cite these cases simply as illustrations of the services which only planning and research can render.

The State Council—or Board—of Education is the logical agency under which to integrate planning and research organizations. The Council is in a position to command, not only the resources of the State Department of Public Instruction, but also—without prejudice to that department—to enlist the services of educational specialists serving in other fields.

The General Assembly now in session may or may not be big with accomplishment in the field of education, but, whatever the accomplishments of this session may be, their significance and effect will be minimized unless there is an agency which carries on and which is charged, by legislative mandate, to carry on.

As to whether the ultimate outcome in Pennsylvania will be the formation of county units, providing county supervision under the direction of county boards of education, or whether public sentiment, research and experience will dictate the formation of districts, subject to district supervision, with district supervisors functioning within their areas as city superintendents now function within their jurisdiction, is anybody's guess—although development would seem now to be in the direction of district autonomy with district supervision under the direction of district boards.

Whatever the outcome, there are intermediate steps which must necessarily be taken. One of these steps is properly represented by demonstration efforts made under the auspices of the State planning agency.

The Commission is convinced that in dealing with districts which are the proper subjects of a reorganization program, the State can well afford to adopt the policy of "paying them to be good." At the present time, backward districts or districts which find themselves in financial difficulties as a result of their own mistakes are rewarded by being awarded emergency assistance. On the other hand, there are no rewards for those districts which, even at a financial sacrifice, raise their educational standards and voluntarily create sound administrative school units.

The Commission, therefore, specifically recommends:

That at least $300,000 be appropriated for the use of the State Council—or Board—of Education as a planning agency.
That the State Council—or Board—be instructed by the Legislature, at its discretion, to select one or more counties, make the necessary surveys and projects a district reorganization plan.

That the State Council—or Board of Education be authorized to classify administrative or attendance areas as approved districts, provided:

That there are a sufficient number of pupils properly grouped, to make it possible to offer an approved foundation program for at least a median cost.

That the State Council—or Board of Education be authorized to grant State support to approved districts on a per pupil basis, the total per pupil allotment not to exceed 15 per cent in excess of present State subsidies.

That school districts not having approved organization be restricted to present State subsidies.

The effect of these recommendations would, of course, be to encourage the formation of districts able to maintain elementary and secondary schools of sufficient size to enable them to offer an adequate program of education.

It is further suggested that during the survey period, which will take at least two years, if not indeed four, the State Council—or Board of Education promote consolidation on the basis of local agreement and consent—the understanding being, however, that, following the period of planning, which should be definitely fixed by the Legislature, the State Council—or Board—will press for discretionary power to alter, create and reorganize districts when the facts show that educational opportunity is being curtailed and expenditures are being maintained at unnecessarily high levels as a result of a failure to reorganize.

As a part of its research activities, the planning agency—the State Council—or Board of Education—would necessarily be compelled to establish local ability to pay. In so doing, it would properly exercise the powers it now possesses to equalize assessment of valuations in any particular district.

The planning agency, further, would be able to determine what the cost to the State would actually be if local real property were assessed at a uniform figure—five mills, for example—for school purposes, with the State meeting the remaining cost of the mandated foundation program.

Further, the planning agency would be able to determine exactly what increases would be necessary in total State support if the Commonwealth paid the entire cost of the mandated foundation or minimum program, thus rendering local resources available for use in raising the educational standard to conform with particular local needs and situations.

The planning agency would also be in a position to study the very pressing problem of providing a balanced financial support for education.

The planning agency is in a position to ascertain local ability to pay upon the basis of real estate valuations. It is also now in a position to determine local ability to pay upon the basis of personal property assets.

The suggestion has been made that local school districts be authorized to tax both real property and personal property ratably for school purposes. That is, if the valuation of real property was $15,000,000 while the valuation of personal property was $5,000,000, the school district be permitted to raise three-fourths of its school taxes from levies on real estate and one-fourth from levies on real property.

If this suggestion were carried into effect, it would, of course, be necessary to stipulate that the combined millage levied by the State, the county and the school district upon personal property should not exceed the total millage levied on real property.

In any event, the planning agency would be compelled to face, in any one given district, all of the situations confronting those who attack our educational problems upon a state-wide basis.

While the Commission has faith in legislation, it realizes that effective legislative enactments in the field of education must be based upon information scientifically secured, scientifically classified and scientifically interpreted.

If this Commission can do no more than direct attention to the necessity of financing continuous planning activities, it will have served a very real purpose.

Respectfully Submitted by the Commission

H. G. Andrews, Chairman.

PART IX

Schools should be schools. There is something wrong with our thinking and doing when the term "city school" carries with it the connotation of excellence, while the phrase "rural school" is far too generally construed as being descriptive of something that is not quite so good.

* * *

It is the duty of the General Assembly to enact such legislation as will make it possible gradually to wipe out the "margin of excellence" which separate RURAL schools from the CITY systems.

* * *

There is a possibility, of course, that schools are far too frequently classified on the basis of capital investment. A school housed in a building costing a million dollars, two million or even more is supposed to be very good indeed. This, however, is neither the time or the place for a discussion concerning the relevance of capital investment to actual school needs. It suffices to admit that rural districts cannot compete with the cities in a race involving the expenditure of dollars for architectural effect. Nor is it necessary they should do so.

Rural school districts, however, can and should—with the assistance of the State when necessary—actually compete with the cities in maintaining administrative personnel at "city standard" levels. This can be done in most sections of the State without entailing any hardships upon the local community or the Commonwealth.

A critical examination would doubtless reveal the fact that many communities would not now be compelled to economize on teaching and administrative personnel if their building program had been a trifle less enthusiastic and optimistic—but investments in buildings that have been made, have been made and that's an end of it, except to pay the bills.

* * *

What rural school units, which are actually inferior, need is sound district business management, teaching ability and adequate district supervision. Members of school boards who say, "Why should we have supervisors? Don't we have good teachers?" are in their own persons one of the reasons why Pennsylvania does not stand in the front rank educationally. It is not the Commission's intention to debate the subject of supervision, which can doubtless be overdone. As between no supervision at all and too much the choice doubtless lies with the latter alternative.

As pointed out in previous portions of this report, the Commission is interested in the ultimate development of school administrative units which will make it possible for rural school to establish city school educational standards. This cannot be accomplished in a year and a day, but it is a goal toward which the Commonwealth, in justice to its children, under the mandate of the Constitution must drive. This mandate is as binding as any other section of the Constitution and reads:

The General Assembly SHALL provide for the maintenance and support of a thorough and efficient system of public schools, wherein all the children of this Commonwealth above the age of six may be educated.

Studies made by the Commission show that weak districts tend to fall into the lap of the State—become, as a matter of fact, the educational wards of the Commonwealth

Local initiative cannot thrive under such conditions. The preservation of local initiative, the maintenance of the home rule principle is, therefore, almost wholly dependent upon the formation of districts which are strong enough to present a STRONG EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM.

The question arises as to how large an administrative local school unit should be. The answer to that question has been admirably phrased for the Commission by H. O. Dietrich, Superintendent of the Norristown Public Schools, as follows:

A local unit of school administration should be large enough to make it possible to provide necessary administrative and supervisory services at a cost that bears a reasonable relationship to the total current cost of the educational program.

There is much fuzzy thinking being done concerning the problem of so-called district consolidation. The facts are that the factors which resulted in the creation of present city districts are affecting rural situations. Moreover, the formation of many city districts was opposed on exactly the grounds cited by those who oppose the formation of larger rural districts.

Take a typical instance. The city of Johnstown, for example, was created by merging a number of boroughs. Each borough, at the time of the merger, maintained its own schools, which operated under the direction of borough school boards. Many people in the boroughs were bitterly opposed to a CITY school system. They were quite certain a CITY school board and a CITY superintendent would "not treat their children right." They talked about home rule and local initiative.

If the matter were put to a vote, would the people of Johnstown be willing to split their CITY SCHOOL DISTRICT into seven smaller districts—each operating under its own local school board? Certainly not. For what has actually happened has been this. The educational program has been standardized throughout the city. The children living in those portions of the city in which valuations are low have all of the educational advantages at the disposal of the children living in sections in which property valuations are high. The Johnstown School District simply typifies the experienc of all other city school districts.

How many children should there be in an ideal school district? Superintendent Dietrich has furnished the Commission with an analysis of studies that have been made and which were based upon NATIONAL figures. Dr. Short's study was based upon Pennsylvania figures. It is significant that in the main the two reports check.

If rural school units are to be brought up to city unit levels how large should they be, how many teachers should they employ, what constitutes a curriculum necessary for a complete and comprehensive high school analyzed in terms of teaching positions, what is the proper size of an elementary school, what is the minimum number of persons necessary to perform effectively the functions of educational and business supervision in a satisfactory manner at a reasonable cost—these are a few of the questions with which Superintendent Dietrich deals.

The national figures and the authorities who comment upon them are pretty well agreed that from 10,000 to 12,000 pupils make a right tidy administrative unit.

Of course, as Superintendent Dietrich quite correctly points out, it is impossible to organize Pennsylvania into school units in which there are 10,000 pupils or more.

If it were possible to do that, organization and routine administration troubles would all be over and attention could be centered upon the FUCTIONING of the system in terms of costs and results.

Another very desirable local unit is one which includes at least 6,000 pupils.

Quite obviously, it is impractical at this time to dot Pennsylvania with districts—all of which include 6,000 pupils or more. However, the formation of many such districts are distinctly within the range of possibility.

The national figures further indicate that local units which include from 1750 to 2,000 pupils make it possible to provide effective district administration. Each of these would, of course, operate under its own school board, which would employ the teaching staff and the superintendent or district supervisor.

* * *

As pointed out, Superintendent Dietrich summarizes NATIONAL figures. The cost ratios given represent National averages. However, the figures given are not inspired. They do not fix absolute metes and bounds. They simply indicate points of maximum efficiency and economy in the administration of school units. Smaller units can obtain the services needed by paying the price.

However, larger school units cannot be created casually; they cannot safely be thrown together, helter skelter just for the sake of effecting a consolidation. Counties, as long as they exist, are the natural survey units. Ultimately, Pennsylvania's school unit map will not show any "eternal boundaries." District organization will be flexible enough to meet existing needs as they arise. A district that may be economically sound today may become "an abandoned coal town" tomorrow.

The formula for forming larger school units, for the time being, would seem to be:

The STATE PLANNING AGENCY studies a county situation and obtains all of the relevant facts.

On the basis of the facts, the State Planning Agency frames a provisional district organization plan.

The State Planning Agency, by means of conferences conciliation and education seeks to secure the voluntary adoption of the provisional plan in as many separate instances as possible.

If obstacles arise, the State Planning Agency should be permitted—upon petition—to put the provisional plan to a vote of the electors in any given provisional district.

If there is no petition, the State Planning Agency should be permitted, on its own initiative, to carry the Provisional District plan to an election.

The Planning Agency should be permitted to make an increase in the amount of State aid received by the consolidating districts, and districts declining to consolidate continuing to receive State aid on the present basis.

These proposals are based upon the presumption that the State Council or Board of Education is the body that would be established as the State Planning Agency.

While just now attention is centered upon districts which are admittedly too small to be administered effectively the time may come when the district which is overly large may constitute a problem; if so, the matter will be resolved upon the basis of research and experience. It is upon this basis that the problem of the small district must ultimately be resolved.

* * *

At the present time, many school problems are being discussed heatedly. This is unfortunate because those who would be helpful must attune their ears to the logic of mathematics. A majority of the proposals sponsored by this Commission could actually be reduced to mathematical formulas.

* * *

One factor alone has encouraged this Commission to undertake the labor involved in formulating its report. This factor is the conviction that while for the present we may be shouting down a rain barrel "the conclusions reached represent the steps that must ultimately be taken." Those who carry on will doubtless be able to appeal to a wider audience than this Commission has reached.

The Commission has made some mistakes in procedure and policy for which the chairman must alone assume responsibility. At the beginning of our inquiry we proceeded upon the assumption that an analysis of existing costs, an examination of educational functioning, a tabulation of local error would best serve to direct a corrective public sentiment upon educational problems. Only casual inquiry was necessary to establish the conviction that the considerations to be faced were basic involving a reorganization in the Commonwealth's tax structure and in school administration over wide areas. In comparison with issues of this magnitude the errors of individual school boards, unfortunate situations in various local districts, local tendencies to over-expand along lines of unessential endeavor loom as comparatively minor matters.

The Commission regrets that the rights of all children to attend a good school are not as much a matter of concern as the tenure of teachers in schools—many of which are inadequate and unreasonably expensive. The Commission has outlined a program designed to afford tenure to teachers and also to establish salaries at reasonable levels by wiping out the discriminations practiced at the expense of many teachers employed in fourth class districts.

* * *

In the matter of school costs, the Commission takes the position that the first step in the direction of economy is to make sound administration possible. If this is, indeed, repetition our answer is that repetition is an accepted educational formula.

In connection with this installment of its report the Commission transmits to the General Assembly the analysis of national figures covering the cost and size of acceptable school administrative units.

MINIMUM SECONDARY SCHOOL ENROLLMENT—MINIMUM ELEMENTARY SCHOOL ENROLLMENT—UNIT OF INSTRUCTION FOR BOTH SECONDARY AND ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS CONDUCIVE WITH ECONOMY AND EFFICIENCY.

Expert opinion is almost unanimous in condemning the small high school because of its numerous shortcomings, chiefly the limitations pertaining to the curriculum and the cost per pupil. Bulletin No. 3A—45 of the Department of Interior shows that the larger unit schools are the most eonomical. The average per pupil cost range runs like this: In 30 pupil enrollment high schools the per pupil cost was $254.13; in 90 pupil schools, $227.38; in 147 pupil schools, $198.24; in 349 pupil schools, $168.31; and in 1700 pupil schools, $118.14. Again in California the cost range runs like this: In 10 pupil high schools, $205.00; in 20 pupils schools, $117.00; in 30 pupil schools, $83.00; in 70 pupil schools, $80.00; in 210 pupil schools $74.00; in 1000 pupil schools, $56.00. The concluding evidence is, the smaller the high school the higher the per pupil cost.

In order to determine a desirable size of high school an acceptable curriculum must be defined. The size of a school required to present economically a standard curriculum is determined from such a curriculum by the number of teaching positions required. Standard regulations indicate that no secondary teacher should teach in more than two fields, and these two fields should be closely related. Bachman, in Training and Certification of High School Teachers, Field Study No. 2, Division of Surveys and Field Studies, George Peabody College for Teachers, shows the curriculum necessary for a complete and comprehensive high school analyzed in terms of teaching positions to be:

1. English and Latin or German or French.
2. Social Studies and a second optional related field
3. Mathematics and Science
4. Home Economics
5. Agriculture
6. Commercial Education
7. Trade Training
8. Music
9. Art
10. Health and Physical Education

It will be seen from this analysis that ten is the minimum number of teachers required for an acceptable high school, whether it is a junior, a senior, or a six-year high school. By assigning the fields of music, art, health and physical education to other members of the staff an absolute minimum of seven teachers would be required.

Evidence as to the size of high school required to offer a sufficiently wide curriculum to meet economically the needs of the school population indiates that the absolute minimum size high school should have seven teaching positions and the desirable minimum should have ten teaching positions.

Experiments have been conducted showing that insofar as measurement of instructional results by standard tests are concerned small classes have no advantages over large classes. Kirk, in A Study of Class Size, summarized all studies of class size available. He found 205 references in the literature to 108 different investigations. Of 54 investigations, taking into consideration the element of brightness of the pupils, in 29 cases the largest classes excelled, in 22 cases the small classes, and in 3 cases neither. Fifty-seven studies are reported for the college division, in 44 of which large classes excelled, and in 13 the small classes. While the great majority of large classes in college work excelled the results for secondary schools were pretty nearly evenly divided, slightly in favor of the large class.

According to the National Education Association, the average size class for 47 cities over 100,000 population for high schools was 34 pupils; in 101 cities of 30 to 100,000 population the average size class for high schools was 29, and in 56 cities under 30,000 population it was 29. Thus we see the average class size for a high school to be approximately 31 pupils. Englehart shows data giving the average size classes for high schools as 26-30. The North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools sets 25 as the desirable number of pupils per teacher and will not permit more than 30 per teacher for schools belonging to the association.

For junior high schools the National Education Association shows the average enrollment for the three classes of cities mentioned before as 34, 29 and 29, an average of 31. Glass suggests the maximum sized class for junior high schools as 33.

From these references we must conclude that secondary school classes should range from 25 to 35 pupils per teacher, an average of 30 per teacher.

We know the standard secondary curriculum takes an absolute minimum of seven and desirable minimum of 10 teachers. We also have the desirable number of pupils per class or teacher. It would seem then that in terms of the standard pupil-teacher ratios shown a six-year high school would have an absolute minimum of approximately 210 pupils and a desirable minimum of 300 pupils. In the same manner we conclude that a three-year junior high school should have from 245-350 pupils and a three-year senior high school from 175 to 250 pupils. In general, the cost per pupil tends to increase rapidly in schools under 200 enrollment. So we might say that no junior or senior high school should have less than 200 pupils as an absolute minimum and as a desirable minimum 300.

SIZE OF ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS

A majority of studies concerning the size of elementary schools as related to efficiency have more or less arbitrarily classified schools having six or more teachers as large schools and all other as small schools. These studies have made comparisons between large and small schools as to age-grade and grade-progress status of pupils, achievement as measured by standardized tests, the training and experience of teachers, the length of the school term, the breadth of the curriculum, the time allotment to subjects, and the cost per pupil. Such factors as the breath of the curriculum offering, time allotment to various subjects, the cost per pupil, and probably age-grade and grade-progress status and achievement of pupils are factors inseparable from the size of the school. Studies are in agreement that in all these factors the large school is superior.

In the matter of school achievement the pupils in the large schools have the advantage. Covert, in a study of educational achievements in one-teacher and in larger schools, shows that for eight states, viz: Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, New York, Oklahoma, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia, the pupils of the larger schools show superior achievement. Small schools of necessity are limited in the extent of curriculum offerings. There is not enough teaching time available to offer training in art, music, physical education and other cultural activities. In a careful study of the time allotments of 15 states and 40 large cities by subject matter experts time allotments have been standardized. It has been found that approximately 1500 minutes per week constitute the teaching time for one teacher.

To carry out an elementary curriculum on proper time allotments for all six grades, a minimum of six teachers will be required for an elementary school. Statistics of enrollment by grades in elementary grades in all states and in all types of communities reveals the fact that the enrollment in the first grade and often in the second grade constitute more than the proportionate percentage of pupils that would be in these grades if all pupils made equal progress in school. This excess enrollment in these grades makes it difficult to assign one teacher to the grade, or the same number of teachers to each grade in a school that has more than one teacher. Thus, a six grade school would have an enrollment which would require at least seven teachers to prevent overcrowding.

Accepting the study of enrollment per teacher in the 47 cities, 101 cities and 56 cities of over 100,000, 30,000 to 100,000 and under 30,000 population, we find that the 40 pupils teacher ratio prevails. The elementary school, therefore, should have a minimum enrollment of 240 to 280 pupils.

From the foregoing our conclusions will be the following standards for satisfactory elementary and secondary schools.

Elementary schools should:

1. Offer six years of instruction;
2. Have a desirable minimum of seven teachers or an absolute minimum of six teachers;
3. Have an average of approximately forty enrolled pupils per teacher;
4. Have, therefore, approximately a minimum of 240-280 pupils per school.

Secondary schools should:

1. Have a desirable minimum of ten teachers or an absolute minimum of seven teachers;
2. Have an average of approximately thirty pupils per teacher in six year high school, thirty-fiv epupils per teacher in a junior high school, or twenty-five to thirty pupils per teacher in a senior high school;
3. Have, therefore, approximately a minimum of 210 to 300 pupils in a six-year high school, 245 to 350 pupils in a junior high school, and 175 to 350 pupils in a senior high school;
4. Schools should be in session at least 36 weeks of the year. Transportation, for all children living more than one and one-half miles from the school, should be provided.

Minimum standard attendance size:

1. For elementary schools, an area in which reside at least 240 pupils enrolled in elementary school grades;
2. For a six-year high school, an area in which reside at least 210 pupils enrolled in high school grades;
3. For a junior high school, an area in which reside at least 245 pupils enrolled in the junior high school grades;
4. For a senior high school, an area in which reside at least 175 pupils enrolled in the senior high school grades.

(These charateristics were arrived at after a study or reference to at least 63 studies, representing various sections of the country.)

PART I—SIZE

It is generally recognized that city school systems and some county school systems offer the most generally acceptable school advantages and have the best developed supervisory and administrative organizations. McGinnis, in "The Administrative and Supervisory Organizations in City School Systems of 20,000 to 50,000 Population," shows that satisfactory functions are, 1. Educational and business administration, 2. Supervision of instruction, 3. Health supervision, and 4. Census and attendance supervision.

In order to perform these functions naturally personnel must be provided. This implies that a district must be of a certain size before this personnel can be provided. Since there are scores of third class districts so small that this adequate personnel cannot be provided, we must establish just what the size of a satisfactory administrative unit should be in order to provide adequate personnel.

McGinnis has analyzed the supervisory work of 185 cities of 20,000 to 50,000 population and concludes that the minimum number of supervisors consistent with desirable practice is ten. These ten supervisors are: a. general supervisor, b. director of research, c. supervisor of typical classes, d. supervisor each of art, music, health, manual arts, household arts, and two for physical education. To this number should be added one librarian, because every satisfactory unit of administration should have a centralized library.

The number of supervisors will, of course, be conditioned by the number of teachers in the system and the number of teachers will be determined by the satisfactory size of the unit. McGinnis shows that in these 185 cities there was an average of thirty-six teachers per supervisor; in 163 cities forty-six teachers; and in 22 Massachusetts' cities, twenty-seven teachers. In Maryland, the state standards require an average of one supervisor for forty-six elementary teachers. The Research Division of the N. E. A. finds an acceptable standard of one supervisor for each fifty elementary teachers.

In this supervisory unit must be included health supervision. About 60% of the school children have defects in eyes, ears, nose, throat, lungs, heart, teeth, or suffer from faulty nutrition. This health work should include,

1. Administration of the educational health department.
2. Pupils health examination
3. Health instruction
   A. The learning process
   B. Physical education and games
4. Supervision of health instruction
5. Follow-up work

The Division of Field Studies, Columbia University, has set up the standard of one health nurse for 1200—1500 pupils. McGinnis found that in 163 cities there was an average of one nurse to 2,643 pupils, and in the 22 Massachusetts' cities there was an average of one nurse to 2,331 pupils. It seems reasonable to conclude that the minimum standard should be one nurse to each 2,000 to 2,500 pupil unit.

In order to carry out the provisions of compulsory attendance laws it is an accepted function of a satisfactory unit to provide supervisors of attendance. Emmons recommends the Philadelphia plan of one attendance supervisor for 2,500 to 4,000 census children of school age, and the Engelhardt-Evenden standard of one attendance officer and one clerk for each 6,000 school population unit.

The minimum number of persons necessary to perform effectively the functions of educational, business supervision, health and census phases of a satisfactory unit should be:

One superintendent
One clerk for superintendent
One business manager
One bookkeeper and clerk for business manager
One supervisor of buildings and grounds
Two attendance officers
Two clerks for attendance officers
Six nurses
Two clerks for nurses
One librarian
One general supervisor
One director of research
One supervisor of atypical classes
One supervisor of music
One supervisor of writing and art
One supervisor of health
One supervisor of manual arts and vocational subjects

One supervisor of household arts
Two supervisors of physical education
Three clerks for supervisors
Total employees for central organization—31

A school system to provide for above personnel would embrace 40,000—50,000 population and a school attendance of 10,000 to 12,000 pupils. School units of such size are impossible in our state as a whole. It is necessary to consider feasible modifications. A median modification would be:

One superintendent
One clerk for superintendent
One bookkeeper and business assistant
One attendance officer
One clerk for attendance officer
One clerk for nurses
One head janitor
One librarian
Two elementary supervisors
One secondary supervisor
One vocational supervisor
Two clerks for supervisors
Three nurses
Total of persons in central organization—17

A comparison of the number of positions and persons provided by this plan with the standard ratios will show that this organization will economically care for about 6,000 pupils. This organization provides for (1) educational and business administration; (2) supervision of instruction; (3) health supervision; and (4) census and attendance supervision. It does not provide for supervision in the special subjects. These subjects would have to be assigned to teachers and principals with special training in these fields.

Again we find an administrative unit embracing 6,000 children too large for scores of districts of the state. It is essential that we consider another modification of the standard unit and the median unit. Let us call this the maximum modification plan. Under this plan we assume that the functions of business administration and of instructional supervision can be performed by the superintendent, and the attendance and health work by one person. The personnel would then be:

One superintendent
One bookkeeper and clerk for superintendent
One nurse--attendance officer
One clerk for nurse--attendance officer
Total of persons for central organization

On the basis of one nurse for each 2,000--2,500 pupils and one attendance officer, this maximum modification organization should not care for more than about 1,750—2,000 children and about 50—55 teachers.

In summarizing then, relative to the maximum standard administrative unit, the median standard unit and the maximum minimum unit, we find the following facts:

1. The number of employees necessary for a standard administrative and supervisory organization without requiring one person to perform two or more specialized services to be 31 persons. Such an organization would accommodate about 12,000 pupils.
2. The number of employees necessary for a median modified organization would require 17 persons. Such an organization would accommodate about 6,000 pupils.
3. The number of employees necessary for a maximum modified organization would be 4 persons. This organization would accommodate about 1,750 to 2,000 pupils.

THE SIZE OF A LOCAL UNIT OF SCHOOL ADMINISTRATION SHOULD BE SUCH THAT NECESSARY ADMINISTRATIVE AND SUPERVISORY SERVICES CAN BE PROVIDED AT A COST THAT BEARS A REASONABLE RELATIONSHIP TO THE TOTAL CURRENT COST OF THE EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM.

PART II—COST

The number of persons and the positions they are to occupy in a centralized standard organization for administrative and supervisory functions has been found to be 31. The work of these persons falls into four general classifications: (1) administration or general control; (2) supervision of instruction; (3) operation of the school plant; and (4) auxiliary agencies (health and library). The estimated cost of a standard unit should be based upon these four classifications. In order to obtain the relationship of the administrative and supervisory cost to the total current cost, we must add two factors, (1) maintenance and (2) fixed charges.

From "Statistics of City School Systems," 1929-30, Bulletin No. 16—U. S. Office of Education—1930," Tentative Standards for the Distribution of Expenditures in County School Systems in the South—Contribution to Education No. 52, George Peabody College, "Sixty-fifth Annual Report" of the State Board of Education of Maryland, and the "Eighty-first Annual Report," Louisiana State Department, the following percentages, that each one of the six phases of administration, mentioned heretofore, bears to the total current cost, have been evaluated:

General Control	6.75
Instruction	74.4
Operation	11.75
Maintenance	3.7
Auxiliary Agencies	3.35
Fixed Charges	2.05

Since the most reliable basis for estimating total current expense, or any major item of expense, is the amount of teachers' salaries, data concerning teachers' salaries must first be considered.

The average salary for teachers in consolidated schools for 1928 was $1000: in 1930 the median salary in three or more teacher schools was $1157; in Maryland and Louisiana, representing effective types of rural organization the average salaries for white elementary teachers were $1150 and $983, and for white high school teachers $1559 and $1451, respectively. In 1933 the average salaries paid to teachers in 502 cities of 5,000—10,000 population were: elementary, $1,217, junior high $1,375, and senior high $1,575.

The latest data on salaries as given in the March 1936 Research Bulletin of the N. E. A. shows that the median salary for elementary teachers in all classes of cities, down to the 2,500 population town, was $1,524; for junior high school teachers $1,736, and senior high school teachers $1,991. From these statistics we might conclude that the minimum salary for the elementary teacher should be $1,200 and secondary teachers $1,600.

The average salary for rural principals in the U. S. was $1,965 in 1925, $1,550 in 1930; for high schools, in 1925, $2,438 and 1930, $2,181. From data as found in, "Salaries in City School Systems," U. S. Bureau of Education, it may be concluded that the minimum salary of an elementary principal should be $1600 and of a high school principal $2000. It is assumed that these principals are teaching principals, otherwise the salaries should be higher. This difference of $400 will be distributed equally among the minimum standard school. In the elementary school we would divide by seven units and in the high school by 10 units. This gives the teaching unit salary for the principal as $57 and $40 respectively.

It has been found that textbooks and supplies cost about seven per cent of teachers' salaries. The data vary from 6.45 per cent to 7.88 per cent; the average is about 7.11 per cent. So we could call seven per cent a safe margin. The amount of textbooks and supplies per teaching unit would then be seven per cent of $1,200 (standard unit salary) or $84 in the elementary school and $112 in the high school ($1600 x .07).

The median salary of elementary supervisors, according to Research Bulletin of the N. E. A. Vol. XIV—No. 2, March 1936, for 1930-31, was $2,450; according to U. S. Office Bulletin No. 4— Vol. IX, 1931 it was $2,412. According to Dawson the median elementary supervisor's salary for a standard unit should be $3,000 and for the high school about $3,350. This latter figure also agrees with the March 1930 Research Bulletin of the N. E. A. With 50 teachers per supervisor in the grades and 40 per supervisor in the high school the cost of supervision per teaching unit would be about $60 and $84 respectively.

The total current cost of instruction per teaching unit, based upon teachers' salaries, principals' salaries, textbooks and supplies and supervisory services, would be (1200 x 57 x 84 x 60) $1401 for the grades and $1836 (1600 x 40 x 112 x 84) for the high school.

It seems that general control costs usually amount to about 6.75 per cent of the total current expenditures (Dawson). If this basis is used, we find the general control cost per elementary teaching unit to be ($1401 x 6.75) $95, and the high school teaching unit general control cost as ($1836 x 6.75) $124.

Operation expenses usually average about 11 percent of the total current expenditure. According to Reeves and Ganders, "School Building Management," a standard administrative plant of seven teaching units (elementary standard) will occupy about 10,000 square feet of floor space. Such a plant is the normal work of one janitor. According to Dawson, janitors' supplies cost about eight per cent of the salaries; fuel about 40 per cent and other expenses of operation about 20 per cent. According to Reeves and Ganders, in "School Building Management," $900 should be the annual salary of a janitor caring for a seven unit standard. Personally, I believe this should be $1000. The total operation cost would be $1688, or $241 per teaching unit. This amount for the elementary school is a trifle more than 20 per cent of the instruction cost. For the high school standard unit of 10 teachers, there should be a janitor, with some help, possibly a salary of $1000 plus $300 for help or a total of $1300 for janitors' salaries for a high school standard unit. Taking Dawson's per cents for supplies, etc., we find the total janitorial services for a high school 10 teacher unit standard to be $2184 or $218 per teaching unit.

Maintenance cost usually runs about five per cent of the expense of instruction. Thus a standard elementary teaching unit maintenance cost would be ($1401 x .05) $70; for the standard high school teaching unit it would be ($1836 x .05) $92. Dawson, in his studies has found that the depreciation is usually 2.5 to three per cent of the original investment, and the minimum cost or investment for a six or seven teaching unit elementary building is $2,250 per room, and a 10 teaching unit high school building $3,500 per room. Maintenance then per teaching unit should be $2250 x .03) $68 for elementary unit and $3500 x .03) $105 for a high school unit. An average cost of $70 for elementary unit and $98 for high school seems a safe evaluation.

Dawson found the average transportation cost per elementary teaching unit to be $320 and $450 per teaching unit for high school. He bases this on data from California, Carolina, Mississippi, Arkansas and Maryland. He finds that a safe procedure for estimating transportation cost is to assume that 40 per cent of all elementary pupils will be transported for an average cost of $20 per pupil and 60 percent of all high school pupils for an average annual cost of $25 per pupil. Therefore, on the elementary acceptable standard size the transportation cost would be $320 per teaching unit (40 x 40 x $20) and for the high school teaching unit $450 (30 x 60 x $25).

Other auxiliary agencies usually amount to about 4.5 per cent of the cost of instruction i. e. where there is no transportation. Thus the other auxiliary agency cost per elementary teaching unit would be ($1401 x 4.5) about $63 and about ($1836 x 4.5) $83 for the high school teaching unit.

Fixed charges, according to Smith in, "Economy in Public School Fire Insurance," can safely be estimated at two per cent of instruction costs, or $26 per elementary teaching unit and $37 for the high school teaching unit.

In order to get a good picture of a working standard cost per teaching unit of a minimum standard system the following summary will help.

ESTIMATED STANDARD COST PER TEACHING UNIT OF A MINIMUM STANDARD SCHOOL SYSTEM

TABLE A

Standard Classification	Elementary School	High School	Standard Elementary School	Percentage High School
General Control	$ 88.00	$ 124.00	4.00	4.22
Instruction	1401.00	1836.00	63.63	64.65
a. Teachers' salaries	$1200.00	$1600.00	....	....
b. Principal's salary	57.00	40.00	....	....
c. Textbooks—supplies	34.00	112.00	....	....
d. Supervision	60.00	84.00	....	....
Operation	241.00	218.00	10.95	7.62
Maintenance	65.00	98.00	2.95	3.45
Auxiliary Agencies	379.00	537.00	17.23	18.76
a. Transportation	$ 320.00	450.00	....	....
b. Other	59.00	87.00	....	....
Fixed Charges	26.00	37.00	1.14	1.30
TOTAL CURRENT COST	2200.00	2840.00	....	....
Average Cost per Pupil with Transportation	52.50	94.20	....	....
Average Cost per Pupil without Transportation	46.50	79.20	....	....

The estimated per pupil cost per teaching unit, on the 40 pupil basis for elementary and 30 pupil basis for high school, gives a cost of $52.50 for elementary and $94.20 for high school. In Bulletins Nos. 16 and 20 for 1930-31, issued by the U. S. Bureau, we find the average per pupil cost for elementary pupils to be $54.17, $75.66 for junior high schools and $96.77 for high schools. Thus we see the per pupil cost with transportation is no more than the per pupil city cost where there is no transportation.

The cost of general control and supervision of instruction, according to previous table, are about 7.5 per cent of the total current cost, excluding transportation and fixed charges.

If the cost of administration and supervision cost 7.5 per cent of the total current cost of the school program, it follows that, known the cost of a necessary supervisory administrative and teaching unit, the necessary number of teaching units, (to keep this 7.5 percent relationship between cost of administration and supervision and the total current cost of the school program) can be determined.

Set A = Cost of administration and supervision.
Set T = Total current cost of school program.
Set U = Cost of standard teaching unit.
Set S = Total teaching units or size of local unit.

Always we must know A; also that it should be 7.5 percent of T, and that U is a known amount. To find the value of T and S, we would have to reason like this: If the cost of administration should be about 7.5 per cent of the total current cost of a school program, we would have the following formula:

$$T = \frac{A}{.075}$$

Again, known the cost of a standard teaching unit, the number of teaching units or size of a local administrative unit can be determined by dividing U, the standard teaching unit cost, into T, the total current cost of a school program, and we have the following formula:

$$S = \frac{T}{U}$$

According to Table A the cost of a standard elementary teaching unit, without transportation, is $1821, and a high school unit $2303. This would make an average teaching unit cost of $2,037. For standardization cost purposes the average teaching unit cost would be dependable enough to determine the costs of the standard administrative and supervisory units, the median unit and the maximum modification unit.

The standard administrative organization unit consists of 31 persons. The minimum cost of such a central unit would be:

I. Administration (13 items)	$20,745.00
II. Instruction (Supervision) (11 items)	24,800.00
Total	$45,545.00

Applying the previous formulae, we find the following:

A^1 equals total supervisory and administrative cost of a standard organization, A^2 a median central organization and A^3 a maximum modification. Then, A^1=$45,545. If the administrative and supervisory unit is 7.5 per cent of the total cost, T^1 would equal $45,545 divided by .075 or—

$$T^1 = \frac{$45,545}{.075} = $607,266$$

Thus we have the total current cost of such a school program and the administrative and supervisory cost plus the standard teaching unit cost. In order to find the number of teaching units or size of such a standard unit we have the formula,

$$S^1 = \frac{T}{U} \text{ or, } \frac{607,266}{2.037} = 298$$

Thus we have the number of teaching units for the standard organization as 298. There probably would be about 149 elementary and 149 high school teaching units in a 6-6 organization, so that the number of pupils involved in such unit, at 40 and 30 pupils per teacher respectively, would be about 11,000.

The median administrative unit would involve 17 persons and the cost would be:

I	Administration (11 items)	$12,530.00
II	Instruction (Supervision) (5 items)	13,700.00
	Total	$26,230.00

Now, applying the same standard formula we find the following,

$$A^2 = $26,230$$
$$T^2 = \frac{26,230}{.075} = 349,733$$
$$S^2 = \frac{349,733}{2106} = 166$$

Using the standard 6-6 classification, we find this would mean 83 teachers for elementary and 83 for high school. At 40 and 30 pupils per teacher respectively, again, we find a unit of about 6,000 pupils.

The maximum-minimum standard central organization embraces four persons and the administrative and supervisory cost would be,

I	Administration	$4,833.00
II	Supervision	2,700.00
	Total	$7,533.00

Applying the same standard formula we find,

$$A^3 = $7,533$$
$$T^3 = \frac{7,533}{.075} = 100,440$$
$$S^3 = \frac{100,440}{2106} = 48$$

Again using the standard 6-6 classification and the 40-30 pupil ratio there would be approximately 1600 pupils involved.

Evidently a satisfactory standard unit of administration and supervision involving 31 persons would cost $45,545; the total cost would be $607,266; the number of teaching units 298, and the number of pupils about 11,000.

The median modification unit, involving 17 central organization people, would cost $26,230; the total cost $349,733; the number of teaching units 166, and pupils involved about 6,000.

The absolute maximum modification for a central organization would be four persons, and the cost would be $7,533; the total cost $100,440; teaching units 48 and pupil attendance 1600.

It seems then that nowhere should there be administrative units of less than 1600 pupils, and 48 teaching units. This involves duplication of functions and surely is not very satisfactory, because one person must carry duties in several major fields. The minimum satisfactory organization should consist of 166 teaching units and 6000 pupils.

Based upon 42 separate studies the following conclusions may be safely drawn:

I. That the most satisfactory size of an administrative unit requires 31 central organization persons, 298 teachers, 11,000 pupils.

II. That the median satisfactory modification size involves 17 central organization persons, .166 teachers and about 6000 pupils.

III. That the absolute maximum modification involves four central organization persons, 48 teachers and about 1600 pupils.

IV. That the administrative standard organization cost is $45,545; the median administrative standard organization cost $26,230, and the maximum modification administrative standard organization cost is $7,533.

V. That the total school program cost of a standard satisfactory unit is $607,266; the total school program cost of a median modification unit is $349,733, and the total school program cost of a maximum modification unit is $100,440.

VI. The actual teaching unit cost, exclusive of transportation, of a standard satisfactory unit is:

(a)	elementary	$1821.00
(b)	high school	2303.00
(c)	average	2012.00

VII. The cost of administration and supervision is as a rule about seven per cent of the total school program cost.

Respectfully submitted by the Commission,

H. G. ANDREWS, Chairman.

PART X

TAXATION FORMULAS

As the needs of an expanding, progressive educational system make increased financial demands upon the Commonwealth, the factor of local ability to support an educational program will become increasingly important. That State appropriations for education will tend to increase is obvious. The number of Pennsylvania children who are attending some secondary school does not compare favorably with many other Commonwealths. The secondary school system must be materially strengthened if educational advantage is to be in any sense equalized.

During the next decade, even though there is no increase in population, the number of children in the secondary schools must be increased by at least 75 per cent. Unless this result is achieved, Pennsylvania cannot be conceded educational parity with various other American commonwealths.

There is now pending in the General Assembly a measure providing for the creation of a continuing commission which would be directed to make a detailed study of Pennsylvania's tax structure with a view of devising the formulas upon which a "more equitable and scientific" tax system can be based. Such a study and such formulas are integral parts of our school problem.

* * *

As State appropriations for education increase, they become more and more a matter of budgetary concern. Moreover, as these same appropriations increase, it becomes more and more important that tax levies are equitably imposed and that the tax structure as a whole is balanced to the end that it bears upon the various classes of taxpayers with a weight that is relative to their means. At the present time, levies made upon real estate finance the major portion of school costs.

The Commission has assembled data in abundance showing that at the present time real estate taxes are not equitably imposed. They are not imposed equitably as between county and county, as between urban and rural districts, as between individuals residing in the same governmental subdivision.

If real estate is to continue paying at least a portion of current school costs, real estate valuations should be equalized and it becomes the duty of the General Assembly to provide the State Council—or Board—of Education with an appropriation sufficient to enable it to carry out the mandate to equalize valuations—a mandate which is a part of the school code. Or, in the event the General Assembly in its wisdom does not desire the State Council—or Board of Education to function as a State tax commission, the power to revise valuations now in the hands of the council should be withdrawn and a tax commission created and directed to proceed forthwith with the very, very considerable job of equalizing real estate assessments upon which the school millage is based.

The responsibilities imposed upon a body functioning as a State tax commission would, of course, be materially reduced if the General Assembly established sound assessment systems within the various counties by placing the duty of fixing valuations uniformly in the hands of qualified persons.

The determination of real estate values for assessment purposes is a matter which can be scientifically developed. There is no sound reason why inequalities in real estate assessments, based upon either guesses or favoritism, should continue.

Local ability to support an educational program is now stated wholly in terms of local real estate values. These values, however, are not invariably a criterion. Local ability to pay should undoubtedly be established upon a broader base.

The Commonwealth now has at its disposal the records showing local real estate valuations, personal property held in the various counties, together with the figures showing corporate wealth and income. The probabilities are that local ability to pay, instead of being based upon local real estate values, would be determined more scientifically by weighing various factors.

In discussing this phase of the school problem as it relates to taxation, Dr. Edward B. Logan, whose study of "The Ability of Individual Pennsylvania School Districts to Finance Public School Education from Local Funds" forms a part of the Commission's report, says:

> The question of the validity of using property valuation as the sole measure of a school district's ability to finance the schools arises. Does property valuation indicate the composite ability of those who reside within the school district to support the schools?
> Under the prevailing school tax system, where practically the whole amount of school funds is derived from the real property tax, the question arises as to the extent to which property valuation indicates the ability of property owners to pay property taxes. It is generally conceded that property valuation is not a good indication of taxpaying ability, even when property is uniformly assessed. When property is not uniformly assessed, property valuation is a very poor indication of taxpaying ability
> Property taxes must, of course, be paid out of the income of property owners and property valuation does not serve to reflect their incomes. Under the present taxing system, it can most certainly be said that property owners, in paying their school taxes, are paying widely varying percentages of their incomes in taxes.
> Because property valuation is not a good index of taxpaying ability, attempts have been made to discover better bases to use in the distribution of State-aid. In the studies of the educational finance inquiry, the formula developed for measuring the ability of school districts to finance education was the income of the district plus one-tenth of the wealth. It was proposed in a study made in Connecticut that the amount of average receipts from taxation be used as the measure of relative ability. In Wisconsin, the system for distributing State-aid uses a combination of factors, as follows:

		Points	Percent
1.	Per capita assessed valuation, 1933 (as equalized)	4	16
2.	Per capita net taxable incomes, 1933	1	4
3.	Estimated gross farm income, 1933	1	4
4.	Per cent of average farm crops forecast, 1934	3	8
5.	Per cent of school districts in good condition September, 1934	2	8
6.	timated per capita of spendable money income, 1934	1	4
7.	Motor vehicle registrations per 1,000 population, January 1 to September 1, 1934	1	4
8.	New Motor vehicle registrations per 1,000 population January 1 to September 1, 1934	1	4
9.	Per cent of county debt, exclusive of highway funds	2	8
10.	Per capita county debt, exclusive of highway funds, to be retired by State funds, January 1, 1934	2	8
11.	Per cent of county levy (due in 1934) to be assessed valuation	4	16
12.	Per cent of real estate tax delinquency, all levies 1933	4	16
	Total financial status	25	100

Under existing conditions, the Wisconsin formula cannot be adopted in Pennsylvania. There is no information at hand showing income in school districts. However, it nevertheless remains a fact that a scientific formula establishing local ability to support an educational program must necessarily contain a number of weighted factors.

This particular problem must be handed on by this Commission to its successors. We cannot at this time do more than point out that a scientific appraisement of Pennsylvania's tax structure is long overdue.

Inquiry should be made for the purpose of determining how many of the taxes imposed by the Commonwealth remain where they are ostensibly placed and how many of them are shifted from the shoulders of the visible taxpayer to the shoulders of the general consuming public. The probabilities are that some of the taxes levied by the Commonwealth upon corporate resources or property represent eventually, in effect, a deduction from pay envelopes. Other taxes popularly rated as levies upon corporations are, in all human probability, shifted upon the shoulders of the ultimate consumer. Indeed, there is a possibility that the only taxes which stay put are the ones levied upon land values and incomes.

If this is true, an examination of Pennsylvania's tax structure and its effects would show that those who work for wages and those who spend the major portion of their income for necessities are, notwithstanding the multiplicity of taxes levied ostensibly upon wealth, paying an undue portion of the cost of government and of the cost of maintaining the public school system.

Therefore, since the cost of education is undoubtedly destined to increase, there is every reason why the Commonwealth's tax structure should be more equitably balanced.

PART XI

UNANSWERED QUESTIONS

The Commission's inquiries terminate—and with its work just begun. However, the work done has, we hope, contributed to a more general realization that the answer to many of the Commonwealth's educational problems depends upon continued research—upon the collecting and analyzing of data in scientific fashion. Unfortunately, the Commission, with the resources at its disposal, has been unable either to make a comprehensive survey or to properly classify and analyze the very considerable quantity of material in its files.

Before it is possible to speak with complete confidence concerning many matters which are properly a subject of immediate concern to those responsible for financing an educational program, it is necessary not only to ascertain the facts but to reach a conclusion as to what the facts ascertained actually mean. The following are some of the missing chapters which it would be necessary to write in order to present a report that was in any sense complete:

There is at hand no accurate information concerning the actual ability of each one of the 2,583 school districts in Pennsylvania to finance the minimum educational services which should be offered uniformly throughout the Commonwealth.

While special studies have been made in vairous selected districts, there is no detailed and dependable data regarding the relationshp between the assessed and actual sales value of real property.

There is no comprehensive data covering the details of the educational programs—pre-elementary, elementary, secondary—now being offered by the various individual school districts.

There is a lack of dependable, comprehensive data concerning:

Number of classes.

Number of pupils enrolled in each grade and in each subject.

Number of pupils now attending school outside their own district.

The adequacy and use of school buildings.

The actual results of school consolidations so far effected.

Relative costs of various methods and systems of transporting pupils.

Insurance practices and rates.

Attendance costs and actual offerings of small schools, night schools, continuation schools and joint schools.

Current practices as to the grading and promotion of pupils and the probable effect of these practices upon total expenditures.

Nature and cost of supervision in the various schools throughout the Commonwealth.

Number of subjects actually offered in each school.

Time—class period—devoted to each subject.

Need and demand for vocational training in the various districts of the State and the costs of offering, in a specific district, vocational training suited to the needs of the particular community concerned.

Value, scope and cost of extra-curricular activities.

Detailed data as to facilities offered for pre-elementary pupils—nursery, kindergarten and pre-school classes.

Actual need and value of evening schools and classes.

Cost of evening classes in the various districts in which there might be an actual need and demand for them.

Comprehensive compilation and analysis of data and opinion on the size of classes for various types of schools and for various subjects.

Cost of presenting particular subjects in particular districts.

Cost of presenting subjects in a particular way throughout the State.

The Commission's technical advisers inform it that there is a lack of authoritative data concerning:

Teaching personnel, qualification and scientific evaluation of the work being done.

Teacher training and the relative efficiency of that training.

Evaluation of teacher training in liberal arts colleges, universities and teachers' colleges.

Detailed and comprehensive study of salaries of teachers, supervisors and principals in Pennsylvania and other comparable States.

Detailed and adequate study of predominant practices in regard to teaching staff, including methods of teaching, evaluating the work of teachers, grading and promoting teachers, teachers' load—pupil, clerical, reporting, extra-curricular—; internal politics, its effect on teaching morale, participation of teachers in the formation of policy, teacher demand and turnover.

Detailed information concerning record keeping and reporting which might be helpful in discovering essential and non-essential features.

Detailed information concerning the methods used in selecting students by teachers' colleges.

In addition, there is no detailed information as yet available for analysis concerning the capacity, age, structural condition and safety of school buildings and the efficiency with which these buildings are being used. It is therefore impossible to speak confidently concerning the adequacy of the present physical facilities of our school system.

Special studies made show that in many, many districts physical facilities are inadequate and that very material capital expenditures must be anticipated in the relatively near future. Although it has considerable information along this line in its possession, the Commission is unable to determine Pennsylvania's immediate school building and rebuilding needs.

School building programs should be given the benefit of increased attention based upon careful planning.

There are a number of factors which should be carefully considered in connection with proposed new construction. First, there is the strong probability that the trend is in the direction of larger districts. It would therefore be unwise to incur unnecessary expenditures for and on behalf of small districts in instances in which the large district was "just around the corner." Second, it is essential in many communities that probable future enrollment be studied in the light of birth rate trends. Third, and perhaps most important, capital expenditures should take into account probable decreases in wealth as a result of shifts in industry or the exhaustion of natural resources.

Larger administrative school units will eventually be formed because they are logically imperative. Even though district reorganization is not effected this year or next year, it must come ultimately. It is therefore the part of wisdom to see to it that when it comes it is not burdened with unnecessary capital expenditure.

Perhaps all that has been said concerning the lack of accessible classified data could be condensed into the sentence that we do not have as yet any standards of service or unit costs for such standards. That there is a need for such standards is obvious. As, if and when established, they would not only be of material assistance to the General Assembly in determining educational policies but would also aid local districts in comparing their costs and standards with those of other districts throughout the Commonwealth.

That this is a difficult undertaking is admitted. Moreover, the task would be greatly simplified if larger units were created. Eventually, standards and unit costs must be established. Their need, as has previously been pointed out, is so obvious the State of New York is spending $600,000 for the purpose of ascertaining the unit costs of the standards now in effect in that Commonwealth.

For the purpose of bringing the need for educational research into focus, it is only necessary to state the three major problems that face the Commonwealth: They are: First, the determination and maintenance of an adequate minimum educational program for the children of the State below which no school district should be allowed to fall; second, the determination of unit costs necessarily incurred in presenting adequate minimum educational program, and, third, the equalization of the burden that must necessarily be assumed in financing the program.

One of the essential needs in Pennsylvania is the establishment of a uniform accounting system which will show a proper and accurate cost accounting of different phases of educational program in each district. Without such a system, a compilation of statistics is made unnecessarily difficult.

While data now collected is inadequate, many of the report blanks which must be relied on for information are often improperly filled out. If the districts were large enough to employ a competent business manager, they could be depended upon to supply the fiscal data in the form required by the Department of Public Instruction and thus increase the value of the statistical and research work done under the auspices of the department.

This data is important because it provides the basis upon which to build an adequate educational program. Detailed studies should be made for the purpose of definitizing the savings that could be effected in the purchase of supplies, equipment and building material if such activities were centralized in the hands of competent persons.

Those interested in the creation of larger administrative units must, of course, take into consideration the problem of existing school debt and, as previously pointed out, the new debt which would necessarily be incurred in the building of new schools under a comprehensive reorganization and consolidation program.

There is a distinct possibility that the State must eventually adopt a definite program outlining its relation to and responsibility for capital expenditures necessarily incurred as the result of steps which the State has itself initiated.

In this connection there are two major matters of policy which deserve immediate consideration. Legislation is now pending in the General Assembly which would enable school districts to accumulate reserve funds in anticipation of future necessary capital expenditures. A policy of this kind, if adopted, would enable many districts eventually to place themselves on a "pay as you go" basis. This is a consummation devoutly to be wished, since in many districts carrying charges on outstanding debt exceed the current cost of instruction.

Another matter of policy, equally important, involves the possibility of refunding existing district obligations by enabling these districts to borrow from the Commonwealth at low rates of interest. The Commonwealth, under the Constitution, the Commission understands, cannot assume the bonded debt of any of its political subdivisions; but ther eis, on the other hand, no constitutional limitation upon the power of the Commonwealth to create a revolving fund, which would be self-supporting, from which school districts now paying from three and one-half to six per cent for money could borrow it at a rate not to exceed two per cent. While this procedure would increase the financial demands upon the Commonwealth, it would decrease very materially the total financial demands upon the taxpayers of the State as a whole.

In emphasizing the importance of these considerations, it is only necessary to point out that if the money now being expended to carry or extinguish existing school debt were available for instruction, Pennsylvania would have no financial school problems.

The average layman and indeed many educators seem inclined to contend that research activity should be unnecessary since the State Department of Public Instruction should have in its possession all of the facts relating to Pennsylvania's school system in any of its phases. The answer to this contention is:

First, the Department of Public Instruction has never had an appropriation which would enable it to do the research work which should be done every year as a part of a continuous planning process.

Second, while the Department of Public Instruction has in its files abundant data, no provision has been made for the tabulation, analysis and interpretation of this data.

Third, much of the information desired which relates to future needs and desirable lines of development and procedure is not included in routine reports forwarded to the State Department of Public Instruction.

The foregoing survey of the work to be done under the auspices of a continuous planning and research agency simply scratches the surface. This outline may, however, serve to explain to the General Assembly—and to the general public—why this Commission, instead of covering the ground, has simply made what it hopes will be regarded as an acceptable beginning.

PART XII

FACTUAL SUMMARY

For the convenience of the General Assembly's committees on education, the Commission presents a factual summary which is based primarily upon various studies made by Dr. Raymond S. Short, assistant professor of political science, Temple University, and Dr. Edward B. Logan, associate professor of political science, University of Pennsylvania. Various reports compiled by both Dr. Logan and Dr Short were made available by the Pennsylvania Economic Council, one of the agenies which has cooperated with and been of great assistance to this Commission.

General:

Pennsylvania spent $177,093,949 for public school education, 1934.

Of this amount, 17 per cent, or $30,633,931, was contributed by the State; the remainder by the local districts.

Expenditures for education have tripled during the 10-year period from 1924 to 1934.

State-aid has increased proportionately, or approximately 340 per cent.

Practically one-third of the total revenue of State and local governments is spent on the public schools.

School enrollment, 1934—2,031,606.

Elementary school enrollment, 1,432,064, or about 70 per cent.

Secondary school enrollment—599,542, or about 40 per cent.

Between 1836 and 1934, population of the State increased approximately 7 times—school enrollment increased approximately 13 times.

Secondary enrollment increased 450 times.

School costs increased during this period, 1836-1934, approximately 663 times.

Rate of expansion in elementary enrollment has been decreasing since 1928.

High school enrollment is showing the same trend.

It is estimated that in Philadelphia the local peak in secondary enrollment will be reached in 1939.

In 1934, approximately 90 per cent of the estimated population between the ages of 5 and 17 were in school.

"Subjects offered in grades 1 to 6 in the elementary schools do not differ widely throughout the State. However, in the method of presentation, the competency of teachers, the equipment available and the time allotted to the presentation of subjects, great disparity exists in the school program offered children in various parts of the State."—Short.

School Districts in Pennsylvania:

An adequate school program requires districts large enough to provide resources which will produce a sufficient revenue to carry the cost of this program or State assumption of the cost or a combination of the two.

Sound administration requires schools having a sufficient enrollment to permit specialization in teaching and also offering the opportunity to spread operating costs over a relatively large number of pupils.

Of the 2,583 school districts in Pennsylvania, many obviously cannot fulfill these qualifications.

In 1934 there were:

34 districts which employed no teachers.
116 districts which employed one teacher.
157 districts which employed two teachers.
141 districts which employed three teachers.
811 districts which employed fewer than six teachers.
1,423 districts which did not operate a high school of any kind.

In 1934 Pennsylvania had:

6,105 one-room schools.
1,230 high schools.
188 junior high schools.
510 kindergartens.
19 joint vocational schools.
38 continuation schools.
387 classes for handicapped children.

During the 1933-1934 school year, more than one-half the school buildings in Pennsylvania were one-room schools, which were attended by 180,000 pupils.

Many one-room schools not only lack proper educational equipment but are deficient in proper sanitary conditions as well as in lighting and heating arrangements.

Since 1911, 4,555 one-room schools have been closed.

Since 1909, two-year and three-year high schools have decreased from 639 to 140.

There are still 34 one-room high schools in existence. Twenty-three States have a smaller percentage of one-room high schools than Pennsylvania has.

Classes and Districts:

Class	Range in Population	Number of Districts
First	500,000 and more	2
Second	30,000 to 500,000	20
Third	5,000 to 30,000	265
Fourth	36 to 5,000	2,296

There are, in the 2,583 local districts, some 13,545 local school directors.

Compared with other States organized on the basis of town and township units, Pennsylvania has the largest number of school board members, the largest number of school districts and the largest number of districts per county.

School Costs:

In 1933-1934, the average over-all cost of public school education in Pennsylvania, including current expenses and capital outlay, but exc uding tuition paid to other districts, was $89.65 per pupil in average daily attendance.

With capital outlay excluded, the cost was $87.57 per pupil.

The cost of the operating program, exclusive of debt service and transportation, was $73.48 per pupil.

Cost per pupil was less in 1933-1934 than in 1923-1924.

Capital outlay in 1924 was $22.68 per pupil.

Capital outlay in 1929 was $26.59 per pupil.

Capital outlay in 1934 was $2.16 per pupil.

First, second and third class districts, taken as a group, reduced their expenditures much less between 1929 and 1934 than did fourth class districts.

School Costs and Population:

"Small districts spend a much larger percentage of their budgets on general control than do large districts, although they neither employ superintendents nor make appreciable expenditures for attendance enforcement."—Short.

Small districts spend a much larger percentage of their budget on various overhead costs, such as the collection and custody of local revenues and in secretaries' salaries, than is spent in the large districts.

In the large districts, 3.5 per cent of the budget goes for general control as compared with 8 per cent in districts having a population of 150 or less.

Of the total 2,583 districts in the State, 1,792 have relied solely upon the State Department of Health for all health promotion.

In 1,792 districts during the school year 1933-1934, nothing was spent for libraries.

In 1,783 districts, no principals were employed.

In 2,156 districts nothing was paid for supervision.

PUBLIC SCHOOL DEBT

Pennsylvania's net bonded public school debt, 1933-1934, was $250,382,010.

This represents $141.20 for each pupil.

Net school debt has increased 252 per cent since 1919-1920.

School attendance increased 42 per cent since 1919-1920.

Population increased 12 per cent.

High school enrollment increased 293 per cent.

The peak in public school debt was reached in 1932.

Half the school districts in Pennsylvania are without a bonded debt.

Public School Debt and Capital Outlay:

"Since public school debt is contracted for the most part to support permanent improvements, it might be supposed that the amount of public school debt would tend to fluctuate, within broad limits, with expenditures for capital outlay. Such is not the case. Capital outlay expenditures declined drastically—87 per cent—between 1924 and 1934 but the net bonded debt during the same period increased 95 per cent."—Short.

Temporary Debt:

Temporary borrowing has increased since 1923-1924. Some districts apparently make a practice of balancing their budget by borrowing. This is an expensive procedure to the taxpayer.

Debt Service:

In some 50 districts, debt service was larger than the tax receipts.

One district had a debt service of $95.87 per pupil, with tax collections of only $46.37 per pupil.

There are many districts in which debt service nearly equaled tax collection.

Current Operating Expenses:

What is the present cost of an elementary program or a secondary program of four or six years? Studies made by Dr. Short show:

Median cost of an 8-month elementary school year is about $65 per pupil in districts with less than 25 pupils. This includes no expenditures for tuition paid to other districts, for transportation, debt service or capital outlay.

The cost of the same program in districts with from 300 to 1,000 pupils is approximately $35.50 per pupil.

A 9-month school year, with a program that includes vocational and cultural courses, together with supervision, costs approximately $51 per pupil.

A four-year high school program of nine months in districts with 400 pupils or more costs approximately $72 per pupil—exclusive of tuition paid other districts, transportation and debt service. This is approximately $38 per pupil less than the cost of an inferior program in districts having fewer than 100 high school pupils.

Junior-senior high school programs cannot be offered economically in districts with less than 500 pupils in daily average attendance.

Median per pupil cost for districts with from 500 to 600 pupils in daily average attendance in a junior-senior high school is about $78 per pupil.

"For economical and efficient administration, districts should be large enough to offer 12 years of work; should have at least 400 pupils, in grades 9 to 12. On this basis, 89 per cent of the districts should be reorganized if they are to offer—economically—12 years of adequate schooling."—Short.

Some Comparisons:

Pennsylvania ranks second in wealth among the States.

Pennsylvania ranks seventeenth in expenditures per pupil for current expenses.

Pennsylvania, with salaries averaging $304 more per teacher than the average in the United States, stands seventh in the country.

Average value of school property per pupil in average daily attendance shows that Pennsylvania ranks twelfth.

Twenty-five States contribute a larger portion to the local school budget than does Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania stood sixth in per pupil expenditures for current expenses in 1934, seventh in 1932 and eighth in 1930.

Shifts in Wealth and Population:

Concentration of industry and finance in various sections of the State and shifts in agriculture and in the extractive industries, as well as in capital and industry, have caused enormous differences in the wealth of school districts and, consequently, in their ability to support education.

"Shifts in emphasis in education, due to modern requirements of contemporary life, have greatly increased the cost of operating the school system. The large and more wealthy districts have led in these changes. It is in them that the need for change first made itself felt, and they were able to set up a program to meet the need as they had the financial ability to do it."—Short.

The need for change, however, is not confined to large districts.

Adequate school programs are found, as a rule, only in densely populated areas.

Adequate programs, however, should not be confined to these districts.

Many smaller districts are now demanding increased opportunities for their children but have not the means to provide them.

The State is therefore being called upon by these districts to aid in raising their local levels of educational opportunity.

This demand upon the State will likely increase in the future rather than diminish.

Obligations of the State:

"Increasing State participation in the operation of the school system leads to certain important conclusion:

First, as the State increases its financial aid to local districts, it must inevitably increase its control over the expenditure of those funds. When the State funds are spent, the taxpayers in the State as a whole have the right to insist that the money be spent wisely. If this requires the reorganization of school districts, then the State owes an obligation to the general taxpayer to effect the reorganization.

Second, if the State insists upon a minimum or foundation program—and the indications are that it must—it should help support that program. Unless the State assumes the total cost of the required program, it should equalize that portion of the burden upon the districts when wide disparities of wealth among the districts exist. The State then has the right to effect reorganizations which will reduce inequalities between districts.

Third, since the social welfare of the State requires that its public school pupils be given an adequate education, the State must see to it that school districts are large enough to offer that program, even when additional financial aid is not required."—Short.

Extremely poor and moderately wealthy districts exist side by side. There is no logic in an educational system which causes children on one side of a politically drawn line suffer from inadequate educational opportunities, while the children just across the line attend good schools.

There are repeated instances in Pennsylvania where children must pass by a good school in another district to get to an inferior school in their own district.

In 1934, the custody and collection of school funds cost $41.36 per $1,000 in fourth class districts and $2.19 per $1,000 in districts of the first class.

Although some criticism is directed against overloaded supervisory staffs in some cities, equal criticism might properly be directed against the insufficient amount of supervision in most small districts.

If the General Assembly believes that existing districts are too small to maintain and support a "thorough and efficient system of public schools," it has the constitutional mandate to effect such changes as it believes desirable.

"Those who fear too great a degree of control of the school system from Harrisburg might well ponder over the fact that greater central control is probable if the small district is continued than is likely to be the case if a county district is created."—Short.

State Support of Public Education:

The financial burden which the State will have to assume if a foundation program is made compulsory is inevitably conditioned upon the size of the administrative unit. It is impossible to determine what the State's share of the school burden will be until it is known, first, what action the General Assembly will take in bringing about a reorganization of present districts, and, second, what minimum program will be established and required in each school district.

Districts offering only an elementary program should have at least 300 pupils in average daily attendance. The cost of the elementary program of 160 days in districts with attendance from 300 to 700 pupils is approximately $35.50 per pupil, exclusive of tuition paid to other districts, transportation, debt service and capital outlay. Districts in this cost range ordinarily do not include in their educational program expenditures for practical arts, health and dental service, manual training, supervision, and libraries. Few districts offering an elementary program only, provide any work of this nature. Districts with attendances of more than 1,000 offered some of the progressive phases, but at an average cost of $47 per pupil for a 180-day school year.

School Districts large enough to support a four-year high school of 400 to 1,000 pupils spent approximately $51 per pupil for their elementary programs covering periods of 180 days.

The cost of offering a four-year secondary program in districts with an average daily attendance of 400 to 700 pupils was approximately $72 per pupil. These districts not only had relatively low costs, but included as a part of their program, supervision, art, music, manual training, industrial arts, libraries open all or most of the day, and sizeable expenditures for health.

The cost of offering a six-year program of like character was approximately $78 per pupil in districts with an average daily attendance of from 500 to 1,000.

These costs are not based upon a carefully formulated minimum program, since no such program has been formulated, but upon certain criteria arbitrarily selected as representing an adequate program.

It is recommended, however, that a further study be made into the cost of offering an acceptable minimum program below which a district will not be allowed to sink. The data at hand are not conclusive with respect to the character of the elementary program offered where costs were combined with a secondary program. It is not known whether or not all of the elementary schools in a district were beneficiaries in the expenditures for practical arts, manual training, health and dental service, supervision, and libraries.

It is recommended that the General Assembly direct the State Council—or Board—of Education to make a further detailed and comprehensive study into the cost of the elementary program, in relation to the character of the program offered, in districts sufficiently large to support a four-year high school of 400 pupils or more and a junior-senior high school of 500 pupils or more, and to make a report of the results of this study to the General Assembly, so that future State-aid can be based upon it, and thus create an incentive for both efficiency and economy.

The present method of allocating State-aid does not operate with the degree of fairness that should be expected in a State-support program. Dr. Logan's study revealed the following facts:

1. With respect to the ability of districts to support an educational program, it was found that:
   a. Extreme disparity exists in the true valuation of assessable property in districts.
      (1) On the per-capita basis,
          100 districts had less than $250 true valuation.
          36 districts had more than $4,000 true valuation.
      (2) On the per-pupil basis,
          90 districts had less than $1,000 true valuation.
          38 districts had more than $21,000 true valuation.
      (3) On the per-teacher basis,
          35 districts had less than $20,000 true valuation.
          3 districts had more than $1,000,000.
   b. Needless disparity exists in reported property valuations as a result of the present unscientific assessment system.
   c. Property valuations are not an adequate measure of taxpaying ability, even when property is uniformly assessed.
2. In the relationship of the assessment system to the method of distributing State-aid, the study shows that:
   a. It is the prevailing practice of school boards to report assessment percentages higher than sales values justify.
   b. Many districts are receiving a higher percentage of aid than is justified on the basis of survey percentages of true valuations of assessable property. If the true valuation per teacher were properly computed, many districts would change to a lower State-aid percentage group. Out of 81 districts studied, 80 would have been reduced to a lower percentage of State-aid on the basis of the survey percentages of true valuation. When the valuation per teacher of a school district is close to the division line for determining state-aid percentages, a slight increase in the assessment percentage or in the number of teachers may put the district in a group receiving a higher percentage of State-aid. The present method of allocation fails to guard the State against an unnecessary amount of aid through district manipulation.
   c. The present system of allocation fails to bring about equalization
      (1) Extreme variation exists in the millage levied on the basis of true valuation of assessable property.
      (2) Great variation exists in the true valuation per teacher within the various State-aid percentage groups.
      (3) The percentage ratio of State-aid bears no constant relation to the return of a given uniform millage imposed in the various districts. For example, there is a variation in the ratio between State-aid and a 5-mills tax of from 84.1 to 677.9 in those districts in which a 5-mills tax would produce a revenue of $1 to $2 per capita. If State-aid were distributed so as to provide districts having the same tax resources with like amounts of aid, there would be a constant relationship of State-aid to the proceeds of a given millage.
3. The following major defects are apparent in the present system of allocating State-aid:
   a. The present grouping of districts for State-aid purposes is not sound.
   b. Basing State-aid in some districts on valuation and in others on population is illogical and unfair. An incomplete study of distressed school districts by Israel Lerner shows that third-class school district are as likely to be distressed as fourth-class districts.
   c. The system of determining true valuation per teacher is open to manipulation.

If State-aid were granted on a per pupil basis, some of the present practices of manipulation would be discontinued. If aid is given on the basis of the cost of education per pupil it will be necessary, first, to determine the cost of the foundation program required by the State, and, second, to set up a plan for equalizing the cost of the foundation program among districts of unequal financial ability to support the program.

Various proposals have been made for equalizing the cost of the mandated program. Some call for State assumption of the entire cost of the mandated program; others for varying degrees of local participation.

> The problem becomes easier if the principle is accepted that local communities should contribute to the support of the mandated program in a direct ratio of the ability to pay.

Two major methods for insuring local support and for equalizing the cost between districts of various wealths have received consideration.

> By one method, the cost of the foundation program would be expressed in terms of cost per pupil for different sizes of districts until a suitable district organization has been effected. The State could guarantee a certain percentage of the pupil cost—40 per cent, for example—and then make an additional grant if a uniform millage tax levied in the district did not make up the difference. For example, if the cost of the elementary foundation program applicable to a particular district is $40 per pupil, the State, under this suggestion, would contribute 40 per cent of that amount or $16 for each pupil in average daily attendance. Then, if a uniform millage tax—for example, five mills—levied in the district did not produce $24 per pupil, the State would contribute, over and above the original 40 per cent grant, the difference between the amount received per pupil through taxes and $24.
> A second method which has been quite generally discussed proposes that the State assume the total cost of the foundation program above an amount raised by a uniform millage levy on the true valuation of assessable property. The foundation program would be expressed in terms of cost per pupil as in the first method. Suggestions have been made that the State assume the cost above the amount raised per pupil through a six-mill tax in those districts which do not have an approved district organization and a five-mill tax in those districts which have formed an approved district administration. The proposed tax differential would be made in order to encourage districts to reorganize into acceptable administrative units.

The uniform millage rate should, of course, be kept low so that school districts would feel free to go beyond the foundation program without imposing an undue burden upon the local taxpayer.

> An elementary foundation program of $40 per pupil for a 180-day school year is undoubtedly too low.
> That a foundation program of $40 per pupil is low can be deduced from the experience elsewhere.
> In 1935 the General Assembly of Ohio fixed the cost of its elementary operating foundation program at $45 per pupil.
> A legislative commission studying school costs in Illinois recommended in 1936 that the cost of the elementary foundation program be $50 per pupil.
> Mort, in his book "Federal Support for Public Education," establishes $60 as the basis of defensible minimum elementary program.

Tuition:

"Two reasons may be advanced for recommending that tuition be paid to a receiving district by the Superintendent of Public Instruction after deducting the amount from aid paid by the State to the district in which the pupil resides. In the first place, the experience of Pennsylvania in recent years has been that a number of districts, although required to pay tuition and transportation charges to other districts where their own facilities are inadequate, have refused to do so.

"At a conference on the reorganization of school units held in 1935. J. Y. Shambach, of the Pennsylvania State Department of Public Instruction, reported that:

> Approximately 32,000 high school students resided in districts that had not paid high school tuition that had accrued during the preceding year, and more than 700 had not been permitted to enter high school because the tuition due had not been paid. In addition, more than 800 pupils were admitted to high school conditionally, with the understanding that they would not be permitted to continue unless satisfactory arrangements should be made regarding the payment of their tuition.

"Secondly, it is more economical for the State to care for those pupils in larger districts than to require the district of residence to accommodate them in small schools."—Short.

Capital Outlay:

Future school building programs should be based upon careful planning.

Painstaking analysis of new construction is made necessary by three major factors:

> Probability of larger districts.
> Decreasing enrollments due to changes in the birth rate.
> Decreasing wealth in many districts due to decreasing resources and shifts in industry.

PART XIII

TEACHER PREPARATION

In "The Program" of the Department of Public Instruction, issued in October 1936, there appears the following significant and forward-looking statement:

> A plan is under consideration looking toward the improvement of courses of instruction in the public schools by the establishment of regional study areas with the teachers colleges as centers. This project would involve systematic meetings of educational leaders and teachers in the several regions to discuss and plan improved courses and provision for experimental practice and practical research.

Reference is also made to extension and correspondence courses for the preparation of teachers which are administered under the teacher education and certification unit of the Department of Public Instruction.

Speaking specifically of the State teachers' colleges, the Department of Public Instruction says:

> The question of continuing all of Pennsylvania's present State teachers' colleges is a matter of legislation. The experience in Pennsylvania like that in many other States, has been that the General Assembly is reluctant to take action looking toward the consolidation or elimination of any of these institutions. Accordingly, they will very probably be continued and should therefore be given whatever support is necessary to make it possible for them to carry on their respective functions.

And then the statement strikes at the very heart of the situation when it says:

> In the meantime, it is proposed to study ways and means whereby the services of these institutions may be modified or enlarged to the end that they may function most adequately in Pennsylvania's program. The present trend toward vertical expansion of public education to include a greater range of age levels and horizontal expansion, taking in a wider variety of curricular offerings, indicates that institutions engaged in professional preparation of personnel will receive ever-increasing demands upon their services and facilities.
> The liberal arts colleges have made substantial progress in developing professional courses in their institutions.

Apparently there has been a confusion of thinking and counsel regarding the future of the institutions known as the State teachers' colleges. On the one hand, there are seemingly those who are convinced that since the State teacher's colleges were established for the purpose of training teachers, they can never be used for any other purpose. Then there are those who argue that since the liberal arts colleges are in many instances now prepared properly to train teachers, there is no longer a need for the present number of our State institutions specifically charged with the duty of training teaching personnel and that therefore some of the State teachers' colleges should be abandoned.

There is no reason why any part of the State's school system should be permitted to become static—should be confined within the limits of an irrevocable program.

Pennsylvania's universities, liberal arts colleges, teacher training colleges and schools, professional schools, private preparatory schools, its junior colleges, high schools and elementary schools, together with all extension and correspondence courses, comprise a system of education. This system is and should remain a growing, vital organism which is subject to constant adjustment and readjustment to the end that particular needs can be met as they arise by the agency best suited to meet them.

At the present time junior high schools, high schools and junior colleges are performing many of the educational functions which were formerly resident only in our colleges and universities. The educational tree is tending constantly to develop a sturdier trunk with which to support colleges, universities and professional training schools, which are its branches.

In view of developments within the Commonwealth's educational system, it is not at all neessary to conclude that if the teacher training colleges are not used or needed exclusively for the training of teachers, they must necessarily be abandoned. Is there not a possibility that these institutions—advantageously located as they are in most instances—will develop a new cycle of service, functioning, perhaps, as junior colleges or as pre-professional schools offering specialized preparatory courses for the benefit of those desiring to enter any one of the so-called learned professions?

Members of this Commission are not presuming to speak as authorities in the field of technical education—claim no such distinction—but it is possible for the layman to envision, at least dimly, the outlines or an integrated educational system for Pennsylvania. However, the layman, in and of himself, is powerless to establish such a system, which can only be created through the patriotic and intelligent cooperation of the Commonwealth's educational leaders.

That there is a place in the field of education for the generous rivalries which institutions develop cannot be denied, but this rivalry should be keyed to the note of service to the end that our educational blanket may not wear thin in any particular spot and may be broad enough and long enough to cover all those seeking its protection.

> There would seem to be no reason, for example, why the young men and women interested in agriculture as a vocation should not establish initial contact with their destined specialty in the junior high school, taking courses which lead naturally into courses offered by the high school, which in its turn offers courses which lead naturally into the courses offered by the junior college, which in its turn offers courses which lead naturally into the courses offered by Pennsylvania State College, for instance.

It is not in line with sound theory gradually to bring the largest possible range of educational opportunity in as close proximity with the pupil as is consistent with economy and sound teaching?

In the past, parents have struggled with the problem of sending their children to college. Would it not be altogether just and proper if, in their turn, Pennsylvania educational leaders should be required to worry and stew in an effort to send as much college as possible to the young people of this State in the places where they live and where they and their parents make their living?

In this process of knitting the right kind of an educational blanket, is it not possible that some of our teachers' colleges at least will gradually enlarge their field of usefulness by becoming junior colleges?

> There is no reason to believe that educators who died fifty years ago could outline a teacher training system which would necessarily be eternal.

In raising these questions the Commission is not in any sense original. It is indeed threshing over old straw, because educators have themselves discussed such matters not only at great length but over a period of years. However, very little has come from the discussion.

The various institutions—State teachers' colleges, liberal arts colleges universities—have each continued to bowl in its own particular alley. The various educational groups have looked at each other rather askance and, upon occasion, have undoubtedly made a play for place, with the result that while individual institutions forge ahead or maintain their status, the cause of an integrated educational system lacks persistent and notable advocates.

This particular Commission, composed of laymen as it is, is nevertheless convinced that popular education—education for the people—is in its very infancy in America. However, if the losses incident to unwise expenditures are to be avoided, it is necessary to establish the inevitable integrated educational system on the basis of intensive, careful planning.

> The Department of Public Instruction and representatives of the State teachers' colleges, of the liberal arts colleges and of the universities cannot do anything more important than to lay possible rivalries aside and begin planning definitely for the purpose of so developing our educational system that higher education, instead of being something remote, becomes increasingly identified with the mental and spiritual life of our various communities.

In connection with the State teachers' colleges, the question is not whether they should be used. They should be—and in increasing measure. The problem is how to use them to best advantage.

The Commission has taken considerable testimony along these lines and presents, in condensed form, some of the statements which comprise a part of the record.

A group of distinguished educators appeared before the Commission at a hearing held May 26, 1936. In stating the purpose of this appearance, Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson said:

> "It is our purpose to establish the fact that there should be, for the purposes of economy and efficiency, an integrated educational system, with the assignment of definite tasks to each type of institution."

In presenting the merits of the liberal arts colleges as educational forums in which to train teachers, Dr. William Mathew Lewis of LaFayette College, said in part:

> "The liberal arts colleges and universities have a very carefully worked out system of selecting students. The selection is made on the basis of character and intellectual ability.
> "In the opinion of many educators, no teacher should be allowed to associate with high school students who does not have a broad cultural background.
> "What the liberal arts colleges have to offer is a broad cultural education and broad contacts with men and women of distinguished cultural attainments."

Dr. Herbert L. Spencer, president of the Pennsylvania College for Women, in presenting "certain basic principles which should be embodied in any complete and final plan of teacher preparation in Pennsylvania," said:

> "1. Such a plan should provide for teachers in all grades of public school service—that is, nursery school and kindergarten teachers; teachers in the elementary school, grades one to six; teachers in the junior high school, grades seven to nine; and teachers in the senior high school, grades ten to twelve. It should provide for teachers in all the academic fields and all the special fields such as music, art, household economy, commercial education, industrial and vocational education, physical education, nursery schools and kindergartens, education for the handicapped and subnormal, training for home and school visitors, administration, supervision, adult education and any other special field. Furthermore, training should be provided for both graduate and undergraduate work in all of these fields.
> 2. The program should be efficient, applying the best thought and practice which the profession has produced. Of the States bordering on Pennsylvania—New York, New Jersey and Maryland—all three have recognized the principle of differentiation of function in the allocation of the training of elementary and secondary teachers. Neither Ohio nor Delaware has a system of normal schools and teachers' colleges.
> 3. The program should be economical, costing the State no more than the least that will provide the best possible results.
> 4. The underlying principles of the plan should recognize the fundamental genius of the State, heretofore embodied in its institutions, laws and customs; that is, the program should be consistent with the historical development of the State.
> 5. The teacher training program should lend itself most easily and economically to the unforseeable but inevitable changes of the future, which will be made necessary by changes in educational organization and administration to meet the changing life of the State. This guarantees that even revolutionary changes in education necessitating new and different types of buildings, equipment and so forth, would not leave the State with a number of costly but relatively useless buildings on its hands which, because they are too valuable to scrap, would tend to tie down the educational administration to an outgrown theory and practice and hence retard progress.
> 6. Any complete plan should be fair to all institutions heretofore officially recognized as accredited for the preparation of teachers, within the limits of fairness to the individuals who are to be trained and to the schools they are to serve.

The definite proposals relating to teacher training were as follows:

> 1. The preparation of teachers for the elementary schools supported wholly by public taxation shall be limited to the State teachers' colleges of the Commonwealth, together with the Pennsylvania State College, the University of Pennsylvania, the University of Pittsburgh and Temple University; and graduate work in the field of elementary education shall be limited to the Pennsylvania State College, the University of Pennsylvania, the University of Pittsburgh, Temple University, and to any recognized university or State teachers' college that may hereafter develop a graduate school of education or a graduate department of education recognized by the State Council of Education as qualified to engage in the preparation of elementary teachers on the graduate level.

2. The preparation of teachers for the senior high schools supported wholly by public taxation shall be limited to the liberal arts colleges of the Commonwealth, together with the Pennsylvania State College, the University of Pennsylvania, the University of Pittsburgh and Temple University; and graduate work in the field of secondary education shall be limited to the Pennsylvania State College, the University of Pennsylvania, the University of Pittsburgh, Temple University, and to any recognized university or liberal arts college that may hereafter develop a graduate department of education recognized by the State Council of Education as qualified to engage in the preparation of secondary teachers on the graduate level.

3. The preparation of teachers for the junior high schools supported wholly by public taxation shall be limited to the State teachers' colleges and the liberal arts colleges of the Commonwealth, together with the Pennsylvania State College, the University of Pennsylvania, the University of Pittsburgh and Temple University; and graduate work in the field of junior high school education shall be limited to the Pennsylvania State College, the University of Pennsylvania, the University of Pittsburgh, Temple University, and to any recognized university or liberal arts college or State teachers' college that may hereafter develop a graduate school of education or a graduate department of education recognized by the State Council of Education as qualified to engage in the preparation of junior high school teachers on the graduate level.

4. The preparation of teachers for the schools supported wholly by public taxation in the special fields of music, art, home economics, commercial education, industrial arts and vocational education, physical education, and any other special fields, shall be done in institutions already authorized, or that may hereafter be authorized, as duly qualified by the State Council of Education.

The fact should be noted that under these proposals the liberal arts colleges disclaim any desire to train the elementary teachers

In discussing just how it came about that the liberal arts colleges got into the work of teacher preparation, Dr. E. V. Stanford, president of Villanova College, said in part:

"It was not entirely upon their own initiative. It was done at the request of the State at a time when only normal schools for the training of teachers in the primary schools of the State were in existence, so that there was a real difference of function in the beginning, and it is only in comparatively recent years that this distribution of work has been disturbed.

"Our normal schools have become colleges, so to speak, almost over-night, degree-granting institutions, thirteen of them.

"How far will this development go? Will they become State universities drawing more and more funds from the State?

"As has been pointed out, the present arrangement whereby the privately supported colleges of the Commonwealth are carrying on the work of teacher preparation for the schools of the State is, in effect, a very considerable saving in finance for the Commonwealth each year."

Dr. G. Morris Smith of Susquehanna University persented some figures showing the possible savings to the Commonwealth if teacher preparation was made a part of the work to be done by the liberal arts colleges. He said that every full-time student at a State teachers' college during the academic year 1933-34 cost the Commonwealth $165. During the period from 1921 to 1933 inclusive, the liberal arts colleges actually trained 28,282 students for teaching. On that basis, the liberal arts colleges and the four universities actually saved the taxpayers the rather considerable sum of at least $18,000,000. This saving the liberal arts colleges effected without any legislative grant for the services rendered.

The argument presented expressed great appreciation for the work of the State teachers' colleges and confidence that they have a distinguished place in the educational setup, but it was also held that the liberal arts colleges have an equally important place in the program and that each type of institution should function within a definite sphere—thus obviating any chance of duplicating expenditure.

The major contention was that the State teachers' colleges are best qualified to train elementary teachers while the liberal arts colleges are better prepared to teach high school teachers.

In stating his position regarding teacher training, Dean R. H. Rivenburg of Bucknell University, said:

"The liberal arts colleges really concede the undoubted superiority of the State teachers' colleges in the training of teachers for the elementary schools. An unbiased person who considers the academic training of the liberal arts schools and the facilities of the State teachers' colleges and the advantages which they have in their highly planned faculty for elementary teachers will not for a moment say that we can prepare elementary teachers as successfully as the State teachers' colleges. In this field the State teachers' colleges are very strong. Therefore, the liberal arts colleges should withdraw from the elementary field."

During the course of hearing, Mr. Brownfield of the Commission made the following pertinent comment which raised the issue discussed in the first part of this section of the Commission's report. Mr. Brownfield said:

"In the areas of each teachers' college there are a great many young people who have probably no real intention of following teaching. It is impossible for them, because of various reasons, to go to a liberal arts college and so they enroll in the State teachers' college in the belief that the work there is broad enough to at least furnish them with an educational stepping stone. If there should be a reorganization, would that destroy the educational opportunities enjoyed by these young people if the liberal arts colleges failed to foster junior colleges?"

To this statement, Dean Rivenburg of Bucknell replied:

"May I say, that according to the law, every student who enters a State teachers' college has to sign an agreement that he will teach for two years after he gets out of the State teachers' college. According to the law the State teachers' colleges have no right to take young people in who are not going to teach. That is definitely in the law itself, and if a State teachers' college receives those people who want to go into something else, they are violating the law, because they receive them according to the present law."

And then Mr. Brownfield rejoined:

"Leaving all of that out of the question, it would be a fine thing if more of the liberal arts colleges would establish local centers for the benefit of the young people who desire to acquire an education."

* * *

The question was asked whether the junior college makes for continuity and whether one of the primary defects of the present time is that the teachers' college courses are not exactly integrated with the offerings of the liberal arts schools. Dean Rivenburg replied that in his opinion that was true.

The Commission regrets its inability to include in its formal report to the General Assembly all of the data presented at the hearing which the members of the College Presidents' Association were kind enough to attend.

References made to the record indicate the existence of a very real problem—the integration of a complete, coordinated, educational system as well as the creation of a more efficient and possibly more economical system of teacher training.

The Commission at this time can do no more than raise the question.

The liberal arts colleges are undoubtedly occupying more and more of the teacher training field each year.

Should the line of development, as the representatives of the liberal arts colleges indicate, be a separation of function, assigning the training of elementary teachers to the teachers' colleges and the training of high school teachers to the liberal arts colleges, or should the State teachers' colleges gradually be evolved, as a matter of stated policy, into junior colleges?

These are questions and problems which can be evaded from year to year but which must ultimately be faced and solved. Moreover, the solution properly rests in the hands, not of those who may be special pleaders in the interests of some particular institution or type of institution, but of those whose purpose it is to develop and coordinate the educational facilities of the Commonwealth from the standpoint of economy and utility.

PART XIV

SUMMARY OF RECOMMENDATIONS

POLICY

There should be guaranteed to every boy and girl of normal ability in the State of Pennsylvania an education from the first grade through the high school—usually twelve years of public education.

In range, content and quality, the first six years of elementary school should be equalized throughout the State.

In the secondary field there should be certain core curricula for all normal pupils, but, in addition thereto, the curricula in the individual districts should be varied so as to satisfy the needs of the community and the needs and ability of different pupils.

RECOMMENDED:

That the State Council or Board of Education be established as a full-time, year-around, adequately financed planning agency.

That the State Council or Board of Education establish, as an educational objective, a minimum foundation program of elementary and secondary public school education below which no district, as a matter of future policy, should be permitted to function.

That the State Council or Board of Education immediately proceed to ascertain in a few selected counties—and in all counties as soon as its resources permit—the districts in which educational opportunities and standards are below the minimum foundation level.

That, having ascertained the areas in which educational opportunities are not the equivalent of the minimum foundation program, the State Council or Board of Education proceed in selected counties—and in all counties as soon as its resources permit—to formulate a district reorganization plan which would result in the creation of districts which are sound administrative and attendance units.

That, on the basis of the district reorganization program so formulated, the State Council or Board of Education proceed to ascertain unit cost—that is, the cost of presenting a minimum foundation program in the approved districts—the ultimate object being definitely to ascertain unit costs throughout the State, not only for the minimum foundation program, but also for other subjects which could properly be offered in the most progressive districts.

That the State Council or Board of Education, having ascertained unit costs necessarily incurred in presenting a minimum foundation program, proceed definitely to ascertain the relative ability of the various districts included in the approved plan to finance an educational program on the basis of real estate valuations—the alternative being that the Legislature create a State Tax Commission charged with the responsibility of equalizing valuations; the fact being remembered that, under the provisions of the existing school code, this responsibility devolves upon the State Council or Board of Education.

That, having established a minimum foundation program, having ascertained unit costs and having established local ability to pay, the State Council or Board of Education proceed to effect district reorganization in accordance with the provisions of the approved district plan, approaching the district reorganization problem on the basis of conciliation, negotiation and agreement—the effort being initially to promote voluntary district consolidation by and through demonstration.

RECOMMENDED:

That in forming new districts as a result of negotiation the State Council or Board of Education be authorized to proceed upon the basis of either one of the following two options—whichever, in its opinion and as a result of investigation, it may deem the most feasible. Under each option, it is proposed that State-aid be distributed on a per pupil basis:

Under the first option, if the cost of elementary program applicable to a particular district was, for example, $40 per pupil, the State would contribute 40 per cent of that amount or $16 per pupil. Then, if a uniform millage tax—for example, 5 mills—levied in the district did not produce $24 per pupil, the State would contribute, over and above the original 40 per cent grant, the difference between the amount raised per pupil through taxes and $24.

Under this option it would be easy for the State to vary the percentage of the foundation program it would assume. The state could encourage a reorganization of districts by assuming a larger percentage of the foundation program in those districts that organized approved administrative units.

The Second option would be based upon the assumption that the State assume the total cost of the foundation program over and above an amount raised by a uniform millage levy on the true valuation of assessable property. The foundation program would be expressed in terms of cost per pupil as in the first method. The State would assume the cost above the amount raised per pupil through a stated tax not to exceed five mills in the approved districts. As a matter of State-wide policy, it would be possible to encourage consolidation by empowering the State Council or Board of Education to provide for a 6-mill tax in those districts not establishing approved administrative units and a 5-mill tax in those districts which did establish approved administrative units.

Uniform millage rates should be kept low so that districts would feel free to go beyond the foundation program.

RECOMMENDED:

That the General Assembly immediately, through its proper committees, consult with the State Council or Board of Education and the Department of Public Instruction with the view of obtaining estimates as to the appropriation necessary in order, first, to enable the State Council or Board actually to function under existing law; and, second, to enable it to proceed in accordance with the recommendations herewith presented.

As immediate steps looking toward the equalization of educational opportunity, it is recommended that:

The Commonwealth reimburse school districts of the third and fourth class for furnishing transportation for pupils of school age who reside more than two miles by the nearest public highway from the nearest school.

Boards of school directors shall reassign children of school age living more than two miles from the nearest school in their own district to a school, including high schools, in another district.

Children of school age who completed the elementary course of study and who reside three or four miles from the nearest high school in their district may attend a more convenient high school in another district and the district in which they reside shall be liable for their tuition.

These children shall also be furnished free transportation to the high school which they attend for which the Commonwealth shall reimburse districts of third and fourth class, furnishing such transportation in the same manner as reimbursement is made for other transportation.

All persons regularly employed in school districts, including personnel commissioned by the Department of Public Instruction, and those employed by institutions under the jurisdiction of the department, shall undergo a physical examination annually.

The State Council or Board of Education shall make, from time to time, such regulations as shall be necessary to insure proper standards for the various grades of the twelve years of the public school program of education.

High schools shall be classified on the basis of a 180-day school term, the grades they serve, the employment of a proper number of qualified teachers and the conformance to regulations established by the Department of Public Instruction.

The State Council or Board of Education shall also approve the establishment of new high schools or the addition of a year of work to the program of a high school already in operation.

The State Council or Board of Education shall determine the minimum secondary school enrollment for which any district may maintain and establish an independent secondary school.

Fourth Class districts which do not have a sufficient number of secondary pupils to maintain a high school economically may arrange with neighboring districts for the education of their high school pupils and the districts receiving such students shall be reimbursed for their tuition on the basis of costs standards ascertained and established by the State Council or Board of Education.

The full cost of proper free transportation for all pupils of one-teacher and two-teacher schools which may be permanently closed or discontinued after June 1, 1937, in districts of the third and fourth class shall be paid annually by the Commonwealth.

Upon petition of the parent, school districts of the fourth class which agree to provide transportation for any pupils may pay for suitable board and lodging for such pupils in lieu of providing transportation. The State's share in the cost of such pupil shall in no case exceed one dollar per day per pupil.

To encourage the establishment of approved consolidated elementary and junior high schools, the Commonwealth shall pay annually the full cost of transportation of pupils to and from such consolidated schools, provided the cost does not exceed the standard minimum per pupil according to law.

Beginning with 1938-1939, the State Council or Board of Education, upon due hearing, shall be authorized to withhold the State appropriation of any school district which refuses to maintain the program of education approved by the State Council or Board.

It is further recommended that:

The board of school directors of every district shall employ a sufficient number of teachers in its high school to give instruction in the subjects included in the program of studies of the State Council or Board of Education for which there shall be an application by 15 or more pupils belonging to the grades in which the subject is specifically applied.

No teacher shall be employed to teach any branch other than those enumerated in his certificate.

Pupils who reside in a school district where no high school is maintained may attend, at the expense of the district in which they live, the most conveniently located high school of such class as they may desire to attend; in which case the home district shall be liable for the cost of tuition.

The Commonwealth shall not pay to any class of school district any part of a teacher's salary in regular day school if the average daily attendance is less than 20 pupils to a one-teacher school and 25 pupils in a school of two or more teachers, except by the approval of the State Council or Board of Education.

The Commonwealth shall pay to the several school districts the same percentum of the minimum salary required to be paid part-time teachers in extension schools as is paid to such districts for the minimum salary of full-time teachers.

A secondary program of studies as designated and approved by the State Council or Board of Education should be made available to every boy and girl in the Commonwealth.

The State Council or Board of Education should prepare standards for pupil transportation which should be included in all contracts for this service at public expense.

Pupils should not be required in any instance to walk more than one and one-half miles by public highway to meet the school bus.

RECOMMENDED:

That teachers' salaries be standardized on the basis of function instead of being based upon arbitrary district classifications.

That minimum salaries for teachers in the elementary schools as established by the Commonwealth be uniform —the local communities themselves making such provisions as may be desirable or equitable in the light of varying cost-or-living factors.

That annual increments granted teachers be uniform throughout the elementary grades without reference to district classification.

That teachers' salaries be placed upon a parity with all other salaries—judicial, executive or legislative—and that when the Commonwealth is delinquent in its payment to school districts, funds available for salaries be distributed ratably.

That teachers be protected, through the enactment of appropriate legislation, against political coercion or reprisal, against "blanket" dismissals and against dismissals made without cause other than a desire upon the part of interested authorities to create a teaching position for persons in whom they are personally interested.

The Commission suggest the propriety of using the State Council or Board of Education as the instrumentality through which to administer the statute relating to tenure. There are sound reasons substantiating the view that an appeal to the State Council or Board—which should be authorized to appoint referees and hold public hearings before an appeal is had to the courts—would best serve the interests of both the teachers and the members of the various school boards.

RECOMMENDATIONS REGARDING TEACHER CERTIFICATION MADE BY COMMITTEES NAMED TO STUDY MINIMUM STANDARDS AND APPROVED BY THE COMMISSION

The superintendent of Public Instruction may grant a provisional college certificate to every person who presents satisfactory evidence of good moral character and of being a graduate of a college or university approved by the State Council or Board of Education and who has completed such work in education as may be approved by the State Council or Board. This certificate shall entitle the holder to teach for three annual school terms.

The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall issue a renewed college certificate to every graduate of a college or university approved by the State Council or Board of Education when such graduate furnishes satisfactory evidence of good moral character and successful experience in the public schools on a provisional college certificate for three annual school terms and has completed such work in education as may be approved by the State Council or Board of Education. This certificate shall entitle its holder to teach five annual school terms.

The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall issue a permanent college certificate to every graduate of a college or university approved by the State Council or Board of Education when such graduate has completed such additional work or experience as may be approved by the State Council or Board of Education.

Whenever a teacher holding a probationary or a permanent certificate shall have been out of service for five years or more, such teacher shall be required to demonstrate competency in accordance with the requirements of the State Council or Board of Education before his certificate shall be considered a valid certificate to teach in the public schools in this Commonwealth.

The Commission approves the following resolution which has been formally adopted by the State Council of Education:

RESOLVED, That paragraph two of the Requirements for the Issue of the State Standard Limited Certificate, approved by the State Council of Education, June 16, 1932, be amended to read as follows:

Applicants for this form of certificate must have completed an approved four year high school curriculum, or approved equivalent education, and (two years) THREE YEARS or the equivalent, of professional preparation for teaching

All regulations prescribed for the issue of the State Standard Limited Certificate shall apply to the new form of State Standard Limited Certificate. The amended regulation shall apply to all applicants for the State Standard Limited Certificate subsequent to September 1, 1937.

RECOMMENDED:

That the State Department of Public Instruction, the State Council or Board of Education and any commissions appointed by the General Assembly for the purpose of studying educational problems be instructed to cooperate with any commission appointed or created with the responsibility of studying the Commonwealth's taxation system for the purpose of outlining "a more equitable and scientific plan."

In this connection it is further recommended that specific inquiry be made for the purpose of determining how many of the taxes imposed by the Commonwealth remain where they are ostensibly placed and how many of them are shifted from the shoulders of the visible taxpayer to the shoulders of the general consuming public or to the members of special groups.

That during the interval during which the State Council or Board of Education is establishing unit costs, it be authorized to use $45 as the per pupil cost in elementary schools and $75 as the maximum per pupil high school cost in a district maintaining a minimum foundation program and in which the school year term has been established on the basis of 180 days.

RECOMMENDED:

That as, if and when the State Council or Board of Education approved a district reorganization plan, the proposal of consolidating the areas affected by the plan may be put to the test of a referendum vote by the qualified electors in the district affected upon the motion of either the State Council or Board of Education or upon petition of 20 per cent of the qualified electors resident within the proposed consolidated district.

That two years be established as the period during which the State Council or Board of Education shall endeavor to promote district consolidation on the basis of local agreement and consent, and that at the termination of this two-year period the State Council or Board of Education shall present to the General Assembly specific and detailed suggestions outlining a comprehensive district reorganization plan based upon the studies made by the permanent planning agency for which provision is made in this report.

RECOMMENDED:

That the General Assembly, by legislative mandate, impose, either upon the State Council or Board of Education or upon a Commission created by it as it in its wisdom may decide, responsibility for studying plans designed to coordinate Pennsylvania's universities, liberal arts colleges, teachers' training colleges and schools, professional schools, private preparatory schools, junior colleges, high schools and elementary schools, together with all extension and correspondence courses, into a more completely integrated State system of education.

That a specific study be made for the purpose of passing upon the inadvisability of placing responsibility for the training of elementary school teachers upon the State teachers' colleges and placing responsibility for training teachers in the secondary schools upon the liberal arts colleges and the universities.

That further specific studies be made for the purpose of determining the possibility or desirability of gradually converting some of our State teachers' colleges into junior colleges.

That the General Assembly maintain contact with the educational problems confronting the Commonwealth, either by establishing a Commission solely responsible to it or by empowering and authorizing the educational committees of the House and Senate to function as commissions of inquiry following the adjournment of the present session.

That the General Assembly maintain contact with the educational problems confronting the Commonwealth, either by establishing a Commission solely responsible to it or by empowering and authorizing the educational committees of the House and Senate to function as commissions of inquiry following the adjournment of the present session.

REPORT OF THE COMMISSION APPOINTED TO STUDY AND RECOMMEND IMPROVEMENTS IN THE LAWS RELATING TO MAGISTRATES AND MAGISTRATES COURTS IN PHILADELPHIA

To His Excellency, George H. Earle, Governor of Pennsylvania, and

To the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Philadelphia, February 15, 1937.

On the fifteenth day of June, 1936, a special grand jury investigating the operation of the magisterial system in the City of Philadelphia, reported to the Court of Quarter Sessions the existence of certain widespread illegal practices by the magistrates, in the criminal branch of their jurisdiction, which had resulted in miscarriages of justice and oppression of citizens. The grand jury, therefore, recommended that a Commission be appointed, composed of representatives of the Governor of the Commonwealth, the Attorney-General, the District Attorney of the County, the Mayor of the City, the magistrates, the Philadelphia Bar Association, the Criminal Justice Association, and certain members of the grand jury, to consider the evils denounced by the grand jury and to recommend methods for their suppression, and generally for the improvement of the magisterial system of the city.

The undersigned members of the Commission, appointed by the various officers and agencies referred to, have met from time to time, holding one public and upwards of thirty private sessions, and herewith respectfully submit from their study of the matters entrusted to them, the following conclusions and recommendations.

The Commission considered that it was not charged with the duty of investigating and reporting specific acts of misconduct by the magistrates. The grand jury's able presentment adequately covers such matters, and furnishes a complete and comprehensive picture of the evils of the system. The Commission has, therefore, confined itself to the formulation of constructive methods for their correction and prevention. In this connection it may be stated that the Commission first considered whether it is desirable to abolish the entire magisterial system, and to establish in its place a new and different system of minor judiciary. Upon this subject the Commission is of opinion that such a course is unnecessary. By whatever title the judicial officers of a new system might be designated, the functions which they perform must be substantially the same as those performed by the magistrates. A change in nomenclature, without change in substantial functions, would be futile. A centralized court would be possible, but the Commission believes inadvisable. The magisterial system renders an important and essential public service, through the administration of justice in local community courts, which would be destroyed by its abolition and the substitution for it of a centralized administration of the service. Too great a centralization of the magistrates' courts would defeat the beneficial objects of the system. A large and territorially extensive community, like the City of Philadelphia, is in need of conveniently located neighborhood courts of inferior jurisdiction to which the ordinary citizen, having relatively small, but to him important problems, whether criminal or civil can resort for the redress of his grievances; and at which he will find, if well chosen, a sagacious and competent judicial officer to advise and guide him in his difficulties. To require the average person to go to a centrally located court would result only in denying to him effective recourse to the judicial agencies that are created and intended to help him. For this reason the Commission believes that there exists today in the present magisterial organization a system well adapted to supplying this fundamental need of the community. What is needed is the improvement of the existing system, which is basically sound, rather than the creation of a new one of doubtful value to the community.

With respect to the qualifications of magistrates, it will be noted that the Constitution of the Commonwealth imposes no qualificational limitations upon the office of magistrate, and any legislative provision which, by multiplying the qualifications for the office, would restrict the choice by the people of their magistrates, may be questionable as to its constitutionality, and would certainly be a departure from the traditional conception of the office. It has been earnestly urged upon the Commission, by certain bodies of citizens, that it would greatly improve the efficiency and quality of magistrates to require them to be selected from among the members of the bar. The Commission is not satisfied that such a requirement would prove a remedy for those defects most justly complained of, and further believes that there are definite objections to the suggestion. Accordingly, apart from the possible constitutional objection already noted to the imposition of such a qualificational limitation, the Commission doubts its advisability. Most of the suitors in the magistrates' courts neither have, nor can afford, legal representation. They have no clear conception of the legal aspects of their problems. They know only that they have suffered some practical grievance, and their need is less for a determination of their technical legal rights, than for a wise adjustment of their difficulties with their neighbors and others, through the informal processes of a court presided over by a magistrate more inclined to find a practical solution of their difficulties, than to declare their legal rights and liabilities. Magistrates' courts should not be permitted to develop a legal formalism which would tend to defeat this primary purpose of their existence. The masses of our citizens need such a court to decide their disputes, and to counsel and guide them in their relations with each other. In addition, members of the bar are not now precluded from holding the office of magistrate, and the people are free to elect such persons to the office if they desire. The Commission, therefore, believes that it is inadvisable to attach such a qualification to the office of magistrate.

The methods by which the magistrates have extended favors and indulgences in criminal cases have given rise to practical evils and abuses, which can be largely, though not altogether, corrected by legislation. The Commission has, therefore, prepared, and submits herewith, a form of an act of assembly which it is believed will accomplish that purpose. The changes which the suggested act makes in the present law relating to magistrates will be reviewed with respect to the evils to be remedied, and the methods recommended to that end.

The principal underlying cause of most, if not all, of the evils and abuses which have crept into the administration of the magistrates's courts in Philadelphia, is the practically universal participation of the magistrates in politics. The temptation to which a magistrate is subjected to use the great powers of his office for his personal political aggrandizement, by granting immunity from criminal responsibility for political considerations, or by using his powers to oppress and extort factional political support from the citizen in difficulty with the criminal law, is, in the judgment of the Commission, the fundamental weakness of the system. Irregular and unlawful discharges of prisoners, the taking of insufficient or worthless bail, the changing and remission of fines and penalties at the solicitation of political or personal friends, and, indeed, all the wrongful practices which were exposed by the grand jury, are employed by the magistrates to create friendships and obligations of political value. In this manner also organized crime, which, through its control of a vast underworld, is often a potent factor in political contests, has secured protection from the vengeance of an outraged law by the grant of political support in return for official favors. For these reasons, the Commission recommends legislation to remove the magistrates from politics, and in the suggested act, which it herewith submits, has included a provision to accomplish this purpose, so far as legislation can do so.

The laxity of the magistrates in taking bail and issuing discharges of persons charged with crime has given rise to much complaint. In many instances, the bail fixed by one magistrate has been reduced by another; discharges have been issued without requiring full and proper justification of the surety offered; and the magistrates have been either slow in returning bail to the Quarter Sessions, or have entirely failed to do so. As a result, so-called straw bondsmen are enabled to impose upon individual magistrates, who do not have the facilities to keep adequate records for detecting those regularly offering fraudulent bail, and for checking the encumbrances on properties offered as security. It should be admitted, in justice to the magistrates, that many of the evils noted in connection with bail exist, not because of deliberate wrongdoing on their part, but because it is practically impossible for the twenty-eight magistrates, acting independently of each other, effectively to discover and prevent the entry of fraudulent bail. The Commission believes this mischievous and harmful situation can be remedied by requiring all bail to be entered in a department of the Quarter Sessions Court, where proper records can be kept, and in which adequate supervision of all bail entered in the county can be maintained. It has, therefore, included in the recommended legislation, a provision that, with one exception, all bail shall be entered in a department of the Quarter Sessions Court, the officers and employees of which department shall be under the control and supervision of the judges thereof. The exception referred to permits a person held by a magistrate for court or for a further hearing, to enter bail before the magistrate holding him, if he has his bondsman present at the hearing and ready to enter it. It would work an unnecessary hardship on a person held in bail in an outlying section of the city, who is prepared to give bail at the conclusion of his hearing, to require him to remain in custody while his bondsman travels at great delay and inconvenience to a centrally located department to enter bail. It is for this reason that the exception is made.

The Commission has not considered suggestions for changes in the law relating to the character of security entered and the justification of sureties. Such questions have no direct relation to the improvement of the magisterial system itself. It may be that the bail laws would be strengthened by their general revision. This, however, is a distinct and separate subject, requiring special study, which the Commission believes to be outside its province.

Turning now to the matter of further hearings, the grand jury reported that, by unnecessarily holding for further hearings, opportunities are afforded for so-called "fixing" of cases between hearings, for the practice of extortion by police officers and others, and for the operation of sinister political influences, to the defeat of justice and the oppression of citizens accused of crime. In many instances, further hearings are necessary. The absence of material witnesses, the necessity for further investigation in a particular case, or for securing and preserving the sworn testimony of important witnesses, often justifies, and even requires, the holding of further hearings. In the interest of justice, therefore, the right of a magistrate to continue hearings should not be abolished. But the evils growing out of its abuse can be largely prevented by regulating its exercise, and, to that end, the legislation recommended by the Commission not only forbids magistrates to continue hearings after a prima facie case has been made out, but also sets up a system of divisional police courts, selected from among the district police stations, to hear exclusively those cases in which the abuses referred to most frequently occur. In these courts provision is also made for the regular appearance of the district attorney or his representative, and for a full stenographic reporting of their proceedings.

The cases to be heard exclusively in the divisional police courts are, in addition to the major offenses, those in which organized crime is known customarily to operate; and, in order to prevent unnecessary further hearings, and to guard against the consequences which might follow from the permanent presence of the same magistrate in a divisional court provision is made for a regular change and rotation of magistrates sitting therein.

Little evidence of the evils now under consideration was found in cases arising out of privately issued warrants. They exist almost exclusively in arrests on sight and on police warrants. Under existing law, the cases of persons arrested in this manner are required to be heard at the police station of the district in which the arrest is made, where they are heard by the magistrate permanently assigned thereto. The proposed divisional police courts, however will be selected from among the police stations, will have more extensive territorial jurisdiction, and all arrests in the division for offences over which they have exclusive jurisdiction will be heard in them, regardless of the particular police district in which the arrests may be made. As to all other criminal cases, the present system has been left unchanged.

In connection with the requirement that a district attorney be continually present at the hearings in the divisional police courts, increased duties will be imposed upon the district attorney's office which cannot be performed by the number of assistants he is now authorized to appoint, and the Commission has therefore prepared, and submits herewith, a suggested supplementary act giving authority to the district attorney to appoint a sufficient number of assistants to represent him in those courts.

Complaint was made by the grand jury of the conduct of their courts by the magistrates, and their seeming inability or unwillingness to preserve order and decorum therein. This is not conducive to a dignified and efficient administration of justice, and creates opportunities for irregular or wrongful conduct by the magistrates. Irregularities which, in individual instances, might well be attributed to unintentional error, would, if persistently repeated in a particular class of cases, acquire a more sinister significance, and might even justify an accusation against a magistrate of systematic and corrupt maladministration of his office. The constant presence of the district attorney and an official stenographer at hearings of all important cases would serve the double purpose of deterring magistrates and persons connected with their courts from wrongdoing, and of providing a permanent record of the conduct of hearings by the magistrates. The preservation, by an official stenographic record, of the testimony given by witnesses in important cases would also discourage the subsequent corrupt changing of their testimony in later stages of the proceedings.

The methods provided in the proposed bill for electing and removing the chief magistrate by the board of magistrates, are designed to protect that position, as far as possible, from the disturbing influences of political partisanship, without unduly interfering with the board's power to remove an inefficient chief magistrate. The executive head of a judicial body should, of course, be removable for proper cause. Efficiency in the administration of such a position, however, is promoted by making the tenure thereof reasonably certain and secure. The Commission has recommended, therefore, that when elected by the board the chief magistrate shall hold his position during his then current term of office as magistrate, and that he may be removed only on the vote of three-fourths of the whole body of the magistrates.

With respect to the general conduct of the magistrates' courts, the Commission has incorporated in its suggested legislation a provision requiring the rules of practice and procedure adopted by the board of magistrates to be approved by the judges of the Courts of Common Pleas, who are empowered, in default of the adoption of suitable rules by the magistrates themselves, to promulgate rules of practice for them, and, whenever necessary, to direct changes to be made in existing rules. Magistrates' courts should not be encumbered by rules of practice which the ordinary citizen, appearing in person to present his claim or defense, would be unable either to understand or to obey. The magistrates' courts are not courts of record, in which rules of practice are necessary to narrow and define issues, the decision of which becomes res adjudicata of the matters in dispute. Nevertheless, some rules are necessary for the proper functioning of all courts, and, in the case of magistrates' courts, they should be few and simple, and should be designed to secure, without technical embarrassments, a speedy and just determination of causes. The formulation of suitable rules is, therefore, a matter of importance, and the Commission considers that it will promote efficiency in the courts of the minor judiciary to place the supervision and control of this work in the judges of the Common Pleas.

With the conferring of this supervisory duty and power upon the judges, the Commission believes that the limit of external control that should be imposed upon the conduct by the magistrates of their own courts has been reached. As judicial officers, they alone should be held responsible for the administration of their offices, and it would not be conducive to their efficiency to encourage a sense of subordination and dependence, which would deprive them of the stimulating and steadying effect of personal responsibility. To do so would also make their courts mere appendages of the higher courts, and would put upon the latter a responsibility which they could not effectively discharge.

The Commission has given careful consideration to the alleged wrongful discharge of prisoners arrested for criminal offenses, upon which the grand jury laid considerable stress, and for the prevention of which it suggested that the Judges of the Common Pleas be vested with supervision and control of a punitive nature over magistrates' decisions. The action of a magistrate in discharging a defendant is judicial in character, and to threaten him with punishment for an error of judgment would entirely destroy the element of personal disinterestedness which is essential to freedom of judicial action. An erroneous discharge of a prisoner is not necessarily a corrupt one. The existing law is adequate to punish the corrupt exercise of judicial power, when evidence of its existence is produced, or, by appeal, to correct errors in the judgments of magistrates. Legislation, however, which would penalize magistrates for rendering erroneous decisions, would serve only to intimidate them. Human nature is such that the fear of being held personally responsible for their honest mistakes would inevitably color their judgments. Not only would such legislation be inadvisable, but it also would be clearly unconstitutional as an interference with the free exercise of judicial discretion.

In conclusion, the Commission feels impelled to state that an injustice would be done to many of the magistrates if it terminated its report at this point. The subject matter of the Commission's study has compelled the concentration of attention upon the evils now existing in the magisterial system, and it is possible that, from this, a false estimate of the magistrates generally will be formed. The Commission does not wish to be understood as asserting that the operation of the system as a whole has been corrupt and inefficient, or that dereliction of duty is chargeable to the entire body of magistrates. Many magistrates have been officers of integrity. That some of their actions have been irregular and open to criticism is due, in many instances, to defects in the existing law, or to conditions over which they have had no effective control, rather than to deliberate misconduct. In certain classes of cases, however, and among a limited number of magistrates, unlawful and harmful practices have undoubtedly been pursued, which have given rise to the many manifest evils here discussed. Legislation alone cannot completely eradicate them. They spring from defects of character in the individual, and in that respect the remedy for them can be supplied only by the people themselves at the polls. Nevertheless, as far as law can check such practices and remedy their attendant evils, the commission recommends the adoption of legislation along the lines indicated by the suggested acts herewith submitted as a part of this report.

CONCURRING STATEMENT

I hesitate to dissent to any of the foregoing report because it confirms many of the changes for which the Criminal Justice Association, which I represent, has been striving. But I personally do not agree with my colleagues that it is inadvisable to provide that magistrates should be selected from among members of the Bar. To the contrary, I believe that next to eliminating magistrates from politics, this provision could be one of the most constructive in the Act.

I have had experience of over a quarter of a century with the shortcomings of magistrates. It has been my unpleasant duty to participate in the prosecution and conviction of them for serious offences.

When, therefore, my colleagues say that the unlawful and harmful practices of magistrates cannot be completely eradicated by legislation, but that "they spring from defects of character in the individual," I am in full agreement. A drastic upbuilding of magisterial character is therefore desirable.

It is for this reason that I feel everything is to be gained and nothing to be lost by requiring of them an educational background, which (if we are not wholly cynical of the value of education), will also supply an element of ethical uprightness. Both of these qualifications have been sadly lacking among some of the magistrates.

A lawyer before admission to the Bar today must have had the preliminary education pre-requisite to admission to college; must have secured a college degree; and then taken a three or four years' law course.

Surely such an educational background is more conducive to an intelligent, upright administration in this important office of magistrate than the lack of it which is manifest among a number of magistrates. Some of them have not had even a high school education; some appear dangerously close to being illiterates. This may be a charitable explanation of some of their shortcomings. A magistrate should bring into his court an appreciation of problems of social welfare. Certainly a lawyer's preliminary educational work brings this to him better than to those whose schooling may have stopped at the eighth grade. There is a peculiar fetish (fostered by politicians) that only "a man of the people" knows the humanitarian approach to the needs of the poor and underprivileged.

I agree with my colleagues that magistrates' courts "should not be permitted to develop a legal formalism." But these are an overwhelming number of cases, both on the civil and criminal sides of a magistrate's courts, where a knowledge of the law is of infinitely more value than a complete ignorance of it. The poor litigants to whom my colleagues refer as being better off with a magistrate who is not a lawyer are often the victims of the fact that the other side has a lawyer of dubious ethical perception and the magistrate is coerced by this lawyer's presumed superior intelligence, legal and otherwise.

During my administration as District Attorney, the magistrates whose conduct was most exemplary were those who felt it necessary to consult the office about many things which a lawyer sitting as magistrate could have himself decided.

I am not optimistic enough to believe that if the selection is restricted to lawyers, all will be equally efficient and high minded. But the Judiciary Committee of the Bar now passes upon candidates for the upper courts. Why not for the lower courts also? In a recent election there were at least seventy-five candidates on the magisterial list. The politicians alone could intelligently pick and choose—and they did!

Finally, there is one tremendous advantage in having lawyers as magistrates, to which my colleagues did not refer, and that is that, as members of the Bar, they are subject to the disciplinary action of the Board of Censors of the Bar Association. In many cases, this is more potent than the long drawn-out and often futile prosecutions of magistrates which we have seen with discouragement within recent years.

In other respects I concur in the report.

Charles Edwin Fox.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE TO MAKE A SURVEY AND RECOMMEND A COMPREHENSIVE PLAN OF LEGISLATIVE REAPPORTIONMENT

Created under Resolution No. 34, Printer's No. 197, Special Session of 1936, for the purpose of making a survey of the State and to recommend to the next Session of the Legislature a comprehensive plan of of reapportionment to provide for the Legislative Districts in conformity with Article II, Section XVII of the Constitution

To the Honorable, the members of the Pennsylvania General Assembly:

This Committee, created under the above named Resolution, submits the following Report:

Article II, Section 17 of the Pennsylvania Constitution provides that—"Members shall be apportioned on a ratio obtained by dividing the population of the State by two hundred."

The population of the State of Pennsylvania, under the 1930 census, was 9,631,350, which if divided by 200, gives 48,157 for the ratio. In other words, every 48,157 people are entitled to one Representative.

The present arrangement is illegal.

Section 18 of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, plainly states—"The General Assembly, immediately after each United States decennial census, shall apportion the State." The language is not "may" or "can" or "should", but "shall" thus indicating by the word "shall" that no discretion be permitted in the matter, but a direct command.

The present arrangement is inequitable.

For example, let us take Philadelphia. Under the 1930 census, Philadelphia had a population of 1,950,961, which divided by 48,157, would equal 40 ratios plus 24,681, giving it a representation of 40 members for the county.

Let us go on to Allegheny County, with a population of 1,374,310 under the 1930 census, which divided by the above ratio would entitle it to 28 members. At present Allegheny County has a representation of 27 members in the General Assembly.

However, we are not so much concerned with increasing the number of Representatives of any particular county, as we are with keeping the mandate of the Constitution by making an even distribution of representation for all Representatives.

For example, the Fifth Legislative District of the City of Pittsburgh, comprising the 12th, 13th and 14th Wards, which, according to the 1930 census, constituted a population of 97,189, is at the present time represented by one Member only. According to Section 17 of the State Constitution, said district contains a little over 2 ratios, which should entitled it to a representation of 2 Members. On the other hand, let us observe the First Legislative District of the City of Pittsburgh, comprising the 1st, 3rd and 5th Wards, which, according to the 1930 census, contained a population of 60,864. This district is at present being represented by two Members in the General Assembly.

The most flagrant violation of our State Constitution, however, is Philadelphia, where the districts run from 15,000 to 150,000 per Member.

Let us take, for instance, the 8th Legislative District of Philadelphia, comprising the 10th, 13th and 14th Wards, constituting, according to the 1930 census, a population of 37,563, and having at the present time in the General Assembly a representation of two Members.

On the other extreme, we have the 17th Legislative District of Philadelphia, comprising the 23rd, 35th and 41st Wards, constituting, according to the 1930 census, a population of 137,686, and having a representation in the General Assembly of but one Member.

The mandate of the Constitution of Pennsylvania has been ignored by former Legislatures. They touched upon it lightly in 1907—made a farce of it in 1921—but the last real reapportionment was made 51 years ago.

Every Member of the General Assembly is bound by his oath of office to "obey the Constitution of this Commonwealth." As stated and shown above, this Committee finds that this particular phase of the Constitution has been flagrantly violated, and it is, therefore, this Committee's recommendation that a scientific bill be drawn up and passed, thus giving the people of the State of Pennsylvania proper representation in the House.

In conclusion, this Committee finds—

(1) That Sections 17 and 18 of the Constitution of Pennsylvania have been violated, and the present arrangement is illegal.

(2) This Committee further finds that the present arrangement is not only illegal, but inequitable.

(3) This Committee recommends that the mandate of the Constitution of the Commonwealth be no longer ignored, and that a scientific bill be presented, giving the people of Pennsylvania proper representation.

(4) That a Reapportionment Bill be presented by Representative Frank J. Zappala, Chairman of this Committee, as well as Chairman of the Re-Districting Committee charged with drafting a Bill of Reapportionment to be presented to the House.

This brief resume merely confirms the moral obligation resting upon every member of the Legislature, to comply with fidelity to the obligation of their oath of office, namely to obey the Constitution of Pennsylvania. That Constitution in clear, emphatic and mandatory language, says that Reapportionment shall take place every ten years, and with this obligation in mind, this Committee recommends that the 1937 Legislature will do its full duty by passing a scientific bill, wiping out inequalities and unfairness in our present districting.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE THE CONSTRUCTION OF A HIGHWAY ON THE SOUTH-PENN RAILROAD ROUTE THROUGH THE ALLEGHENY MOUNTAINS BETWEEN HARRISBURG AND PITTSBURGH

The development of the South Penn Tunnel Highway is the outgrowth of an insistent safety and traffic demand for providing improved and necessary traffic facilities for the accommodation of east and west-bound traffic.

It has been known for many years that another location over the mountain ranges was possible which was selected some fifty years ago by the South Penn Railroad Company for the construction of a proposed line across the State. The outstanding advantages of this location consists chiefly, from a construction point of view, in shorter distance and material reduction in grades.

These features were recognized by the public and in pursuant to a general demand, the Legislature, in its wisdom passed the necessary measures authorizing the Highway Department to make an investigation and survey, in cooperation with the Works Progress Administration, to determine the practicability and advantages of a highway upon the proposed location as aforesaid.

In accordance with the said resolution, the Department of Highways, in cooperation with the Works Progress Administration, organized and assembled an engineering force and started work in an active way in January, 1936. This force included 10 survey crews who have been at work for a period of 13 months making a total of 72,000 man hours. The men engaged on this survey were recruited for the most part from relief rolls. The field work was prosecuted with diligence and dispatch and notwithstanding the severity of winter weather and extraordinary flood conditions, the survey of the line has been substantially completed, the field notes, profile, and cross-sections plotted and preliminary plans and studies are being developed.

The length of the highway on the proposed location, between Irvin and Carlisle is 164½ miles. It is anticipated, from further study of conditions, that a saving in distance of four miles between the points mentioned above can be effected. The long and steep grades on the existing routes over the mountains, having a maximum grade of about nine and one-half per cent, will be reduced to a maximum grade of three per cent on the proposed highway. By locating this highway on the grade of the South Penn Railroad it is obvious that the grades would be uniform for long distances and, hence, would not be constantly ascending and descending through the mountains. The lowest elevation above sea level is approximately 400 feet, near Harrisburg, and the elevation at Pittsburgh is about 900 feet. The highest elevation is 2400 feet at Laurel Hill Tunnel and a motor vehicle in crossing the mountains on the present routes would climb an accumulated vertical height of 13,880 feet, whereas, on the South Penn Railroad location the climb would amount to only 3,940 feet, making a difference of 9,940 feet.

The plans as studied now contemplate the building of a highway providing four lanes of traffic, two lines moving in each direction and seperated in the center by an adequate planting strip, having a minimum width of about six feet. Each roadway would have a minimum width of about twenty-two feet. Notable examples of similar highways are the DuPont Highway in Delaware, Trenton to New York Highway in New Jersey, the Boston to Worcester Highway in Massachusetts, and the Detroit to Pontiac Highways in Michigan. The curves are limited to six degrees, having a radius of 955 feet and the grades to three per cent, which permits a driver to operate his car with entire safety at any reasonable speed.

The advantages in the interest of traffic and safety is readily appreciated when it is stated that about 125 miles out of the total length of 164½ miles will be constructed on a straight line. Throughout the length of the proposed highway, the curves average about one to the mile, thus affording adequate sight distance. The sight distances on the vertical curves are measurably improved by reason of the very low rate of grades on the profiles.

The location of the route studied is such that there need be no crossings of railroads or other major highways at grade. The construction of ramps now in general practice will permit traffic to leave or enter the highway with freedom and safety. The suggested location for main feeder roads would be as follows:

(1) At New Stanton, where traffic Route 119 crosses the proposed highway. This traffic route extends from Greensburg on the north to Connellsville and Uniontown on the south.

(2) At Somerset, traffic Route 219 coming from DuBois, Ebensburg and Johnstown would meet the proposed South Penn Highway.

(3) At Bedford where Route 220, extending from Altoona to Cumberland, would intersect. At this point, the Lincoln Highway Route 30 crosses the proposed South Penn Highway.

(4) At Fort Littleton where Route 522, extending from McConnellsburg to Mt. Union, intersects.

(5) At Roxbury, where traffic from Chambersburg, Gettysburg and Shippensburg would have access to the proposed South Penn Highway.

In studying the location of this highway, it was found possible to locate the same upon the southern and western slopes of the hills in order to avoid prolonged icy and snow conditions during the winter season, thus reducing the cost of maintenance.

Another important feature of location has reference to the matter of the floods which occured in 1936. The new highway can be so located as to be above all high water as encountered in March of last year and thus avoiding the interruption to traffic and damage to the highway.

The highway can provide free and easy flow of traffic and at the same time serve centers of population through which it would pass. Ample provision can be made for exits and entrances to this highway from all towns along the route.

While the exact location was limited by the topography of the ground, it appears feasible to meet both the requirements of safe and economical motor car operation and reasonable construction costs.

A study of the ground shows that the former railroad tunnels are approximately sixty-two per cent excavated, and all of this tunnel work could be utilized in the construction of the highway tunnels. There are nine of these tunnels through the mountains, having a combined length of 37,389 lineal feet. The width of most of the tunnels as excavated range from twenty-six to twenty-eight feet. The tunnels are constructed through solid rock which insures their safety and would be ventilated as required in accordance with modern practice and experience in tunnel operation.

The work done by the South Penn Railroad Company is of considerable magnitude and consists generally of grading, building of embankments, drainage structures, tunnel excavation, and tunnel construction. Despite the fact that this construction was done fifty years ago it is still in excellent condition. The value of the work which can be incorporated into a highway amounts to several million dollars and would constitute an effective start on any highway which might be built. It appears that property damages and the purchase of right-of-way would not be excessive and expenditures could be readily met from the operating income.

The adoption of the South Penn Railroad grade for highway purposes offers no serious difficulty or unusual engineering problems and consists chiefly in mere quantities of work to be done. The work can be divided in its various classifications and in such quantities into contract sections as to make possible the construction and completion of the highway in the shortest possible time consistent with good work.

We are advised by military authorities that army mobile equipment is being rapidly motorized. The military importance of this highway is apparent for the rapid and expeditious movement of such equipment and munitions from Pittsburgh, a great course of war munitions, to the Atlantic coast in the event of military necessity.

At the present time, Germany is constructing 4300 miles of heavy duty concrete highways, the design of which is similar to that contemplated by the South Penn Highway and the latter would compare favorable with other military roads throughout the world.

It is estimated that the following amount of material would be used in construction:

Sand: 770,000 tons, 15,400 carloads. Stone and Slag: 1,200,000 tons 24,000 carloads. Steel: 50,000 tons, 1,000 carloads. Cement: 392,000 tons, 7,480 carloads. It is obvious that a project of this magnitude would require the purchase by contractors of modern equipment such as trucks, graders, rollers, power shovels, mixers, compressors, batchers, etc. It is significant that the materials and equipment to be used in the construction of this project can be produced by the industries of Pennsylvania.

The estimated cost of construction, exclusive of engineering and administration, would be $50,000,000.00. According to statistics of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, a project of this kind would result in 18,980 man years of direct and 32,365 man years of indirect employment. Further, $50,000,000.00 spent for the construction of highways sets in motion forces which, eventually, result in the transaction of business valued at $157,801,350.00.

The grading would approximate 14,700,000 cubic yards. Of this amount 5,300,000 cubic yards was completed by the South Penn Railroad and would be incorporated in the proposed highway.

It is estimated that the cost of the tunnels would be about $400.00 per linear foot based on similar types of tunnel construction. To ventilate the tunnels would cost approximately $1,500,000.00.

Since this highway, of heavy duty type, would have double lanes extending in each direction, the traffic capacity would be practically unlimited and will remain ample, practical and of benefit to the people of our own and succeeding generations.

It is proposed that the highway be constructed, operated and maintained by an authority or commission to be created by Legislative enactment. Such authority or commission to have power to issue revenue bonds, which incur no obligation whatsoever upon the resources of the Commonwealth. These bonds are to be secured by and liquidated from tolls or other revenues derived from the operation of the highway.

That the public may become acquainted with the benefits of this South Penn Highway, it is estimated that minimum daily traffic will be 5000 motor vehicles, or, in terms of income, is estimated as $5,000,000.00 annually. The matter of maintenance could be handled in several ways, one of which might be by the Pennsylvania Department of Highways on a fee basis to cover actual cost.

The speedy construction of a project of this kind is of particular importance to all of us at the present time in view of the relief situation.

In addition to the ordinary advantages of speedy construction inherent in all highway projects of,

(1) Minimizing the accrual of interest charges during construction, and

(2) Providing relief to the traveling public in the form of traffic improvement and safety at the earliest possible time, there is the immediate demand for unemployment relief. As previously stated, this project would provide a total of 51,345 man years of direct and indirect gainful employment for Pennsylvania citizens.

There are many advantages which would result from the construction of this highway, the benefit of which to traffic would appear to more than justify the cost of construction.

1. Traffic hazard reduced by elimination of sharp curves and steep grades, resulting in free and easy movement of all classes of traffic, eliminating the hazard and delay of passing or following behind trucks, which are essential elements of highway transportation.

2. The shelter and protection afforded by the tunnels and the location of the proposed highway at a lower elevation than existing highways overcomes much of the danger from snow, ice, fog and floods and makes possible the continuous use of the highway throughout all seasons of the year.

3. Reduced mileage and running time between Pittsburgh and Harrisburg.

4. The danger of injury and death to school children and the general public using and crossing the state highways in built-up and congested communities will not be present or exist on the proposed highway.

5. Under the proposed plan of financing the cost of construction will be liquidated by revenue received from the tolls at the tunnels.

6. The new highway would open up, develop, and enhance the value of the adjacent and surrounding country.

7. The new highway would eliminate the necessity for restricting the legal weight of trucks and their loads during certain seasons of the year.

8. By using the South Penn Railroad right-of-way, a modern highway can be constructed at a saving of many million dollars. A study of highway traffic indicates that the construction of such a highway would greatly facilitate traffic movements originating beyond the east and west terminals.

9. A highway could be constructed almost at water grade by utilizing the South Penn Railroad. The economy of operating a heavy motor vehicle over this grade as compared to heavy mountain climbing is obvious. It has been estimated that the saving in heavy motor vehicle operation would amount to several dollars per trip.

The foregoing information with reference to the proposed South Penn Tunnel Highway was furnished by the Highway Department of the Commonwealth and is submitted herewith by the committee without any specific recommendations at this time.

If a bill is introduced into the Legislature for the construction of the proposed road, public hearings may then be held to determine the advisability of passage of the bill.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE DELAWARE RIVER JOINT COMMISSION OF PENNSYLVANIA AND NEW JERSEY

To the Honorable: The Legislatures of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey and the Council of the City of Philadelphia:

A new twenty-four hour record for traffic over the Delaware River Bridge was set on Sunday, July 19, 1936 with the crossing of 67,331 vehicles. This exceeded the previous record of 64,667 established on July 28, 1929. Vehicular traffic of 10,614,475 in 1936 surpassed that of 1935 by 457,546, or 4.50 per cent.

Receipts, swelled by $61,980.89 from operation of the rail transit line since June 7, 1936, showed an increase from $2,899,563.25 in 1935 to $3,067,967.87 in 1936, or 5.80 per cent. The year was the best in receipts since 1932. Traffic, receipts and expenses since the opening of the bridge on July 1, 1926 are as follows:

Year	Traffic	Gross Receipts	Expenses	Net Receipts

1926 (½ year)	4,137,674	1,110,108.38	158,109.47	946,682.83

Included in the 1936 expenses are $20,707.11, cost of repaving the suspended spans for the first time since the opening of the bridge; and $6,220.63 covering installation of a passenger elevator in the Administration Building.

Passenger automobiles increased by 5.04 per cent and trucks, by 10.21 per cent. A falling-off of 1.38 per cent in buses and 10.63 per cent in motorcycles was noted. Traffic was made up of 86.33 per cent passenger automobiles; 11.19 per cent buses; 2.11 per cent large trucks and .37 per cent motorcycles and miscellaneous including the three horse-drawn vehicles which passed over the bridge.

Monthly average receipts were $255,647.32 and daily average receipts, $8,387.89. Monthly average traffic was 884,539; daily average traffic, 29,001. August was the peak month with 1,220,337 and February, the low with 541,103.

Rail Transit Line Opens

The rail transit line across the bridge extending the subway system of Philadelphia into Camden was completed and opened to traffic on June 7, 1936. The line was formally dedicated with appropriate ceremonies the preceding day. The cost of the rail transit line, at the end of 1936, was $10,697,244.80. The Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works paid as grant $1,879,433.40 and there is still due to the Commission from this source an additional $460,098.94. Government grant payments during 1936 totaled $1,535,613.76.

Construction of the rail transit project was begun February 23, 1934 with the breaking of ground on the Philadelphia side. Cost of the project included building of a subway in Philadelpha from Eighth and Race Streets to the bridge, laying of rails on the bridge and building a subway in Camden to a point adjacent to the Broadway Station of the Pennsylvania-Reading Seashore Lines, together with constructing stations at Franklin Square in Philadelphia; City Hall and Broadway stations in Camden.

The first test train crossed the bridge on April 10, 1936. The line carried 23,360 passengers on the opening day, June 7th. This record was not exceeded during the remainder of the year although 22,435 passengers crossed on Thursday, June 25th when the Mardi Gras of the Democratic Convention was held in Philadelphia. The patronage averaged 354,177 monthly and 11,920 daily. In December, the daily average was 14,965. This fell far below estimates made prior to the opening of the line when it was believed bus business of the bridge would be cut down by seventy-five per cent and bus riders transfer to the rail transit line. The number of buses was reduced but slightly after the line went into operation. The Commission had estimated that revenue from bus tolls would be lessened by $375,000 but the traveling public evidenced a desire to continue with the buses.

One objection raised to the rail line is the necessity of transferring at Eighth and Market Streets, Philadelphia to the Market Street subway in order to reach the central part of the city. This objection will be largely overcome with completion of the Locust Street subway which is expected in 1937.

In connection with the building of the transit line, the Commission widened Race Street, between Franklin and Eighth, for the use of vehicular traffic and extended Seventh Street through Franklin Square to obviate the necessity of turning Seventh Street traffic west into Race Street. This removed a particularly dangerous source of congestion.

Contracts for construction of the transit line, all of which have been completed, were as follows:

Number	Contractor	For	Amount Earned
1	Building, Incorported	Philadelphia section of subway	$1,027,551.44

Suits were brought by Builders, Incorporated, The Marcus Contracting Company, Incorporated and E. R. Morehouse Company, Incorporated for amounts over and beyond contract provisions. These were still in litigation at the end of the year.

A number of property owners in Camden brought suit jointly against the Commission and The Marcus Contracting Company, Incorporated for alleged damage to buildings along the line of the subway. In the three cases tried, non-suits were granted by the Court to the Commission. Similar suits have been instituted by owners against the Commission and the Triest Contracting Corporation jointly but none was brought to trial during the year.

The New Jersey Supreme Court, in March, upheld the Commission's contention that the building of a subway in Camden was for the benefit of the public and that owners of abutting properties could not collect damages from the Commission by reason of occupation of the street. The Court's decision was affirmed by the New Jersey Court of Errors and Appeals in October.

Lease Runs to June

The lease of the rail transit line to the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company expires June 30, 1937 but extends for a successive period of four years unless terminated by either party four months prior to that date. The lease further provides that either the Commission or the Company shall have the right to end the lease forthwith if the Company ceases to operate the Broad Street subway and the Ridge Avenue-Eighth Street subway with which the bridge line connects. The lease of the Broad Street and Ridge Avenue-Eighth Street subways by the City of Philadelphia to the Company also expires June 30, 1937. The City gave notice late in 1936 that the lease would not be renewed on the existing terms.

To obtain additional funds for the building of the line, the Commission, on April 17, 1936, sold $500,000 bridge bonds at 113.816 and accrued interest to a syndicate. At the end of the year, $37,720,000 Commission bonds were outstanding. In the two preceding years, the Commission redeemed $400,000 bonds and found no necessity to issue the $2,880,000 balance of the authorized $41,000,000 issue of 1933. Under agreement with the Government for the financing of the transit line, $2,842,000 of the unissued bonds must be cancelled. During 1936, the Commission paid interest amounting to $1,477,842.59.

On May 15, 1936, the Commission awarded Contract No. 16 to the Union Paving Company for the repaving of streets in Philadelphia and Camden above the subway in the amount of $52,578.25.

On January 17, 1936, Contract No. BA-2 was awarded to the Otis Elevator Company for installation of a passenger elevator in the Administration Building. The contract amount was $3,744 but auxiliary work performed by the Commission's own forces brought the total cost to $6,220.63.

On April 17, 1936, the Union Paving Company was awarded Contract No. 21-C for repaving the suspended spans and certain parts of the Camden Plaza at a total cost of $20,707.11. This work was performed without interruption of traffic.

On October 26, 1936, the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works allotted $64,395 to the Commission representing forty-five per cent of the cost of erecting a Maintenance Building, including workshop and garage, at Fourth and Linden Streets, Camden. This offer was accepted by the Commission on November 27th and bids for construction of the building were immediately advertised. On December 18, 1936, the following contracts were awarded by the Commission:

Number	Contractor	For	Amount
BA-6	Henry E. Baton, Incorporated	Building	$99,200
BA-7	Harry Knecht Company	Plumbing, and Heating and Ventilating	13,524
BA-8	Strang Electric Company, Inc.	Electrical work	5,099

The contractors were ordered to begin work December 31, 1936. The building will house all the Commission's maintenance equipment and workshops.

On October 2nd and 3rd, the Commission was represented at a conference of the Interstate Commerce Commission on the Delaware River Basin at Shawnee-on-the-Delaware called to consider the problem of removing pollution of the Delaware River. The cooperation of this Commission was pledged.

Changes in Commission

On December 5, 1936, Commissioners J. Willison Smith who served since April 19, 1929 and William H. Folwell, serving since September 16, 1927, resigned. Governor Earle appointed in their places Messrs. John B. Kelly and John A. McCarthy. On December 11, 1936, Governor Earle announced that he had removed from office Commissioners Thomas B. Smith and Richard Weglein, who had served from December 12, 1919 and June 9, 1921 respectively, and appointed in their places Messrs. James P. Clark and Edward Browning, Jr. Mr. Smith and Mr. Weglein challenged the legal authority of the Governor to remove them contending that they were appointed by the Legislature.

The subject of changing toll rates for passenger cars and light trucks was deliberated upon. On December 29, 1936, a special committee appointed by the Commission on December 18, 1936 to study the subject recommended that the twenty-five cent rate for these classifications be reduced to twenty cents. A special meeting of the Commission was set for January 15, 1937 to take final action.

During 1936, thirty-seven minor accidents were reported on the bridge; forty-eight arrests were made; nine fires were extinguished without serious damage; one suicide occurred and disabled cars totaling five hundred nine were removed.

The Delaware River Joint Commission invites the Legislatures of Pennsylvania and New Jersey and the Council of the City of Philadelphia to inspect the bridge at any time.

Respectfully submitted,

Annual Report of the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission of Pennsylvania and New Jersey

To the Governor and Legislature of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

To the Governor and Legislature of the State of New Jersey:

On April 8, 1908, Hon. John Franklin Fort who at that time was Governor of New Jersey approved a Joint Resolution appointing three Commissioners on the part of the State of New Jersey to act with three Commissioners to be appointed by the Governor of Pennsylvania to ascertain the number of toll bridges crossing the Delaware River between the State of New Jersey and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and to make an estimate of the probable cost of acquiring the same.

A similar resolution was adopted by the Legislature of Pennsylvania and approved on March 15, 1909, by Hon. Edwin S. Stuart, then Governor of Pennsylvania.

The Commission thus appointed met in Trenton, New Jersey, August 30, 1910, and made a personal tour of inspection of the bridges crossing the Delaware River between the States of Pennsylvania and New Jersey beginning with the lower bridge connecting the City of Trenton, New Jersey, with the Borough of Morrisville, Pennsylvania, and ending at Milford Pike County, Pennsylvania. They also corresponded with the various corporations owning the said bridges and from information received and personal inspection recommended to the respective Legislatures, that they appropriate a sufficient sum of money for the express purpose of purchasing the toll bridges in the above territory, the cost to be divided equally between the two States.

Following the Commissioners report the New Jersey Legislature passed an act in 1912 which was approved by the Governor, appointing a commission of three members and making an initial appropriation of one hundred thousand dollars for the purchase of these bridges. It was not, however, until 1917 that Pennsylvania approved a concurrent act and made a similar appropriation.

The first bridge purchased and freed of tolls was the lower one between Trenton, New Jersey and Morrisville, Pennsylvania. This was acquired on July 12, 1918, for the sum of two hundred and forty thousand dollars. Since that date the following bridges were purchased and have been repaired, maintained, and in some cases rebuilt by the Commission:

Powers of Commission Extended

In 1931 the following act was passed in the Pennsylvania Legislature and approved by the Governor on June 25th of the same year which authorized the Governor to enter into an agreement with the State of New Jersey, creating a Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission and specifying the powers and duties thereof, including the power to finance the construction of additional bridges by the issuance of revenue bonds to be redeemed from revenue derived from tolls collected at such bridges and transferring to said Commission all powers exercised by the Commission existing at that time.

No. 332

AN ACT

Providing for joint action by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey in the administration, operation, and maintenance of bridges over the Delaware River, and for the construction of additional bridge facilities across said river; authorizing the Governor, for these purposes, to enter into an agreement with the State of New Jersey; creating a Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission and specifying the powers and duties thereof, including the power to finance the construction of additional bridges by the issuance of revenue bonds to be redeemed from revenues derived from tolls collected at such bridges; transferring to said commission all powers now exercised by existing commission created to acquire toll bridges over the Delaware River; and making an appropriation.

Section 1. Be it enacted, &c., That the Governor is hereby authorized to enter into a compact or agreement, on behalf of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, with the State of New Jersey in substantially the following form:

Agreement between The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and
The State of New Jersey
Creating the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission as a body corporate and politic and defining its powers and duties

Whereas, The commission, on behalf of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, existing by virtue of the act, approved the eighth day of May one thousand nine hundred and nineteen (Pamphlet Laws, one hundred forty-eight), and its amendments, and the commission, on behalf of the State of New Jersey, existing by virtue of the provisions of the act, approved the first day of April, one thousand nine hundred and twelve (Chapter, two hundred ninety-seven), and its supplements, acting as a joint commission, have acquired various toll bridges aver the Delaware River between the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey; and

Whereas, Additional bridge facilities between the two States will be required in the future for the accommodation of the public and the development of both States; and

Whereas, Such additional bridge facilities should be developed without the expenditure of large sums from the public revenues; and

Whereas, It is highly desirable that there be a single agency for both States empowered to further the transportation interests of these States with respect to that part of the Delaware River north of the stone arch bridge of the Pennsylvania Railroad from Morrisville to Trenton; now therefore,

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey do hereby solemnly covenant and agree, each with the other, as follows:

Article I

There is hereby created a body corporate and politic, to be known as the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission (hereinafter in this agreement called the "Commission"), which shall consist of the commissioners, on behalf of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, provided for by the act, approved the eighth day of May, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen (Pamphlet Laws, one hundred forty-eight), and its amendments, for the acquisition of toll bridges over the Delaware River, and of commissioners, on behalf of the State of New Jersey, provided for by the act, approved the first day of April, one thousand nine hundred and twelve (Chapter, two hundred ninety-seven), and its supplements, for the acquisition of toll bridges over the Delaware River, which said commissions have heretofore been acting as a joint commission by virtue of reciprocal legislation.

No action of the commission shall be binding unless a majority of the members of the commission from Pennsylvania and a majority of the members of the commission from New Jersey shall vote in favor thereof.

The commission shall constitute the public corporate instrumentality of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey for the following public purposes, and shall be deemed to be exercising an essential governmental function in effectuating such purpose, to wit:

(a) The administration, operation, and maintenance of the joint State-owned bridges across the Delaware River between the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey, and located north of the present stone arch bridge of the Pennsylvania Railroad across the Delaware River from Morrisville to Trenton;

(b) The investigation of the necessity for additional bridge communications over the Delaware River north of the said railroad bridge, and the making of such studies, surveys, and estimates as may be necessary to determine the feasibility and cost of such additional bridge communications;

(c) The preparation of plans and specifications for, and location, construction administration, operation and maintenance of, such additional bridge communications over the Delaware River, north of the aforesaid railroad bridge, as the commission deems necessary to advance the interests of the two States and to facilitate public travel; and the issuance of bonds and obligations to provide moneys sufficient for the construction of such bridges; and the collection of tolls, rentals, and charges for the redemption of such bonds and obligations, and the payment of interest thereon;

(d) The procurement from the Government of the United States of any consents which may be requisite to enable any project within its powers to be carried out.

Article II

For the effectuation of its authorized purposes, the commission is hereby granted the following powers:

(a) To have perpetual succession.

(b) To sue and be sued.

(c) To adopt and use an official seal.

(d) To elect a chairman, vice-chairman, secretary and treasurer. The secretary and treasurer need not be members of the commission.

(e) To adopt suitable by-laws for the management of its affairs.

(f) To appoint such other officers, agents and employes as it may require for the performance of its duties;

(g) To determine the qualifications and duties of its appointees, and to fix their compensation.

(h) To enter into contracts.

(i) To acquire, own, hire, use, operate, and dispose of personal property.

(j) To acquire, own, use, lease, operate, and dispose of real property and interest in real property, and to make improvements thereon.

(k) To grant the use of, by franchise, lease, and otherwise, and to make and collect charges for the use of, any property or facility owned or controlled by it.

(l) To borrow money upon its bonds or other obligations, either with or without security.

(m) To exercise the power of eminent domain.

(n) To determine the exact location, system, and character of, and all other matters in connection with, any and all improvements or facilities which it may be authorized to own, construct, establish, effectuate, maintain, operate or control.

(o) In addition to the foregoing powers, to exercise the powers, duties, authority and jurisdiction heretofore conferred and imposed upon the aforesaid commissions, hereby constituted a joint commission by reciprocal legislation of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey, with respect to the acquisition of toll bridges over the Delaware River, the management, operation and maintenance of such bridges, and the location, construction, operation and maintenance of additional bridge communications over the Delaware River north of the aforesaid railroad bridge of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

(p) To exercise all other powers, not inconsistent with the Constitutions of the State of Pennsylvania and New Jersey or of the United States, which may be reasonably necessary or incidental to the effectuation of its authorized purposes or to the exercise of any of the foregoing powers, except the power to levy taxes or assessments for benefits; and generally to exercise, in connection with its property and affairs and in connection with property under its control, any and all powers which might be exercised by a natural person or a private corporation in connection with similar property and affairs.

Article III

If for any of its authorized purposes (including temporary purposes), the commission shall find it necessary or convenient to acquire for public use any real property in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania or the State of New Jersey, whether for immediate or future use, the commission may, by resolution, determine to acquire such property by a fee simple absolute or lesser interest, and the said determination shall not be affected by the fact that such property has theretofore been taken for or is then devoted to a public use, but the public use in the hands or under the control of the commission shall be deemed superior to the public use in the hands or under the control of any other person, association, or corporation.

If the commission is unable to agree with the owner or owners thereof upon terms for the acquisition of any such real property, in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, for any reason whatsoever, then the commission may acquire such real property by the exercise of the right of eminent domain, in the manner provided by the act, approved the eighth day of May, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen (Pamphlet Laws, one hundred forty-eight), entitled "An act providing for the joint acquisition and maintenance by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey of certain toll bridges over the Delaware River," and the acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto, relating to the acquisition of inter-State toll bridges over the Delaware River.

If the commission is unable to agree with the owner or owners thereof upon terms for the acquisition of any such real property, in the State of New Jersey, for any reason whatsoever, then the commission may acquire such property by the exercise of the right of eminent domain, in the manner provided by the act of the State of New Jersey, entitled "An act authorizing the acquisition and maintaining by the State of New Jersey, in conjunction with the State of Pennsylvania, of toll bridges across the Delaware River; and providing for free travel across the same," approved the first day of April, one thousand nine hundred and twelve (Chapter, two hundred ninety-seven) and the various acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto, relating to the acquisition of inter-State toll bridges over the Delaware River.

The power of the commission to acquire real property by condemnation or the exercise of the power of eminent domain in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey shall be a continuing power and no exercise thereof shall be deemed to exhaust it.

The commission and its duly authorized agents and employes may enter upon any land, in the Commonwealth or the State of New Jersey, for the purpose of making such surveys, maps, or other examinations thereof, as it may deem necessary or convenient for its authorized purposes.

However, anything to the contrary contained in this compact notwithstanding, no property, now or hereafter vested in or held by any county, city, borough, village, township or other municipality, shall be taken by the commission without the consent of such municipality, unless expressly authorized so to do by the Commonwealth or State in which such municipality is located. All counties, cities, boroughs, villages, townships and other municipalities, and all public agencies and commissions of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey, notwithstanding any contrary provision of law, are hereby authorized and empowered to grant and convey to the commission upon its request, but not otherwise, upon reasonable terms and conditions, any real property which may be necessary or convenient to the effectuation of its authorized purposes, including real property already devoted to public use.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey hereby consent to the use and occupation by the commission of any real property of the said two States, or of either of them, which may be or become necessary or convenient to the effectuation of the authorized purposes of the commission, including lands lying under water and lands already devoted to public use.

The term "real property," as used in this compact, includes lands, structures, franchises, and interests in land, including lands under water and riparian rights, and any and all things and rights usually included within the said term, and includes not only fees simple and absolute but also any and all lesser interests, such as easements, rights of way, uses, leases, licenses, and all other incorporeal hereditaments, and every estate, interest or right, legal or equitable, including terms of years and liens thereon by way of judgments, mortgages, or otherwise, and also claims for damage to real estate.

Article IV

Notwithstanding any provisions of this agreement, the commission shall have no power to pledge the credit of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, or of the State of New Jersey, or of any county, city, borough, village, township and other municipality of said Commonwealth or State or to create any debt against said Commonwealth or State or any such municipality.

Article V

The commission is hereby authorized to make and enforce such rules and regulations, and to establish, levy and collect (or to authorize, by contract, franchise, liens or otherwise, the establishment, levying and collection of) such tolls, rates, rents, and other charges, in connection with any such bridge across the Delaware River which it may hereafter construct and operate, as it may deem necessary, proper, desirable and reasonable, which tolls, rates, rents, and other charges shall be at least sufficient to meet interest and sinking fund charges on bonds and obligations issued by the commission, the maintenance of such bridge, and the administrative expenses of the commission properly chargeable to such bridge. The commission is hereby authorized and empowered to pledge such tolls, rates, rents, and other revenues, or any part thereof, as security for the repayment, with interest, of any moneys borrowed by it or advanced to it for any of its authorized purposes, and as security for the satisfaction of any other obligation assumed by it in connection with such loans or advances.

Article VI

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey hereby covenant and agree with each other and with the holders of any bonds or other obligations of the commission, for which tolls, rents, rates, or other revenues have been pledged, that, so long as any of said bonds or obligations remain outstanding and unpaid (unless adequate provision is otherwise made by law for the protection of those advancing moneys upon such bonds or obligations), the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey will not diminish or impair the power of the commision to own, operate and control said properties and facilities, or to establish, levy and collect tolls, rents, rates, and other charges in connection with such properties and facilities.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey hereby covenant and agree with each other and with the holders of any bonds or obligations of the commission, for which tolls, rents, rates, or other revenues shall have been pledged, that the said Commonwealth and State will not authorize or permit the construction, operation and maintenance of any additional bridge or tunnel for the transportation of passengers by vehicles over the Delaware River by any other person or body, than the commission, within a distance of ten miles in either direction from any such toll bridge, measured along the boundary line between the said Commonwealth and the said State.

Article VII

The bonds or obligations which may be issued by the commission for any of its authorized purposes, and as security for which tolls, rents, rates, and other revenues shall have been pledged, are hereby made securities in which all State and municipal officers and bodies of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey, and all banks, bankers, trust companies, savings banks, savings and loan associations, investment companies, and other persons carrying on a banking business, or insurance companies, insurance associations, and other persons carrying on an insurance business, and all administrators, executors, guardians, trustees, and other fiduciaries, and all other persons whatsoever, who now or may hereafter be authorized to invest in bonds or other obligations of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania or of the State of New Jersey, may properly and legally invest funds, including capital belonging to them or within their control; and said bonds or other obligations are hereby made securities which may properly and legally be deposited with and received by any State or municipal officer, or agency of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey, for any purpose for which the deposit of bonds or other obligations, either of the Commonwealth or of the State, is now or may hereafter be authorized.

Article VIII

The effectuation of its authorized purposes by the commission is and will be in all respects for the benefit of the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey, and for the increase of their commerce and prosperity, and since the commission will be performing essential governmental functions in effectuating said purposes, the commission shall not be required to pay any taxes or assessments upon any property acquired or used by it for purposes authorized by this agreement; and the bonds or obligations issued by the commission, their transfer and the income therefrom, including any profits made on the sale thereof, shall, at all times, be free from taxation within the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey.

Article IX

The commission shall make annual reports to the Governors and Legislatures of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey, setting forth in detail its operations and transactions, and may make such additional reports, from time to time, to the Governors and Legislatures as it may deem advisable.

Whenever the commission, after investigation and study, shall have concluded plans, with estimates of cost, and means of financing any new toll bridge across the Delaware River, as hereinbefore provided, it shall make to the Legislatures of each State a detailed report, dealing with the contemplated project; and it shall not be within the power of the commission to construct or erect any such toll bridge until the Legislatures of both States have authorized the commission to proceed with the project outlined in its special report.

Article X

Whenever particular bonds issued for any bridge or bridges, and the interest thereon, shall have been paid, or a sufficient amount shall have been provided for their payment and shall continue to be held for that purpose, the commission shall cease to charge tolls for the use of such bridge and thereafter such bridge shall be a free bridge, and shall thereafter be maintained equally at the cost of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey by appropriations made for such purposes.

Article XI

Upon its signature on behalf of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey, this compact or agreement shall become binding and shall have the force and effect of a statute of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and the commission shall thereupon become vested with all the powers, rights, and privileges, and be subject to the duties and obligations contained therein, as though the same were specifically authorized and imposed by statute, and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania shall be bound by all of the obligations assumed by it under this compact or agreement; and the Governor shall transmit an original signed copy thereof to the Secretary of the Commonwealth for filing in his office.

The Governor is hereby authorized to apply, on behalf of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, to the Congress of the United States for its consent and approval to this compact or agreement; but in the absence of such consent and approval, the commission shall have all of the powers which the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey may confer upon it without the consent and approval of Congress.

Article XII

Section 2. The sum of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000), or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby specifically appropriated to the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission, to be used by it, together with a like appropriation made by the State of New Jersey, for the purposes of carrying out the provisions of this compact, except the operation, maintenance, improvement or construction of any new toll bridge over the Delaware River. The moneys hereby appropriated shall be disbursed upon requisition of the chairman of the commission presented to the Auditor General, who shall direct his warrant upon the State Treasurer in the usual manner.

Section 3. This act shall become effective immediately upon its signing by the Governor and the passage by the State of New Jersey of a substantially similar act, embodying the agreement between the two States herein set forth, and making a like appropriation.

Section 2. The sum of twenty thousand dollars ($20,000), or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby specifically appropriated to the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission to be used by it, together with a like appropriation made by the State of New Jersey for the purposes of carrying out the provisions of this compact, except the operation, maintenance, improvement or construction of any new toll bridge over the Delaware River. The moneys hereby appropriated shall be returned to the Commonwealth and paid into the State Treasury within five years after the completion of the first toll bridge constructed, with interest at the rate paid on bonds issued for the construction of that particular bridge. The moneys hereby appropriated shall be disbursed upon requisition of the chairman of the commission presented to the Auditor General, who shall direct his warrant upon the State Treasurer in the usual manner.

Section 3. This act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment.

Approved—The 18th day of May, A. D. 1933.

Gifford Pinchot.

The above acts of Pennsylvania were concurred in by the State of New Jersey, when the Legislature of that State passed a similar act (Chapter 215) which was approved by the Governor on June 11, 1934.

The Agreement or Compact which these acts authorized the Governor of each State to enter into was signed by Governor Moore of New Jersey, on December 18, 1934, and by Governor Pinchot on Decmber 19, 1934.

Proposed New Bridge

The necessity for providing additional facilities to transport the ever-increasing volume of vehicular traffic across the Delaware River, between Easton, Pennsylvania, and Phillipsburg, New Jersey, has been apparent for a number of years past.

Easton and Phillipsburg lie at the point of convergence of a series of main highways extending north, south, east and west.

The William Penn Highway, the most important east and west trunk line, and heavily traveled, passes through Pennsylvania and extends into New Jersey. In addition, the Lackawanna Trail, also a heavily traveled north and south line on the Pennsylvania side of the river, passes through Easton, with collateral lines through New Jersey, centering at Phillipsburg, furthermore, the local travel across the river, between the two communities is very heavy and materially swells the volume of travel on the main trunk lines crossing the Delaware River at this point.

Altogether, the traffic over these lines resulted in the annual passage across the river at the existing free bridge between Easton, Pennsylvania, and Phillipsburg, New Jersey, during the calendar year 1936 of 7,718,571 vehicles of all descriptions.

The present free bridge was constructed and opened for traffic during the year 1895, being the successor to the original covered timber structure, constructed about the year 1806. The same approaches that existed in 1895 are obliged to accommodate the large increased volume of traffic that has occurred since the original bridge was constructed, with the result that congestion frequently occurs, which ties up traffic from one-half to three-quarters of a mile beyond the ends of the bridge, when peak loads have occurred, or when traffic has been temporarily blocked during a busy period. Occasions have occurred when the traffic on the bridge has reached 32,486 vehicles in 24 hours.

The bridge located at the foot of Northampton Street, Easton, Pennsylvania, has seen over forty years of continuous service. It was constructed at a period prior to the development of automobiles and trucks, when hay wagons were considered heavy loads. In consequence, its remaining active life is more or less limited, as the history of other highway bridges indicates that an active life of fifty years is about all that can be expected from bridges of this description.

As neither the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, nor the State of New Jersey have available the necessary funds to devote to the construction of a new bridge designed to relieve this situation, the funds had to be derived from other sources; by the issue of bonds as provided by Act No. 332, P. L. 1352, Pennsylvania, 1931, amended by Act No. 138, P. L. 827, Pennsylvania, 1933 and Chapter 215, P. L. N. J. 1934; which will require the application of tolls to provide the income necessary to retire these obligations, operate the bridge and maintain it.

Public Meeting

On Saturday, February 16, 1935, an open meeting was held by the Commission at the Elks Home, Phillipsburg, New Jersey, for the purpose of affording representatives of the Boards of Trade and other civic bodies, the manufacturing interests and all interested citizens of Easton and Phillipsburg an opportunity to express themselves with respect to the location of a proposed toll bridge across the Delaware River between the two cities.

The general trend of opinion, as expressed at the meeting, appeared to favor the construction of the new bridge on what is known as the Bushkill Street location, about 1,100 feet above the present bridge and the retention of the present structure as a free bridge.

Accordingly, the Chief Engineer of the Commission was authorized to proceed with test borings, surveys, and prepare plans for a bridge at this location.

Congress Authorizes Construction of Toll Bridge Between Easton, Pennsylvania, and Phillipsburg, New Jersey, and Grants Consent to Compact

In the 74th Congress the following act was passed and approved by the President on August 30, 1935.

[Public—No. 411—74th Congress]
[H. R. 9070]

AN ACT

To authorize the construction of certain bridges and to extend the times for commencing and/or completing the construction of other bridges over the navigable waters of the United State and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

DELAWARE RIVER BETWEEN EASTON, PENNSYLVANIA AND PHILLIPSBURG, NEW JERSEY

Section 2. (a) That in order to promote interstate commerce, improve the postal service, and provide for military and other purposes, the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission of the State of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey, be and is hereby authorized to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge and approaches thereto across the Delaware River, at a point suitable to the interests of navigation, at or near Easton, Pennsylvania and Phillipsburg, New Jersey, in accordance with the provisions of the act entitled 'An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters,' approved March twenty-third, one thousand nine hundred and six, and subject to the conditions and limitations contained in this act.

(b) There is hereby conferred upon the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission of the State of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey all such rights and powers to enter upon the lands and to acquire, condemn, occupy, possess, and use real estate and other property needed for the location, construction, maintenance, and operation of such bridge and its approaches, as are possessed by railroad corporations for railroad purposes or by bridge corporations for bridge purposes in the State in which such real estate or other property is situated, upon making just compensation therefor, to be ascertained and paid according to the laws of such State, and the proceedings therefor shall be the same as in the condemnation or expropriation of property for public purposes in such State.

(c) The said Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission of the State of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey is hereby authorized to fix and charge tolls for transit over such bridge, and the rates of toll so fixed shall be the legal rates until changed by the Secretary of War under the authority contained in the act of March twenty-third, one thousand nine hundred and six.

(d) In fixing the rates of toll to be charged for the use of such bridge the same shall be so adjusted as to provide a fund sufficient to pay for the reasonable cost of maintaining, repairing, and operating the bridge and its approaches under economical management, and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to amortize the cost of such bridge and its approaches, including reasonable interest and financing cost, as soon as possible, under reasonable charges, but within a period of not to exceed forty years from the completion thereof. After a sinking fund sufficient for such amortization shall have been so provided, such bridge shall thereafter be maintained and operated free of tolls, or the rates of toll shall thereafter be so adjusted as to provide a fund of not to exceed the amount necessary for the proper maintenance, repair, and operation of the bridge and its approaches under economical management. An accurate record of the cost of the bridge and its approaches, the expenditures for maintaining, repairing, and operating the same, and of the daily tolls collected shall be kept and shall be available for the information of all persons interested.

COMPACT BETWEEN PENNSYLVANIA AND NEW JERSEY

Section 9. That the consent of Congress is hereby given to the compact or agreement set forth below, and to each and every term and provision thereof: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be construed to affect, impair, or diminish any right, power, or jurisdiction of the United States or of any court, department, board, bureau, officer, or official of the United States, over or in regard to any navigable waters, or any commerce between the States or with foreign countries, or any bridge, railroad, highway, pier, wharf, or other facility or improvement, or any other person, matter, or thing forming the subject matter of the aforesaid compact or agreement or otherwise affected by the terms thereof.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey do hereby solemnly covenant and agree, each with the other, as follows:

Article I

There is hereby created a body corporate and politic, to be known as the "Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission" (hereinafter in this agreement called the "commission"), which shall consist of the commissioners, on behalf of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, provided for by the act, approved the eighth day of May, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen (Pamphlet Laws, one hundred forty-eight), and its supplements and amendments, for the acquisition of toll bridges over the Delaware River, and of commissioners, on behalf of the State of New Jersey, provided for by the act, approved the first day of April, one thousand nine hundred and twelve (Chapter, three hundred ninety-seven), and its supplements and amendments, for the acquisition of toll bridges over the Delaware River, which said commissions have heretofore been acting as a joint commission by virtue* of reciprocal legislation.

No action of the commission shall be binding unless a majority of the members of the commission from Pennsylvania and a majority of the members of the commission from New Jersey shall vote in favor thereof.

The commission shall constitute the public corporate instrumentality of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey for the following public purposes, and shall be deemed to be exercising an essential governmental function in effectuating such purpose, to wit:

(a) The administration, operation, and maintenance of the joint State-owned bridges across the Delaware River between the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey, and located north of the present stone arch bridge of the Pennsylvania Railroad across the Delaware River from Morrisville to Trenton;

(b) The investigation of the necessity for additional bridge communications over the Delaware River north of the said railroad bridge, and the making of such studies, surveys, and estimates as may be necessary to determine the feasibility and cost of such additional bridge communications;

(c) The preparation of plans and specifications for, and location, construction, administration, operation, and maintenance of such additional bridge communications over the Delaware River, north of the aforesaid railroad bridge, as the commission deems necessary to advance the interests of the two States and to facilitate public travel; and the issuance of bonds and obligations to provide moneys sufficient for the construction of such bridges; and the collection of tolls, rentals, and charges for the redemption of such bonds and obligations, and the payment of interest thereon;

(d) The procurement from the Government of the United States of any consents which may be requisite to enable any project within its powers to be carried out.

Article II

For the effectuation of its authorized purposes, the commission is hereby granted the following powers:

(a) To have perpetual succession.

(b) To sue and be sued.

(c) To adopt and use an official seal.

(d) To elect a chairman, vice-chairman, secretary, and treasurer, and appoint an engineer. The secretary, treasurer, and engineer need not be members of the commission.

(e) To adopt suitable by-laws for the management of its affairs.

(f) To appoint such other officers, agents, and employes as it may require for the performance of its duties.

(g) To determine the qualifications and duties of its appointees, and to fix their compensation.

(h) To enter into contracts.

(i) To acquire, own, hire, use, operate, and dispose of personal property.

(j) To acquire, own, use, lease, operate and dispose of real property and interest in real property, and to make improvements thereon.

(k) To grant the use of, by franchise, lease, and otherwise, and to make and collect charges for the use of, any property or facility owned or controlled by it.

(l) To borrow money upon its bonds or other obligations, either with or without security.

(m) To exercise the power of eminent domain.

(n) To determine the exact location, system, and character of, and all other matters in connection with, any and all improvements or facilities which it may be authorized to own, construct, establish, effectuate, maintain, operate, or control.

(o) In addition to the foregoing powers, to exercise the powers, duties, authority, and jurisdiction heretofore conferred and imposed upon the aforesaid commissions, hereby constituted a joint commission by reciprocal legislation of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey, with respect to the acquisition of toll bridges over the Delaware River, the management, operation, and maintenance of such bridges, and the location, construction, operation, and maintenance of additional bridge communications over the Delaware River north of the aforesaid railroad bridge of the [illegible]

(p) To exercise all other powers, not inconsistent with the Constitutions of the States of Pennsylvania and New Jersey or of the United States, which may be reasonably necessary or incidental to the effectuation of its authorized purposes or to the exercise of any of the foregoing powers, except the power to levy taxes or assessments for benefits; and generally to exercise, in connection with its property and affairs and in connection with property under its control, any and all powers which might be exercised by a natural person or a private corporation in connection with similar property and affairs.

Article III

If for any of its authorized purposes (including temporary purposes) the commission shall find it necessary or convenient to acquire for public use any real property in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania or the State of New Jersey, whether for immediate or future use, the commission may, by resolution, determine to acquire such property by a fee simple absolute or a lesser interest, and the said determination shall not be affected by the fact that such property has therefore been taken for or is then devoted to a public use, but the public use in the hands or under the control of the commission shall be deemed superior to the public use in the hands or under the control of any other person, association, or corporation.

If the commission is unable to agree with the owner or owners thereof upon terms for the acquisition of any such real property in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, for any reason whatsoever, then the commission may acquire such real property by the exercise of the right of eminent domain, in the manner provided by the act, approved the eighth day of May, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen (Pamphlet Laws, one hundred forty-eight), entitled "An act providing for the joint acquisition and maintenance by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey of certain toll bridges over the Delaware River," and the acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto, relating to the acquisition of interstate toll bridges over the Delaware River.

If the commission is unable to agree with the owner or owners thereof upon terms for the acquisition of any such real property, in the State of New Jersey, for any reason whatsoever, then the commission may require such property by the exercise of the right of eminent domain, in the manner provided by the act of the State of New Jersey, entitled "An act authorizing the acquisition and maintaining by the State of New Jersey, in conjunction with the State of Pennsylvania, of toll bridges across the Delaware River; and providing for free travel across the same," approved the first day of April, one thousand nine hundred and twelve (Chapter, two hundred ninety-seven), and the various acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto, relating to the acquisition of interstate toll bridges over the Delaware River.

The power of the commission to acquire real property by condemnation or the exercise of the power of eminent domain in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey shall be a continuing power and no exercise thereof shall be deemed to exhaust it.

The commission and its duly authorized agents and employes may enter upon any land, in the Commonwealth or the State of New Jersey, for the purpose of making such surveys, maps, or other examinations thereof, as it may deem necessary or convenient for its authorized purposes.

However, anything to the contrary contained in this compact notwithstanding, no property, now or hereafter vested in or held by any county, city, borough, village, township, or other municipality, shall be taken by the commission without the consent of such municipality, unless expressly authorized so to do by the Commonwealth or State in which such municipality is located. All counties, cities, boroughs, villages, townships and other municipalities, and all public agencies and commissions of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey, notwithstanding any contrary provision of law, are hereby authorized and empowered to grant and convey to the commission upon its request, but not otherwise, upon reasonable terms and conditions, any real property which may be necessary or convenient to the effectuation of its authorized purposes, including real property already devoted to public use.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey hereby consent to the use and occupation by the commission of any real property of the said two States, or of either of them, which may be or become necessary or convenient to the effectuation of the authorized purposes of the commission, including lands lying under water and lands already devoted to public use.

The term "real property," as used in this compact, includes lands, structures, franchises, and interests in land, including lands under water and riparian rights, and any and all things and rights usually included within the said term, and includes not only fees simple and absolute but also any and all lesser interests, such as easements, rights-of-way, uses, leases, licenses, and all other incorporeal hereditaments, and every estate, interest, or right, legal or equitable, including terms of years and liens thereon by way of judgments, mortgages, or otherwise, and also claims for damage to real estate.

Article IV

Notwithstanding any provision of this agreement, the commission shall have no power to pledge the credit of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, or of the State of New Jersey, or of any county, city, borough, village, township, and other municipality of said Commonwealth or State, or to create any debt against said Commonwealth or State or any such municipality.

Article V

The commission is hereby authorized to make and enforce such rules and regulations, and to establish, levy, and collect (or to authorize by contract, franchises, liens, or otherwise, the establishment, levying, and collection of) such tolls, rates, rents, and other charges, in connection with any such bridge across the Delaware River which it may hereafter construct and operate, as it may deem necessary, proper, desirable, and reasonable, which tolls, rates, rents, and other charges shall be at least sufficient to meet interest and sinking fund charges on bonds and obligations issued by the commission, the maintenance of such bridge, and the administrative expenses of the commission properly chargeable to such bridge. The commission is hereby authorized and empowered to pledge such tolls, rates, rents, and other revenues, or any part thereof, as security for the repayment, with interest, of any moneys borrowed by it or advanced to it for any of its authorized purposes, and as security for the satisfaction of any other obligation assumed by it in connection with such loans or advances.

Article VI

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey hereby covenant and agree with each other and with the holders of any bonds or other obligations of the commission, for which tolls, rents, rates, or other revenues have been pledged, that, so long as any of said bonds or obligations remain outstanding and unpaid (unless adequate provision is otherwise made by law for the protection of those advancing moneys upon such bonds or obligations), the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey will not diminish or impair the power of the commission to own, operate, and control said properties and facilities, or to establish, levy, and collect tolls, rents, rates, and other charges in connection with such properties and facilities.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey hereby covenant and agree with each other and with the holders of any bonds or obligations of the commission, for which tolls, rents, rates, or other revenues shall have been pledged, that the said Commonwealth and State will not authorize or permit the construction, operation, and maintenance of any additional bridge or tunnel for the transportation of passengers by vehicles over the Delaware River by any other person or body, than the commission, within a distance of ten miles in either direction from any such toll bridge, measured along the boundary line between the said Commonwealth and the said State.

Article VII

The bonds or obligations which may be issued by the commission for any of its authorized purposes, and as security for which tolls, rents, rates, and other revenues shall have been pledged, are hereby made securities in which all State and municipal officers and bodies of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey, and all banks, bankers, trust companies, savings banks, savings and loan associations, investment companies, and other persons carrying on a banking business, or insurance companies, insurance associations, and other persons carrying on an insurance business, and all administrators, executors, guardians, trustees, and other fiduciaries, and all other persons whatsoever, who now or may hereafter be authorized to invest in bonds or other obligations of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania or of the State of New Jersey, may properly and legally invest funds, including capital belonging to them or within their control; and said bonds or other obligations are hereby made securities which may properly and legally be deposited with and received by any State or municipal officer, or agency of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey, for any purpose for which the deposit of bonds or other obligations, either of the Commonwealth or of the State, is now or may hereafter be authorized.

Article VIII

The effectuation of its authorized purposes by the commission is and will be in all respects for the benefit of the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey, and for the increase of their commerce and prosperity, and since the commission will be performing essential governmental functions in effectuating said purposes, the commission shall not be required to pay any taxes or assessments upon any property acquired or used by it for purposes authorized by this agreement; and the bonds or obligations issued by the commission, their transfer, and the income therefrom, including any profits made on the sale thereof, shall, at all times, be free from taxation within the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey.

Article IX

The commission shall make annual reports to the Governors and Legislatures of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey, setting forth in detail its operations and transactions, and may make such additional reports, from time to time, to the Governors and Legislatures as it may deem advisable.

Whenever the commission, after investigation and study, shall have concluded plans, with estimates of cost, and means of financing any new toll bridge across the Delaware River, as hereinbefore provided, it shall make to the Legislatures of each State, at the next sessions thereof, a detailed report, dealing with the contemplated project; but such project may, nevertheless, be proceeded with if the Legislatures of said States, or either of them, are not in session.

Article X

Whenever particular bonds issued for any bridge or bridges, and the interest thereon, shall have been paid, or a sufficient amount shall have been provided for their payment and shall continue to be held for that purpose, the commission shall cease to charge tolls for the use of such bridge and thereafter such bridge shall be a free bridge, and shall thereafter be maintained equally at the cost of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey by appropriations made for such purposes, as now provided by law for the maintenance of bridges over the Delaware River acquired by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey.

In witness whereof, this eighteenth day of December, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-four, A. Harry Moore has affixed his signature hereto as Governor of the State of New Jersey and caused the great seal of the State to be attached thereto.

[Seal]

A. Harry Moore,
Governor, State of New Jersey.

And, on this nineteenth day of December, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-four, Gifford Pinchot has affixed his signature hereto as Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and caused the great seal of the Commonwealth to be attached thereto.

[Seal]

Gifford Pinchot,
Governor, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Section 33. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

Approved, August 30, 1935.

Governmental Permits

In addition to the above Act of Congress it was necessary to receive permits from the Water and Power Resources Board of Pennsylvania, State Water Policy Commission of New Jersey and the United States War Department. These permits were granted on December 11, 1935, January 8, 1936 and April 18, 1936, respectively.

Commission Authorizes Issue of $2,500,000 Bonds

On June 26, 1936, the Commission entered into an agreement with B. J. Van Ingen & Company, Incorporated, New York City, for the purchase of $2,500,000 bridge revenue 4¼% bonds for the purpose of constructing a bridge over the Delaware River at or near Easton, Pennsylvania, and Phillipsburg, New Jersey.

The bonds are secured by a Trust Indenture between the Commission and The First-Mechanics National Bank of Trenton, New Jersey, dated August 12, 1936. The $2,500,000 principal amount of twenty-five year 4¼% Bridge Revenue Bonds, due August, 1961, do not constitute a lien upon the bridge or any part thereof but only on the net tolls and other revenue after the payment of the cost of maintenance, operation and repair.

The bridge when completed, will extend from the foot of Bushkill Street, Easton, Pennsylvania, to the foot of Meadow Avenue, Phillipsburg, New Jersey, a distance of 2,850 feet.

The structure will consist of a single span across the river 540 feet in length, center to center of pins, with a viaduct 430 feet in length, followed by an embankment on the New Jersey approach 900 feet in length.

At the foot of this embankment provision has been made to locate the buildings to be used for the collections of tolls. The roadway will be forty feet wide in the clear between curbs, with two sidewalks eight feet wide in the clear, throughout.

Sale of Bonds

The Trust Indenture was entered into and the bonds sold on August 18, 1936. The proceeds of the sale amounting to $2,375,000 together with accrued interest of $5,017.25 were deposited with The First-Mechanics National Bank of Trenton as Trustee.

Proposals for New Bridge Invited

Bids for the construction of the foundations and concrete substructures, consisting of two main abutments and wingwalls for the main span and four piers and one abutment at Broad Street, Phillipsburg, were received and opened on October 16, 1936. The contract was awarded to the John F. Casey Company, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania for the sum of $387.587.50.

Bids for the fabrication and erection of the steel superstructure consisting of one through steel span, 540 feet centre to centre of pins, with five deck plate girder viaduct spans were received and opened on December 21, 1936. The contract was awarded to the Bethlehem Steel Company, Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, for the sum of $722,745.80.

The contract drawings and specifications for the approaches on both the Pennsylvania and New Jersey sides of the river will be completed shortly. The plans for the toll booths, lighting and the administration building are well underway and will be completed in ample time to advertise, award the contracts and have the work completed by December 31, 1937, the date set for the opening of the bridge.

Joint Legislative Commission on Interstate Cooperation

In the Senate, March 25, 1935.

Resolved, (if the House of Representatives concur) That there is hereby established the Joint Legislative Commission on Interstate Cooperation, whose function it shall be to perfect the participation of this State in the Council of State Governments, for the purpose of establishing and maintaining governmental machinery to facilitate communication, negotiation, understanding, and cooperation between the State of Pennsylvania and the other states of the Union, both regionally and nationally;

The Commission shall report to the Governor and to the Legislature on the first day of each regular legislative session, and at such other times as it deems proper. Its members shall serve without compensation, but they shall be paid their necessary expenses in carrying out their obligations under this resolution. It may employ a secretary and such other assistants as are needed in the performance of its duties, or it may share the expense of such employment with similar commissions of other states. An item of appropriation shall be inserted in the general appropriation law to pay such expenses and secretarial and clerical assistance;

The said Commission shall be composed of fifteen members, namely:

The five members of the Committee on Interstate Cooperation of the Senate;

The five members of the Committee on Interstate Cooperation of the House of Representatives, and Five officials of the State named by the Governor, one of whom shall be designated by him as the chairman of the Commission;

The Secretary of the Commonwealth shall forthwith communicate the text of this measure to the legislature of each of the other states of the Union, with the respectful request that each legislature shall enact a measure similar to this resolution, thus establishing a similar commission with like duties and powers, and thus joining with this State in the common cause of reducing the burdens which are imposed upon our citizens by governmental confusion, competition, and conflict.

INTRODUCTION

The Pennsylvania Commission on Interstate Cooperation, as its name implies, has been created "for the purpose of establishing and maintaining governmental machinery to facilitate communication, negotiation, understanding and cooperation between the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the other states of the Union, both regionally and nationally." To carry out these purposes, it has cooperated with other interstate commissions in this region on problems of crime control, highway safety, milk control, water resources, social security and liquor control.

The movement for interstate cooperation in which Pennsylvania is participating has made great progress since the establishment of this Commission in 1935. Two years ago at this time Commissions existed only in New Jersey and Colorado, 2,000 miles apart. Today twenty-seven states have Commissions, and it is confidently expected that at least ten additional state legislatures will form Commissions during their present sessions. There are also two regional commissions including a total of eleven states, the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin, comprising four, and that on the Ohio Basin, nine. The Pennsylvania Commission was instrumental in bringing about the establishment of both of these regional commissions.

The Ohio Basin group, which met recently at Indianapolis, furnishes an example of the significance of one function performed by interstate commissions in the states' efforts to solve their mutual problems.

The Interstate Commission on the Ohio River Basin is composed of twenty-seven representatives from the nine commissions on Interstate Cooperation in the basin—Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, West Virginia, Virginia, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee and Illinois. It was organized not to tackle emergency flood relief nor temporary rehabilitation, but to effect a long-range legislative and planning program of flood prevention. The Ohio Basin Commission is similar in structure to our Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin whose work is described in detail in this report. This Commission has considered not only flood control problems in the area, but also related questions such as water supply, pollution, navigation, soil and wildlife conservation, recreation and reforestation.

The Pennsylvania Commission, functioning through the Delaware Basin Commission, in addition to carrying on work in the field of interstate relations has made an enviable record by working out a solution for problems requiring mutual cooperation between the states and agencies of the Federal Government. Of particular interest is the part played by the National Resources Committee in the work of the Delaware Basin Commission. Not only were the conferences setting up this regional commission attended by representatives of the National Resources Committee, the United States Army Corps of Engineers, the Public Health Service and the United States Department of Agriculture, but also the staff and offices of this Commission are maintained jointly by the Commission and the National Resources Committee. So important is the work of the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin that it was cited in one of the recent reports of the National Resources Committee to the President which was later transmitted by him to Congress.

The continued support of this important federal agency has been assured. A recent announcement of Mr. Charles W. Eliot, Executive Officer of the Committee, of which Hon. Harold L. Ickes is Chairman, stated: "The Advisory Committee of the National Resources Committee is, as you know, anxious to cooperate to the utmost of our ability with the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin. We have arranged to have some of our leading consultants on planning and water problems available for special calls or requests from your organization."

Another concrete example of state-federal cooperation is the work of the Interstate Commission on Crime. Some time ago your Chairman, in an article entitled "Gang Up on Crime" appearing in a national magazine, wrote: "Interstate Cooperation in the prevention of crime and in the apprehension of criminals is one of the most serious problems confronting law of enforcement agencies of our country today. Due to the facilities of transportation by land, water and air in this modern age, almost every premeditated crime involves a pursuit outside of the state where the crime was committed, and necessitates the cooperation of authorities in other states.

"In order to protect ourselves and our neighbors in the wave of crime that is sweeping America, it is most essential that laws be enacted and practices be initiated in all our states so that criminals may be brought to justice in the shortest possible time and at a minimum of expense through a simplified procedure, regardless of where the criminal may be found."

The Interstate Commission on Crime, on which a member of your Commission serves, has been working on this problem and, as a result, legislation controlling the commuting criminal was adopted by the nine legislatures which met in regular session last year. In its activities the Crime Commission has worked jointly with the United States Department of Justice, the Federal Bureau of Prisons and the Attorney General's Division of Crime Prevention. Hon. Justin Miller, Special Assistant Attorney General in charge of Crime Prevention Activities, is a member of the Interstate Commission on Crime.

One of your members has also served on the Interstate Commission on Social Security. This Commission has held joint meetings with representatives of the Social Security Board and is actively participating in the solution of many of the interstate problems facing the Social Security Board. Another member of the Commission is serving on the Interstate Commission on Conflicting Taxation which for some time has carried on studies and negotiations for the purpose of simplifying and harmonizing federal, state and local tax systems.

The following list of subjects has been handled by the Commissions on Interstate Cooperation in this region: crime, Delaware River Basin and water resources, highway safety and motor vehicle regulation, parks, social security, conservation, transient relief and settlement laws, milk control and agriculture, labor compacts, tax compacts, liquor control, banking, real estate reorganization and securities, and insurance.

The measures recommended by the Interstate Commission on Crime will no doubt be passed in a majority of the forty-two legislatures now in session as a result of the work of the Commissions on Interstate Cooperation. Steps looking to highway safety have been recommended to many states in the area as the result of regional highway conferences held during 1936 and 1937, and several uniform acts have been presented in an effort to solve problems in the fields of liquor control, conservation, transient relief and banking.

Intangible though it may be, one of the main accomplishments of the Commission has been the promotion of better relations between governmental officials as well as between the legislatures and administrative departments of the state through the interchange of mutual experiences at regional conferences.

A chronological record of the work of the Commission will be found on the following pages, together with a resume of its undertakings on each field of cooperation. A Summary of minutes of the Organization Meeting of the Commission on Interstate Cooperation will be found in the Appendix.

The Chairman takes this opportunity to express his appreciation to Hubert R. Gallagher, Regional Representative of the Council of State Governments, for his assistance in the preparation of this report.

Thorough and thoughtful analysis of problems of interstate adjustment was the keynote of this first regional meeting of Commissioners on Interstate Cooperation.

Because of the illness of Chairman Margiotti, the report of your Commission was given by Deputy Attorney-General Adrian Bonnelly. His reports follows:

Report of the Pennsylvania Commission on Interstate Cooperation

"Mr. Chairman and conferees, we have the following members of the Pennsylvania Commission here: Mr. Logue, Secretary of Internal Affairs; Mr. Turner, member of the House of Representatives; Senator Woodward and Dr. Scheehle, Secretary of Welfare.

"I can report, only so far as the Attorney-General's office is concerned, that we feel that the resolution authorizing the appointment of the Commission on Interstate Cooperation did not give the Commission any power to enter into compacts or to perform any duty other than to report to the Governor and to the Legislature at the close of the regular session the ways and means by which Pennsylvania might join with other states in coming to some definite conclusion on an interstate compact.

"However, the Commission which was appointed, while it has not yet met for its official duties as a body, will organize very soon. The Attorney-General, as its Chairman, will see to it that within the next week or ten days the meeting is called in Harrisburg for the purpose of organizing this Commission.

"The only work which the Commission will have to do is to draft legislation to be presented at the next regular session. My belief is, if we call a special session of the Legislature in January and it is probable that we will, that the Governor will recommend in his message and proclamation just this particular kind of legislation.

"We are also very much interested in settlement laws. In Pennsylvania, we have a very unsavory situation in the sense that our settlement law is administered by the local poor districts. It is not a state function. As counsel to the Department of Welfare, that question comes before me many, many times every day. When we have requests from other states to assist them in taking back indigents who belong to our state, we communicate with the County Commissions and ask them whether they would not consent to take back an indigent from New York, New Jersey or Ohio. We have had a case where an unfortunate child finds himself in Ohio and the County Commission or the County Poor Board refuses to take him back, although I, as the Law Officer of the Commonwealth, feel that the child should be brought back to Pennsylvania. We hope during the next Legislature to establish a comprehensive system whereby all of that particular law and the administration of that law will be put in the hands of the Secretary of Welfare for the whole state, where it rightfully belongs. It is of such moment that we ought to parallel the laws of other states.

"I assure these Commissions on Interstate Cooperation, and I speak particularly for the Attorney-General, that we in Pennsylvania are in hearty accord with the work you have done. We hope that the New York Committee will visit us in Harrisburg very soon, as I understand they are planning to do, thereby arranging ways and means of organizing our own Commission.

"As far as my department is concerned, we are willing to cooperate in every way possible as soon as the Legislature convenes in January."

Secretary Logue's Remarks

"There is little I can add to what the Deputy Attorney-General of our state has said. I think he and other members from Pennsylvania have perhaps formed the same opinion that I have here today, and that is that we should follow very carefully the example laid down by the State of New Jersey in allocating the various items of work to subcommittees of the entire Commission. Instead of thrusting the whole problem on the entire Commission, or, as oftentimes happens, on one or two members of the Commission, better work can be done through subcommittees. We in Pennsylvania, at the last session of the Legislature, adopted this resolution: 'Be it resolved that there is hereby established a Joint Legislative Commission on Interstate Cooperation whose function it shall be to perfect the participation of this state in the Council of State Governments for the purpose of establishing and maintaining governmental machinery to facilitate communication, negotiation, understanding and cooperation between the State of Pennsylvania and the other states of the Union, both regional and national,' etc.

"In pursuance of that resolution five members of our State Senate, five members of our House of Representatives and five executive officers of the Commonwealth, four members of the Governor's Cabinet and myself, an elected state official, were named. We have not organized, and from our conversations with our very able and distinguished Attorney-General, I know that he has awaited just the opportunity that presents itself here today, that we might come to learn and discover what the purposes are and the ways and means that can best be adopted to bring these purposes to fulfillment.

"Mr. Bonnelly probably stated earlier that the Attorney-General would have been here today, only he was suddenly stricken ill at a Pardon Board hearing on Thursday; hence, his presence here is impossible. I feel that by a cooperative spirit among our Commissions on Interstate Cooperation as evidenced here today and which I know we in Pennsylvania are ready to carry on, not only may greater economy be worked out, but greater results attained.

"Just as one member of our Pennsylvania Commission, I say that we are prepared to work out the problems that will present themselves, not only the five or six enumerated in Judge Hartshorne's program this afternoon, but other problems that must needs arise and do, if I may speak for Pennsylvania, I say that we are happy to cooperate, that we have taken our lesson here today and that we are ready to work with you one hundred per cent."

Following these reports, it was moved, seconded and carried that a telegram be sent to Attorney-General Margiotti expressing to him the regret of the conferees that he was unable to participate in this meeting, and their hope for his speedy recovery.

National Conferences of Commissions on Interstate Cooperation

Second General Assembly of the Council of State Governments

The Pennsylvania Commission on Interstate Cooperation was represented at the Second General Assembly of the Council of State Governments. This meeting was held in Chicago, Illinois, on April 17-18, 1936, and was attended by members of Commissions and Committees on Interstate Cooperation from twenty-eight states. At that time the Commissions on Interstate Cooperation met jointly with members of the National Resources Committee, of whom the following were present: Hon. Frederick A. Delano, Chairman; Hon. Henry S. Dennison, Hon. Charles E. Merriam, and Hon. Beardsley Ruml. Louis A. Brownlow, Chairman of the President's Committee on Administrative Reorganization also participated in the sessions. In addition, Governors, Attorneys-General, Secretaries of State and members of State Planning Boards were present. Senator George Woodward and Hon. Ellwood J. Turner represented the Pennsylvania Commission on Interstate Cooperation.

Third General Assembly of the Council of State Governments

The Third General Assembly of the Council of State Governments was held at the Hotel Mayflower in Washington, D. C., January 21-24, 1937. Two hundred and fifty delegates from forty-six states participated in the sessions. The Pennsylvania delegation was headed by His Excellency, Governor George H. Earle who, during the course of the General Assembly, not only gave the principal address at the concluding session, but also spoke over two nation-wide radio hookups on subjects of interest to the Third General Assembly. Hon. Roy E. Furman, Speaker of the House, presided at the Thursday luncheon session. The names of the Pennsylvania delegation follow:

Governor George H. Earle.
Hon. Roy E. Furman, Speaker of the House of Representatives.
Hon. Thomas A. Logue, Secretary of Internal Affairs.
Hon. Herbert B. Cohen.
Hon. George A. Rupp.
Hon. Jacob M. Flinchbaugh.
Hon. Cliff S. Patterson.
Hon. Ellwood J. Turner.
Mr. William P. Gallagher, Chief Clerk, House of Representatives.
Mr. S. Edward Moore, Parliamentarian, House of Representatives.
Hon. Adrian Bonnelly, Deputy Attorney General.
Mr. W. L. Stevenson, Director of Sanitation, State Department of Health.
Mr. Issac S. Walker, Associate Consultant, National Resources Committee

One of the highlights of the Conference was the report of the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin which was presented by its Chairman, Hon. Thomas A. Logue, Secretary of Internal Affairs.

Participation of Federal Officials

The outstanding feature of the Assembly was the wholehearted cooperation which was extended by federal officials. An address prepared by President Franklin D. Roosevelt was read at the Friday dinner. Vice-President John N. Garner officially convened the Assembly and such important cabinet officers as Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace and Attorney-General Homer S. Cummings presented papers at its sessions. Other important federal officials who participated were Hon. Frederick A. Delano and Hon. Charles W. Eliot II of the National Resources Committee, Hon. Robert L. Doughton, Chairman of the Tax Revision Council and Chairman of the House of Representatives Committee on Ways and Means; Hon. John G. Winant, Chairman of the Social Security Board, and Hon. Louis A. Brownlow, Chairman of the President's Committee on Administrative Reorganization.

Commission Reports

The delegates devoted a greater part of their time to a consideration of the specialized reports of their various Commissions, such as those on Crime, Social Security, Conflicting Taxation and the Delaware River Basin. Many of the recommendations contained in these reports will be found in separate sections of this report. (For instance, copies of the four model crime bills recommended by the Third General Assembly will be found in the section on crime and the Uniform Transfer of Dependents Act in the section on transients and settlement laws.)

Sectional Reports of Activities of the Pennsylvania Commission on Interstate Cooperation

Crime

The Work of the Interstate Commission on Crime

Your Commission was represented at the Interstate Crime Conference, held at Trenton, New Jersey, October 11 and 12, 1936. This conference was organized by the New Jersey Commission on Interstate Cooperation. There were in attendance from Pennsylvania:

Representative J. M. Flinchbaugh.
Representative Joseph A. Simon.
Hon. F. Clair Ross, Deputy Attorney General.
Dr. J. Evans Scheehle, Secretary of Welfare.
Major Lynn G. Adams, Superintendent, State Police.
Professor R. Keedy, University of Pennsylvania Law School.
Professor William E. Mikell, University of Pennsylvania Law School.
Professor Thorsten Sellin, University of Pennsylvania.

A resolution seeking the creation of an Interstate Commission on Crime to continue the work of the Trenton conference was approved. This resolution provided for the establishment of the Interstate Commission on Crime with one delegate from each of the forty-eight states to act as a continuing interstate agency on crime. Hon. Thomas A. Logue is the Pennsylvania member of the Interstate Commission.

The Interstate Commission on Crime met November 30, December 1 and 2, 1935, at the Bar Association of New York for the purpose of drafting legislation covering the principles embodied in the resolutions adopted at the Trenton conference. A panel of legal consultants from twenty-six of the leading law schools of the country assisted in the work of drafting reciprocal legislation and interstate compacts for the control of crime. Deputy Attorney-General Edward Friedman represented Pennsylvania at this meeting.

The Second Annual Meeting of this Interstate Commission on Crime met at the State House in Boston, Massachusetts, August 21 and 22, 1936. Your Commission was not formally represented, but Arthur Phillips, Psychologist, Pennsylvania Industrial School, and David W. Robinson, Secretary of the Interstate Commission on the Delaware Basin, were present from Pennsylvania.

Crime Control Legislation

The following topics were considered in preparing the Commission's legislative program: out-of-state parolee supervision, extradition and removal of witnesses, enlarging court jurisdiction to cover boundary-line cases, establishment of bureaus of investigation, fingerprinting of motor vehicle owners and operators, the control of firearms, crime prevention in the schools, and the abolition of the third degree.

After considerable discussion the following drafts of legislation were revised by the Interstate Commission on Crime and recommended to the legislatures for adoption during their 1937 sessions. These bills have been introduced in Pennsylvania as part of the program of the Commission.

An Act to Make Uniform the Law on Fresh Pursuit and Authorizing This State to Cooperate with Other States Therein.

Drafted and recommended by the Interstate Commission on Crime Be it enacted, etc. (Use the proper enacting clause for the state.)

Section 1

Any member of a duly organized state, county or municipal peace unit of another state of the United States who enters this state in fresh pursuit, and continues within this state in such fresh pursuit, of a person in order to arrest him on the ground that he is believed to have committed a felony in such other state, shall have the same authority to arrest and hold such person in custody, as has any member of any duly organized state, county or municipal peace unit of this state, to arrest and hold in custody a person on the ground that he is believed to have committed a felony in this state.

Section 2

If an arrest is made in this state by an officer of another state in accordance with the provisions of Section 1 of this act he shall without unnecessary delay take the person arrested before a magistrate of the county in which the arrest was made, who shall conduct a hearing for the purpose of determining the lawfulness of the arrest. If the magistrate determines that the arrest was lawful he shall commit the person arrested to await for a reasonable time the issuance of an extradition warrant by the Governor of this state. If the magistrate determines that the arrest was unlawful he shall discharge the person arrested.

Section 3

Section 1 of this act shall not be construed so as to make unlawful any arrest in this state which would otherwise be lawful.

Section 4

For the purpose of this act the word "State" shall include the District of Columbia.

Section 5

The term "fresh pursuit" as used in this act shall include fresh pursuit as defined by the common law, and also the pursuit of a person who has committed a felony or who is reasonably suspected of having committed a felony. It shall also include the pursuit of a person suspected of having committed a supposed felony, though no felony has actually been committed, if there is reasonable ground for believing that a felony has been committed. Fresh pursuit as used herein shall not necessarily imply instant pursuit, but pursuit without unreasonable delay.

Section 6

Upon the passage and approval by the Governor of this act it shall be the duty of the Secretary of State (or other officer) to certify a copy of this act to the Executive Department of each of the states of the United States.

Section 7

If any part of this act is for any reason declared void, it is declared to be the intent of this act that such invalidity shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this act.

Section 8

This act may be cited as the Uniform Act on Fresh Pursuit.

Section 9

This act shall take effect immediately.

An Act Providing That the State of ————May Enter Into a Compact With Any of the United States for Mutual Helpfulness in Relation to Persons Convicted of Crime or Offenses Who May Be on Probation or Parole

Drafted and recommended by the Interstate Commission on Crime Be it enacted, etc. (Use the proper enacting clause for the state.)

Section 1

The Governor of this state is hereby authorized and directed to execute a compact on behalf of the State of ———— with any of the United States legally joining therein in the form substantially as follows:

A Compact

Entered into by and among the contracting states, signatories hereto, with the consent of the Congress of the United States of America, granted by an Act entitled "An Act Granting the Consent of Congress to any two or more States to enter into Agreements or Compacts for Cooperative Effort and Mutual Assistance in the Prevention of Crime and for other purposes."

The contracting states solemnly agree:

(1) That it shall be competent for the duly constituted judicial and administrative authorities of a state party to this compact (herein called "sending state") to permit any person convicted of an offense within such state and placed on probation or released on parole to reside in any other state party to this compact (herein called "receiving state"), while on probation or parole, if

(a) Such person is in fact a resident of or has his family residing within the receiving state and can obtain employment there;

(b) Though not a resident of the receiving state and not having his family residing there, the receiving state consents to such person being sent there.

Before granting such permission, opportunity shall be granted to the receiving state to investigate the home and prospective employment of such person.

A resident of the receiving state, within the meaning of this section, is one who has been an actual inhabitant of such state continuously for more than one year prior to his coming to the sending state and has not resided within the sending state more than six continuous months immediately preceding the commission of the offense for which he has been convicted.

(2) That each receiving state will assume the duties of visitation of and supervision over probationers or parolees of any sending state and in the exercise of those duties will be governed by the same standards that prevail for its own probationers and parolees.

(3) That duly accredited officers of a sending state may at all times enter a receiving state and there apprehend and retake any person on probation or parole. For that purpose no formalities will be required other than establishing the authority of the officer and the identity of the person to be retaken. All legal requirements to obtain extradition of fugitives from justice are hereby expressly waived on the part of states party hereto, as to such persons. The decision of the sending state to retake a person on probation or parole shall be conclusive upon and not reviewable within the receiving state: Provided, however, that if at the time when a state seeks to retake a probationer or parolee there should be pending against him within the receiving state any criminal charge, or he should be suspected of having committed within such state a criminal offense, he shall not be retaken without the consent of the receiving state until discharged from prosecution or from imprisonment for such offense.

(4) That the duly accredited officers of the sending state will be permitted to transport prisoners being retaken through any and all states parties to this compact, without inerference.

(5) That the Governor of each state may designate an officer who, acting jointly with like officers of other contracting states, if and when appointed, shall promulgate such rules and regulations as may be deemed necessary to more effectively carry out the terms of this compact.

(6) That this compact shall become operative immediately upon its execution by any state as between it and any other state or states so executing. When executed, it shall have the full force and effect of law within such state, the form of execution to be in accordance with the laws of the executing state.

(7) That this compact shall continue in force and remain binding upon each executing state until renounced by it. The duties and obligations hereunder of a renouncing state shall continue as to parolees or probationers residing therein at the time of withdrawal until retaken or finally discharged by the sending state. Renunciations of this compact shall be by the same authority which executed it, by sending six months' notice in writing of its intention to withdraw from the compact to the other states party hereto.

Section 2

If any section, sentence, sub-division or clause of this act is for any reason held invalid or to be unconstitutional, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this act.

Section 3

Whereas an emergency exists for the immediate taking effect of this act, the same shall become effective immediately upon its passage.

Section 4

This act may be cited as the Uniform Act for Out-of-State Parolee Supervision.

An Act to Make Uniform the Procedure on Interstate Extradition

Drafted and recommended by the Interstate Commission on Crime and the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws.

Be it enacted, etc. (Use the proper enacting clause for the state.)

Section 1

Definitions. Where appearing in this act, the term "Governor" includes any person performing the functions of Governor by authority of the law of this state. The term "Executive Authority" includes the governor, and any person performing the functions of governor in a state other than this state. The term "State," referring to a state other than this state, includes any other state or territory, organized or unorganized, of the United States of America.

Section 2

Fugitives From Justice; Duty of Governor. Subject to the provisions of this act, the provisions of the Constitution of the United States controlling, and any and all acts of Congress enacted in pursuance thereof, it is the duty of the Governor of this state to have arrested and delivered up to the executive authority of any other state of the United States any person charged in that state with treason, felony or other crime, who has fled from justice and is found in this state.

Section 3

Form of Demand. No demand for the extradition of a person charged with crime in another state shall be recognized by the Governor unless in writing alleging, except in cases arising under Section 6, that the accused was present in the demanding state at the time of the commission of the alleged crime, and that thereafter he fled from the state, and accompanied by a copy of an indictment found or by information supported by affidavit in the state having jurisdiction of the crime, or by a copy of an affidavit made before a magistrate there, together with a copy of any warrant which was issued thereupon; or by a copy of a judgment of conviction or of a sentence imposed in execution thereof, together with a statement by the Executive Authority of the demanding state that the person claimed has escaped from confinement or has broken the terms of his bail, probation or parole. The indictment, information, or affidavit made before the magistrate must substantially charge the person demanded with having committed a crime under the law of that state; and the copy of indictment, information, affidavit, judgment of conviction or sentence must be authenticated by the Executive Authority making the demand.

Section 4

Governor May Investigate Case. When a demand shall be made upon the Governor of this state by the Executive Authority of another state for the surrender of a person so charged with crime, the Governor may call upon the Attorney General or any prosecuting officer in this state to investigate or assist in investigating the demand, and to report to him the situation and circumstances of the person so demanded, and whether he ought to be surrendered.

Section 5

Extradition of Persons Imprisoned or Awaiting Trial in Another State or Who Have Left the Demanding State Under Compulsion. When it is desired to have returned to this state a person charged in his state with a crime, and such person is imprisoned or is held under criminal proceedings then pending against him in another state, the Governor of this state may agree with the Executive Authority of such other state for the extradition of such person before the conclusion of such proceedings or his term of sentence in such other state, upon condition that such person be returned to such other state at the expense of his state as soon as the prosecution in this state is terminated.

The Governor of this state may also surrender on demand of the Executive Authority of any other state any person in this state who is charged in the manner provided in Section 23 of this act with having violated the laws of the state whose Executive Authority is making the demand, even though such person left the demanding state involuntarily.

Section 6

Extradition of Persons Not Present in Demanding State at Time of Commission of Crime. The Governor of this state may also surrender, on demand of the Executive Authority of any other state, any person in this state charged in such other state in the manner provided in Section 3 with committing an act in this state, or in a third state, intentionally resulting in a crime in the state whose Executive Authority is making the demand, and the provisions of this act not otherwise inconsistent, shall apply to such cases, even though the accused was not in that state at the time of the commission of the crime, and has not fled therefrom.

Section 7

Issue of Governor's Warrant of Arrest; its Recitals. If the Governor decides that the demand should be complied with, he shall sign a warrant of arrest, which shall be sealed with the state seal, and be directed to any peace officer or other person whom he may think fit to entrust with the execution thereof. The warrant must substantially recite the facts necessary to the validity of its issuance.

Section 8

Manner and Place of Execution. Such warrant shall authorize the peace officer or other person to whom directed to arrest the accused at any time and any place where he may be found within the state and to command the aid of all peace officers or other persons in the execution of the warrant, and to deliver the accused, subject to the provisions of this act to the duly authorized agent of the demanding state.

Section 9

Authority of Arresting Officer. Every such peace officer or other person empowered to make the arrest, shall have the same authority, in arresting the accused, to command assistance therein, as peace officers have by law in the execution of any criminal process directed to them, with like penalties against those who refuse their assistance.

Section 10

Rights of Accused Person; Application for Writ of Habeas Corpus. No person arrested upon such warrant shall be delivered over to the agent whom the Executive Authority demanding him shall have appointed to receive him unless he shall first be taken forthwith before a judge of a court of record in this state, who shall inform him of the demand made for his surrender and of the crime with which he is charged, and that he has the right to demand and procure legal counsel; and if the prisoner or his counsel shall state that he or they desire to test the legality of his arrest, the judge of such court of record shall fix a reasonable time to be allowed him within which to apply for a writ of habeas corpus. When such writ is applied for, notice thereof, and of the time and place of hearing thereon, shall be given to the prosecuting officer of the county in which the arrest is made and in which the accused is in custody, and to the said agent of the demanding state.

Section 11

Penalty for Non-Compliance With Preceding Section. Any officer who shall deliver to the agent for extradition of the demanding state a person in his custody under the Governor's warrant, in wilful disobedience to the last section, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and, on conviction, shall be fined (not more than $1,000.00 or be imprisoned not more than six months, or both).

Section 12

Confinement in Jail When Necessary. The officer or persons executing the governor's warrant of arrest, or the agent of the demanding state to whom the prisoner may have been delivered, may, when necessary, confine the prisoner in the jail of any county or city through which he may pass; and the keeper of such jail must receive and safely keep the prisoner until the officer or person having charge of him is ready to proceed on his route, such officer or person being chargeable with the expense of keeping.

The officer or agent of a demanding state to whom a prisoner may have been delivered following extradition proceedings in another state, or to whom a prisoner may have been delivered after waiving extradition in such other state, and who is passing through this state with such a prisoner for the purpose of immediately returning such prisoner to the demanding state may, when necessary, confine the prisoner in the jail of any county or city which he may pass; and the keeper of such jail must receive and safely keep the prisoner until the officer or agent having charge of him is ready to proceed on his route, such officer or agent, however, being chargeable with the expense of keeping; provided, however, that such officer or agent shall produce and show to the keeper of such jail satisfactory written evidence of the fact that he is actually transporting such prisoner to the demanding state after a requisition by the Executive authority of such demanding state. Such prisoner shall not be entitled to demand a new requisition while in this state.

Section 13

Arrest Prior to Requisition. Whenever any person within this state shall be charged on the oath of any credible person before any judge or magistrate of this state with the commission of any crime in any other state and, except in cases arising under Section 6 with having fled from justice, or with having been convicted of a crime in that state and having escaped from confinement, or having broken the terms of his bail, probation or parole, or whenever complaint shall have been made before any judge or magistrate in this state setting forth on the affidavit of any credible person in another state that a crime has been committed in such other state and that the accused has been charged in such state with the commission of the crime, and, except in cases arising under Section 6, has fled from justice, or with having been convicted of a crime in that state and having escaped from confinement, or having broken the terms of his bail, probation or parole, and is believed to be in this state, the judge or magistrate shall issue a warrant directed to any peace officer commanding him to apprehend the person named therein, wherever he may be found in this state, and to bring him before the same or any other judge, magistrate or court who or which may be available in or convenient of access to the place where the arrest may be made, to answer the charge or complaint and affidavit, and a certified copy of the sworn charge or complaint and affidavit upon which the warrant is issued shall be attached to the warrant.

Section 14

Arrest Without a Warrant. The arrest of a person may be lawfully made also by any peace officer or a private person, without a warrant upon reasonable information that the accused stands charged in the courts of a state with a crime punishable by death or imprisonment for a term exceeding one year, but when so arrested the accused must be taken before a judge or magistrate with all practicable speed and complaint must be made against him under oath setting forth the ground for the arrest as in the preceding section; and thereafter his answer shall be heard as if he had been arrested on a warrant.

Section 15

Commitment to Await Requisitions; Bail. If from the examination before the judge or magistrate it appears that the person held is the person charged with having committed the crime alleged and, except in cases arising under Section 6, that he has fled from justice, the judge or magistrate must, by a warrant reciting the accusation, commit him to the county jail for such a time, not exceeding thirty days and specified in the warrant, as will enable the arrest of the accused to be made under a warrant of the Governor on a requisition of the Executive Authority of the state having jurisdiction of the offense, unless the accused give bail as provided in the next section, or until he shall be legally discharged.

Section 16

Bail: in What Cases: Conditions of Bond. Unless the offense with which the prisoner is charged is shown to be an offense punishable by death or life imprisonment under the laws of the state in which it was committed, a judge or magistrate in this state may admit the person arrested to bail by bond, with sufficient sureties, and in such sum as he deems proper, conditioned for his appearance before him at a time specified in such bond, and for his surrender, to be arrested upon the warrant of the Governor of this state.

Section 17

Extension of Time of Commitment, Adjournment. If the accused is not arrested under warrant of the governor by the expiration of the time specified in the warrant or bond, a judge or magistrate may discharge him or may recommit him for a further period not to exceed sixty days, or a judge or magistrate judge may again take bail for his appearance and surrender, as provided in Section 16, but within a period not to exceed sixty days after the date of such new bond.

Section 18

Forfeiture of Bail. If the prisoner is admitted to bail, and fails to appear and surrender himself according to the conditions of his bond, the judge, or magistrate by proper order, shall declare the bond forfeited and order his immediate arrest without warrant if he be within this state. Recovery may be had on such bond in the name of the state as in the case of other bonds given by the accused in criminal proceedings within this state.

Section 19

Persons Under Criminal Prosecution in This State at Time of Requisition. If a criminal prosecution has been instituted against such person under the laws of this state and is still pending, the Governor, in his discretion, either may surrender him on demand of the executive authority of another state or hold him until he has been tried and discharged or convicted and punished in this state.

Section 20

Guilt or Innocence of Accused, When Inquired Into. The guilt or innocence of the accused as to the crime of which he is charged may not be inquired into by the Governor, or in any proceeding after the demand for extradition accompanied by a charge of crime in legal form as above provided shall have been presented to the Governor, except as it may be involved in identifying the person held as the person charged with the crime.

Section 21

Governor May Recall Warrant or Issue Alias. The Governor may recall his warrant of arrest or may issue another warrant whenever he deems proper.

Section 22

Fugitives From This State; Duty of Governors. Whenever the Governor of this state shall demand a person charged with crime or with escaping from confinement or breaking the terms of his bail, probation or parole in this state, from the Executive Authority of any other state, or from the chief justice or an associate justice of Supreme Court of the District of Columbia authorized to receive such demand under the laws of the United States, he shall issue a warrant under the seal of this state, to some agent, commanding him to receive the person so charged if delivered to him and convey him to the proper officer of the county in this state in which the offense was committed.

Section 23

Application for Issuance of Requisition; by Whom Made; Contents

1. When the return to this state of a person charged with crime in this state is required, the prosecuting attorney shall present to the governor his written application for a requisition for the return of the person charged, in which application shall be stated the name of the person, so charged, the crime charged against him, the approximate time, place and circumstances of its commission, the state in which he is believed to be, including the location of the accused therein, at the time the application is made and certifying that, in the opinion of the said prosecuting attorney the ends of justice require the arrest and return of the accused to this state for trial and that the proceeding is not instituted to enforce a private claim.

II. When the return to this state is required of a person who has been convicted of a crime in this state and has escaped from confinement or broken the terms of his bail, probation or parole, the prosecuting attorney of the county in which the offense was committed, the parole board, or the warden of the institution or sheriff of the county, from which escape was made, shall present to the governor a written application for a requisition for the return of such person, in which application shall be stated the name of the person, the crime of which he was convicted, the circumstances of his escape from confinement or of the breach of the terms of his bail, probation or parole, the state in which he is believed to be, including the location of the person therein at the time application is made.

III. The application shall be verified by affidavit, shall be executed in duplicate and shall be accompanied by two certified copies of the indictment returned, or information and affidavit filed, or of the complaint made to the judge or magistrate, stating the offense with which the accused is charged, or of the judgment of conviction or of the sentence. The prosecuting officer, parole board, warden or sheriff may also attach such further affidavits and other documents in duplicate as he shall deem proper to be submitted with such application. One copy of the application, with the action of the Governor indicated by endorsement thereon, and one of the certified copies of the indictment, complaint, information, and affidavits, or of the judgment of conviction or of the sentence shall be filed in the office of (the secretary of state) to remain of record in that office. The other copies of all papers shall be forwarded with the Governor's requisition.

Section 24

Cost and Expenses. (When the punishment of the crime shall be the confinement of the criminal in the penitentiary, the expenses shall be paid out of the state treasury, on the certificate of the Governor and warrant of the Auditor; and in all other cases they shall be paid out of the county treasury in the county wherein the crime is alleged to have been committed. The expenses shall be the fees paid to the officers of the state on whose Governor the requisition is made, and not exceeding.....cents a mile for all necessary travel in returning such prisoner.)

Note: The provisions in this regard will so vary with the different states that same must be drafted separately in each state.

Section 25

Immunity from Service of Process in Certain Civil Actions. A person brought into this state by, or after waiver of, extradition based on a criminal charge shall not be subject to service of personal process in civil actions arising out of the same facts as the criminal proceedings to answer which he is being or has been returned, until he has been convicted in the criminal proceeding, or, if acquitted, until he has had reasonable opportunity to return to the state from which he was extradited.

Section 25a

Written Waiver of Extradition Proceedings. Any person arrested in this state charged with having committed any crime in another state or alleged to have escaped from confinement, or broken the terms of his bail, probation or parole may waive the issuance and service of the warrant provided for in sections 7 and 8 and all other procedure incidental to extradition proceedings, by executing or subscribing in the presence of a judge of any court of record within this state a writing which states that he consents to return to the demanding state; provided, however, that before such waiver shall be executed or subscribed by such person it shall be the duty of such judge to inform such person of his rights to the issuance and service of a warrant of extradition and to obtain a writ of habeas corpus as provided for in section 10.

If and when such consent has been duly executed it shall forthwith be forwarded to the office of the Governor of this state and filed therein. The judge shall direct the officer having such person in custody to deliver forthwith such person to the duly accredited agent or agents of the demanding state, and shall deliver or cause to be delivered to such agent or agents a copy of such consent; provided, however, that nothing in this Section shall be deemed to limit the rights of the accused person to return voluntarily and without formality to the demanding state, nor shall this waiver procedure be deemed to be an exclusive procedure or to limit the powers, rights or duties of the officers of the demanding state or of this state.

Section 25b

Non-Waiver by This State. Nothing in this act contained shall be deemed to constitute a waiver by this state of its right, power or privilege to try such demanded person for crime committed within this state, or of its right, power or privilege to regain custody of such person by extradition proceedings or otherwise for the purpose of trial, sentence or punishment for any crime committed within this state, nor shall any proceedings had under this act which result in, or fail to result in, extradition be deemed a waiver by this state of any of its rights, privileges or jurisdiction in any way whatsoever.

Section 26

No Right of Asylum. No Immunity from Other Criminal Prosecutions While in This State. After a person has been brought back to this state by, or after waiver of extradition proceedings, he may be tried in this state for other crimes which he may be charged with having committed here as well as that specified in the requisition for his extradition.

Uniform Act to Secure the Attendance of Witnesses from Without a State in Criminal Proceedings

Drafted and recommended by the Interstate Commissions on Crime and the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws

Be it enacted, etc. (Use the proper enacting clause for the state.)

Section 1

"Witness"—as used in this act shall include a person whose testimony is desired in any proceeding or investigation by a Grand Jury or in a Criminal Action, Prosecution or Proceeding.

The word "State" shall include any Territory of the United States and District of Columbia.

The word summons shall include a subpoena, order or other notice requiring the appearance of a witness.

Section 2

Summoning Witness in this State to Testify in Another State. If a judge of a court of record in any state which by its laws has made provision for commanding persons within that state to attend and testify in this state certifies under the seal of such court that there is a criminal prosecution pending in such court, or that a grand jury investigation has commenced or is about to commence, that a person being within this state is a material witness in such prosecution, or grand jury investigation, and that his presence will be required for a specified number of days, upon presentation of such certificate to any judge of a court of record in the county in which such person is, such judge shall fix a time and place for a hearing, and shall make an order directing the witness to appear at a time and place certain for the hearing.

If at a hearing the judge determines that the witness is material and necessary, that it will not cause undue hardship to the witness to be compelled to attend and testify in the prosecution or a grand jury investigation in the other state, and that the laws of the state in which the prosecution is pending, or grand jury investigation has commenced or is about to commence [and of any other state through which the witness may be required to pass by ordinary course of travel], will give to him protection from arrest and the service of civil and criminal process, he shall issue a summons, with a copy of the certificate attached, directing the witness to attend and testify in the court where the prosecution is pending, or where a grand jury investigation has commenced or is about to commence at a time and place specified in the summons. In any such hearing the certificate shall be prima facie evidence of all the facts stated therein.

If said certificate recommends that the witness be taken into immediate custody and delivered to an officer of the requesting State to assure his attendance in the requesting State, such judge may, in lieu of notification of the hearing, direct that such witness be forthwith brought before him for said hearing; and the judge at the hearing being satisfied of the desirability of such custody and delivery, for which determination the certificate shall be prima facie proof of such desirability may ,in lieu of issuing subpoena or summons, order that said witness be forthwith taken into custody and delivered to an officer of the requesting State.

If the witness, who is summoned as above provided, after being paid or tendered by some properly authorized person, the sum of ten cents a mile for each mile by the ordinary traveled route to and from the court where the prosecution is pending and five dollars for each day, that he is required to travel and attend as a witness, fails without good cause to attend and testify as directed in the summons, he shall be punished in the manner provided for the punishment of any witness who disobeys a summons issued from a court of record in this state.

Section 3

Witness from Another State Summoned to Testify in This State. If a person in any state, which by its laws has made provision for commanding persons within its borders to attend and testify in criminal prosecutions, or grand jury investigations commenced or about to commence, in this state, is a material witness in a prosecution pending in a court of record in this state, or in a grand jury investigation which has commenced or is about to commence, a judge of such court may issue a certificate under the seal of the court stating these facts and specifying the number of days the witness will be required. Said certificate may include a recommendation that the witness be taken into immediate custody and delivered to an officer of this state to assure his attendance in this state. This certificate shall be presented to a judge of a court of record in the county in which the witness is found.

If the witness is summoned to attend and testify in this state he shall be tendered the sum of ten cents a mile for each mile by the ordinary traveled route to and from the court where the prosecution is pending, and five dollars for each day hat he is required to travel and attend as a witness. A witness who has appeared in accordance with the provisions of the summons shall not be required to remain within this state a longer period of time than the period mentioned in the certificate, unless otherwise ordered by the court. If such witness, after coming into this state, fails without good cause to attend and testify as directed in the summons, he shall be punished in the manner provided for the punishment of any witness who disobeys a summons issued from a court of record in this state.

Section 4

Exemption from Arrest and Service of Process. If a person comes into this state in obedience to a summons directing him to attend and testify in this state he shall not while in this state pursuant to such summons be subject to arrest or the service of process, civil or criminal in connection with matters which arose before his entrance into this state under the summons.

If a person passes through this state while going to another state in obedience to a summons to attend and testify in that state or while returning therefrom, he shall not while so passing through this state be subject to arrest or the service of process, civil or criminal, in connection with matters which arose before his entrance into this state under the summons.

Section 5

Uniformity of Interpretation. This act shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of the states which enact it.

Highway Safety

The Development of a Regional Highway Safety Program The Pennsylvania Commission has participated actively in the field of highway safety. The following pages describe the Regional Highway Safety Cnference which was held at the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York City, January 25 and 26, 1936

The opening session of the Regional Highway Safety Conference was called to order by John A. Byrnes, Chairman of the New York Joint Legislative Committee on Interstate Cooperation and presiding officer of the conference. Charles A. Harnett, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles of New York State, served as vice-chairman, and Henry W. Toll, Executive Director of the Council of State Governments, as secretary. Each of the following states were represented at the conference: Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Vermont.

Commissioners on Interstate Cooperation, as well as legislators, motor vehicle commissioners, and highway officials from the above states attended the conference.

The first day of the conference was given over to an informal round table discussion of the agenda. No effort was made to limit the discussion to the interstate aspects of the highway safety problem, although this phase was emphasized. On the second day of the conference it was apparent that there were certain matters on which the representatives were agreed, and it was decided that the conference should approve a number of the recommendations made during the first day's discussion.

It was pointed out that these recommendations, either in the form of suggested legislation or proposed changes in administrative regulations, could be taken back to each of the states by the representatives present. There was, of course, no compulsion nor effort to bind the representatives to the recommendations coming out of this safety meeting, but it is significant that these recommendations were almost unanimously approved by those in attendance. The dominant note of the conference was the earnest desire on the part of every person to bring about greater uniformity in the highway laws of the states in this region and to promote highway safety at any cost.

Chairman Byrnes in his introductory statement pointed out that this conference was important because legislators and members of the Commissions on Interstate Cooperation were being asked to participate and thus it should be easier to secure legislative consideration for the different safety proposals brought up at the conference. During the course of the conference, Chairman Byrnes also stated that the New York Joint Legislative Committee on Interstate Cooperation and the regional office of the Council of State Governments were prepared to furnish those attending the conference with drafts of the legislation considered at that meeting, copies of the Uniform Motor Vehicle Code, and of the recently enacted Federal Motor Carrier Act.

Throughout the conference representatives availed themselves of the expert advice and assistance of the motor vehicle administrators and highway officials from a number of the states, as well as suggestions from Adrian Bonnelly, representing Attorney-General Margiotti, Chairman of your Commission on Interstate Cooperation, Ellwood J. Turner of the House of Representatives and Israel Kerson of the Motor Vehicle Department.

In the discussion of the problems of highway safety, the Chairman called on legislators, motor vehicle administrators and highway officials from the different states for information and suggestions. Every effort was made to keep the discussion informal. Although the conference was primarily interested in the interstate aspect of the highway safety problem, nevertheless intra-state phases were included in the agenda and were considered as they arose. It was pointed out that the recently enacted Federal Motor Carrier Act should not be overlooked as a solution of certain aspects of the interstate highway safety problem.

The Agenda

Opening Questions: This question to be discussed by each representative present. Time limit two minutes: What one governmental practice is likely to contribute most to making the highway safe?

1. Reciprocal Reporting: Should reciprocal legislation be adopted requiring that all arrests, convictions, and accidents by non-residents be reported to the state of residence of the driver? In what way can be encourage such reciprocal reporting by the states? Are the non-licensed drivers from other states a menace? How can we secure a better analysis of accident reports?

2. Penalty for Illegal Licensing: What penalty should be required of those who secure a license in a state other than their own while under license revocation in their home state?

3. Law Enforcement: How can we bring about more effectual enforcement of present safety laws? Would heavier fines, revocation of permits, or jail sentences be most effective?

Should more severe penalties be adopted for speeding? For driving while intoxicated?

How can we more closely supervise drivers and improve law enforcement on the highway Should we increase the size of our state highway patrol?

4. Uniform Directional Signals: Should legislation be adopted requiring uniform directional signals? Should the control of signaling be by mechanical device? Should uniform hand an arm signals by drivers be required?

5. Brake Performance: Should a uniform specific brake performance test be written into the statutes of each state in place of the present law in most states? (i.e., the relative stopping distances at a given rate of speed should be made a part of the law?)

Should "adequate brakes" be defined by statute?

6. Limiting Speed: Is it desirable to advocate the enactment of laws limiting speed performance on cars sold within our respective states? Through the use of governors? By the control of the horsepower in the engine?

7. Examination of Drivers: Are applicants for drivers' licenses being as thoroughly examined as they should be? Should drivers be required to pass a thorough physical examination? Would the cost be prohibitive?

Should a uniform drivers' license be issued which would have provision on the reverse side for recording court convictions and revocations or suspensions by motor vehicle commissioners?

8. Regional Clearing House for Reports: Would it be possible to establish a regional clearing house for the receipt of reports covering accidents, arrests, and convictions, of non-licensed or non-resident drivers of other states? How?

9. Supervision of Drivers: Are we watching, supervising, and controlling drivers as much as we should after they have been licensed?

10. Compulsory Inspection: Is it desirable for the states to enact laws requiring the compulsory inspection of automobiles? If desirable, should inspection be required twice yearly? More frequently? Should inspection be made by private or public agencies?

11. Compulsory Insurance: Wold the enactment of a compulsory insurance law materially advance the cause of safety Should such a law require compulsory inspection of cars by insurance companies?

12. Accident Prevention in the Schools: Should compulsory instruction in accident prevention be required in the schools of the state?

13. Hours of Service of Chauffeurs: Should the hours of service of chauffeurs (drivers of other than commercial vehicles) be regulated?

14. Passenger Carrying Trucks: Would it be advisable to enact legislation prohibiting motor trucks from carrying passengers, with or without fee, unless the truck is especially equipped for the purpose?

15. Public Records: What records if any, of the Motor Vehicle Commissioner's office should be public records, available to anyone desiring to inspect them?

16. Lighting Equipment: What lighting equipment should each class of motor vehicles be compelled to install?

17. Traffic Commissions: Is it desirable for the states to establish traffic commissions?

The Recommendations

At the close of the conference legislation was proposed which it was believed would result in fewer accidents and easier enforcement of the motor vehicle laws by requiring:

1. Compulsory instruction in safety and accident prevention in the schools.
2. Reciprocal reporting of motor vehicle violations.
3. Compulsory fingerprinting of all motor vehicle drivers.

Drafts of legislation covering the above subjects have served as models for introduction in the legislatures of other states.

Industrial Compacts

The Pennsylvania Commission Participates in the Work of the Interstate Conference on Labor Compacts

The Interstate Conference on Labor Compacts held its first meeting at Boston, Massachusetts, on December 5, 1933, at the invitation of the Massachusetts Commission on Compacts Affecting Labor and Industry and has since met several times with delegates from a varying number of states. At the Concord meeting of the Conference on May 29, 1934, the delegates of New York, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Maine signed a compact for mandatory minimum wage legislation which has since been ratified by Massachusetts and New Hampshire. The Conference is considering two other compacts, the Child Labor Compact and the Compact on Hours of Labor.

The New Jersey Commission on Interstate Cooperation called a meeting of the Interstate Conference on Labor Compacts on June 28 and 29, 1935 at Spring Lake, New Jersey. Dr. J. Evans Scheehle, Secretary of Welfare, represented this state.

The Albany Meeting

The New York State Industrial Compacts Commission called another meeting of the Interstate Conference on Labor Compacts in Albany on October 18 and 19, 1935. Delegates from the twelve states of New York, New Jersey, Colorado, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois were in attendance. Deputy Attorney-General Adrian Bonnelly attended for the Commission and represented General Margiotti at this meeting.

A Federal Problem

The future possibilities for interstate agreement in this field are remote. Probably the best procedure would be to continue the effort to negotiate compacts and then provide for their enforcement by federal authorities.

Milk Control

Representatives of Seven States Attend Hearing on the Milk Control Problem

A joint hearing on milk control was held at the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York City, February 1, 1936. Representatives of consumers, producers, and handlers of milk, as well as public officials representing the Seven Governors' Committee on Interstate Milk Relations, United States Department of Agriculture, State Milk Control Boards, and Commissions on Interstate Cooperation were present and expressed their views at this round table discussion. Members of the Milk Control Boards of Connecticut, Massachuetts, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania were in attendance, as well as Commissions on Interstate Cooperation from New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania. The Milk Control Boards of Vermont and Maryland were invited, but sent no representatives.

The following representatives from Pennsylvania participated in the hearing:

Charles T. Carpenter, Member of the Milk Control Board and of the Seven Governors' Committee.
Hon. Harry Polikoff, Special Deputy Attorney General.

Objectives of the Hearing

It was made clear by the chairman that in calling this hearing there was no intention to substitute other proposals for the carefully evolved "Proposed Order to Govern Interstate Shipments of Milk" prepared by the Seven Governors' Committee on Interstate Milk Relations, in cooperation with the United States Secretary of Agriculture.

The chairman stated the following objectives of the hearing:

1. To determine what the milk control problem is in this region, what proposals have been made for its solution, and what position, if any, should be taken by the Commissions and Committees on Interstate Cooperation in this region on the "Proposed Order to Govern Interstate Shipments of Milk" and similar proposals for controlling milk crossing state lines.

2. To determine whether state legislation should be introduced broadening the powers of the State Milk Control Boards, and whether legislation is needed to implement the "Proposed Order to Govern Interstate Shipments of Milk."

3. To determine whether the Council of State Governments and the various Commissions and Committees on Interstate Cooperation in this region can be of assistance in bringing about a solution to this problem.

Recommendations

It was generally agreed that the Commissions on Interstate Cooperation in the Metropolitan milkshed should cooperate with the Seven Governors' Committee in its attack on the interstate problems of milk control. The conference believed that complete and acceptable control can be accomplished only by uniform or reciprocal action by the states in the region, whether it be by joint approval of the Milk Marketing Agreement of the AAA or by compact between the states involved. It was felt that the Seven Governors' Committee was capably studying the question and that no other study should be attempted at this time. The most effective way in which the Commission on Interstate Cooperation can act is to cooperate in their legislative capacities.

Transients and Settlement Laws

Representatives of Twenty-One States Consider Transient and Relief Problems

Over one hundred representatives from twenty-one states east of the Mississippi River met at the joint call of the Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York Commissions on Interstate Cooperation in the Assembly Chambers, State House, Trenton, New J5ersey, March 6 and 7, 1936, to consider the subjects of transient relief and uniform settlement laws.

The conference was called because of the plight of 275,000 transients who having been deprived of Federal relief since September 1935, have in many cases been denied state public assistance by reason of "strict, arbitrary and motley technicalities of legal settlement."

The present Federal Emergency Relief Administration was spending over $5,000,000 a month for their support until September 1, 1935. Since that date public assistance has been denied them or its procurement made extremely difficult because of interstate and intercommunity jealousies and reprisals. The conference made great strides in working out a solution for the emergency situation and in laying the basis for continuing study of the problem. To carry on this work a Continuing Committee was appointed representing the states present. Attorney-General Margiotti, Chairman of your Commission, and Mr. Karl de Schweintz, State Relief Administrator, were named as the representatives from Pennsylvania.

Resolutions

At the last session of the conference the following resolutions were adopted unanimously by the representatives of the twenty-one states present at the confernce.

Resolution Establishing Continuing Committee

Whereas, Industrial, legal and financial conditions created by the prolonged economic depression have dislodged thousand of men, women, and children from their normal occupations and places of legal settlement and have thrown them, in their extremity, into communities where they are aliens and have no legal right to relief; and

Whereas, The Federal government in the last two years, by its program of relief and work for transients, has demonstrated that it is possible on a national scale to alleviate the condition; and

Whereas, The experience of those two years has further demonstrated that transiency is an interstate problem and that it has its migratory labor and other situations that are beyond the control of the individual states; and

Whereas, The abandonment by the Federal government of the relief program for these persons is returning these unfortunate, unsettled people to chaos and hopelessness, since they and the communities in which they find themselves lack the means to solve their problems; and

Whereas, Most states cannot legally use state funds to relieve unsettled persons, and residual Federal funds in the hands of state agencies are now practically exhausted.

Be It Resolved, That we call upon the government of the United States, through an appropriate permanent branch of the public service and as a part of the public assistance program, to accept immediate responsibility for the relief and employment of transients, and we urge that this relief and employment be made effective through permanent departments of state government and coordinate local units of administration and that funds be made available by the Federal government on a grant-in-aid basis:

Be it further resolved, That this conference recommends that the serveral states be urged to liberalize their laws so as to make possible their cooperation with the Federal government in the financing and administration of relief to transients on the proposed grants-in-aid principle, and be it further resolved that this conference commend Governor David Sholtz and the state of Florida for the pioneering effort made by the Special Florida Committee in developing an experimental plan for a permanent mechanism for dealing with the transient problem in a constructive manner, embodying these general principles of Federal and state participation, of humane treatment for transients and of preventive measures for its administration and control.

We recognize the sovereignty of the states, subject to the powers they are willing to delegate to the Federal government.

We are fully aware of the differences between the states in the manifestations of the Federal relief and transient problems, and the impracticability of this conference attempting to formulate a detailed and specific program of state action.

However, there are certain general principles which should be embodied in state legislation and which, if adopted in the several states as part of their general relief programs, would substantially reduce the volume of transiency. We conceive these principles to include:

(1) A uniform period of residence, preferably brief for acquiring a legal settlement.
(2) A reorganization of the Relief laws to provide care for persons not having local settlement.
(3) Adequate standards of relief for all persons in need, regardless of settlement status.

Be It Further Resolved, That we request that the Federal government, through the Department of Labor, in cooperation with State Departments of Welfare and State Labor Departments, undertake a thorough study of the labor aspects and labor reserves and that plans be based on the findings, to the end that the mangement of those problems in the future may be more intelligently and successfully handled:

And be it further resolved, That the conference authorizes and directs the Continuing Committee to take such action as it may deem desirable to make effective our resolution calling upon the government of the United States to accept immediately responsibility for the relief and employment of transient.

The Continuing Committee is further authorized and directed to communicate with the following individuals and organizations throughout the nation urging them to press the Federal authorities to take such action.

(a) The President of the United States.
(b) The Federal Works Progress Administrator.
(c) State legislatures now in session.
(d) Governors.
(e) State Relief and Welfare Departments.
(f) Chairman of House and Senate Appropriations Committees.
(g) Private agencies particularly interested.

Be it further resolved, That the delegates present at this conference be requestd to take similar action immediately with their Governors and legislatures, and with the delegations from these states in the Congress of the United States.

Resolution Favoring Reciprocal Agreements

Whereas, The resolution already adopted by this conference has pointed out that transiency is a deep-seated, interstate problem, that it is a reflection of the same conditions as give rise to general relief needs and that its treatment requires the cooperation of federal, state and local governments;

Therefore, we wish to affirm the importance of the states taking prompt action in formulating permanent programs for general relief, and for transients; such action, in our judgment, might very well represent the major contribution by the states to the solution of the transiency problem.

Whereas, The existing legal settlement and residence laws of the various states are of fundamental concern in dealing with any program involving the transient person; and

Whereas, These laws are entirely lacking in uniformity and varying in standard and in degree; and

Whereas, This utter diversification has lent itself to undue hardships to the transient persons and unfairness to the states: and

Whereas, Any constructive program for the future, involving any and all persons not having a legal settlement at the place of application for relief, will necessitate a radical change in our existing philosophy of legal settlement; and

Whereas, This fundamental readjustment cannot be achieved within a reasonable period of time,

Therefore Be It Resolved, That this conference approve and encourage all efforts being made and to be made to bring about uniformity of legal settlement laws between the several states.

That for immediate action this conference approve the principle of reciprocal agreements between groups of two or more states which shall encourage uniformity of practice by agreement as between the cooperating states, and further,

That this conference bring to the attention of all state legislatures the need for, and the advisability of enacting legislation to authorize and empower an appropriate state department to enter into these reciprocal agreements, and further,

That the general problem of the study of reciprocal agreements, including the suggested possibilities for the agreements themselves, and the problems arising in the negotiations and practices between the states, be referred to the Continuing Committee for further study and for report from time to time.

Whereas, This Interstate Conference has been admirably organized and splendidly conducted;

Whereas, The physical arrangements in the State Capitol have been most comfortable and agreeable; and

Whereas, We all have derived immense stimulation and benefit from this conference;

Be It Therefore Resolved, That we express our deep appreciation to the New Jersey Commission on Interstate Cooperation, and their Committee on Arrangements, for all that they have done, and pledge our contniued cooperation, in the task in which they have exercised such happy leadership and that we reaffirm our belief in the extension of the principle of interstate compacts for the care of transients which has been expressed throughout this conference.

Membership of the Continuing Committee

At the direction of the above resolution, Judge Richard Hartshorne, chairman of the New Jersey Commission on interstate Cooperation, appointed the following Continuing Committee which will shortly undertake a study of the settlement laws:

Chairman, Assemblyman Harold C. Ostertag, of Attica, New York.
Charles J. Margiotti, Attorney-General, State of Pennsylvania, and chairman of the Pennsylvania Commission on Interstate Cooperation.
Karl de Schweintz, Pennsylvania State Relief Administrator.
Secretary, Dr. Ellen C. Potter, Director of Medicine, Department of Institutions and Agencies, State of New Jersey.
Elwood Street, Director of Public Welfare, District of Columbia, Washington, D. C.
James Donn, Chairman, Florida Transient Co-ordinating Committee, Florida.
Fred K. Hoehler, Director American Public Welfare Association, Chicago, Illinois.
Henry Greenstein, State Relief Administrator, Maryland.
Frank W. Ellis, State Director, ERA Transient Division, State of Mississippi.
State Senator Paul D. Grady, President of the Senate and member of the Commission on Interstate Cooperation, North Carolina.
Mrs. Thomas W. Streeter, member of the New Jersey Commission on Interstate Cooperation.
Hubert R. Gallagher, Regional Representative, Council of State Governments, New York City.
Haskell Jacobs, Consultant on Settlement TERA, New York State.
Lawrence C. Jones, Attorney-General, State of Vermont.
C. L. Allen, ERA Director of State of West Virginia.

Action by the Continuing Committee

The Continuing Committee in addition will play an important part in negotiating with officials of the Federal government and in organizing similar Transient Conferences in other regions of the United States. The importance of the work of this committee in undertaking the promulgation of reciprocal agreements for the care of transients and in bringing about more uniform settlement laws throughout the United States cannot be exaggerated.

The first action of the Continuing Committee has been to secure the introduction in the state legislatures now in session, resolutions memorializing the Congress of the United States and the Federal Works Progress Administration to "accept immediate responsibility for the relief and employment of tansients."

In addition, the Committee joined with the Interstate Commission on Social Security in urging the enactment by the state legislatures of the Uniform Transfer of Dependents Act. A copy of this legislation follows. (See also Senate Bill 583, Rupp.)

UNIFORM TRANSFER OF DEPENDENTS ACT

An Act concerning reciprocal agreements for the Interstate transportation and the support of poor and indigent persons, and to make unifrom the law with reference thereto.

Social Security

The Work of the Interstate Commission on Social Security

At the Second General Assembly of the Council of State Governments held in Chicago April 17 and 18, 1936 a resolution was adopted providing for the establishment of an Interstate Commission on Social Security. A representative from each Commission on Interstate Cooperation was chosen to serve on this Social Security Commission. Senator George A. Rupp was appointed Commissioner on Social Security for the Pennsylvania Commission.

At the first meeting of this Interstate Commission on Social Security held at the Hotel Traymore, Atlantic City, New Jersey, June 26 and 27, 1936, members of the Commission discussed interstate problems in connection with Social Security legislation. In brief these problems included; the collection of liens on property of out-of-state relatives of recipients of public assistance; the exchange of statistics; reciprocal agreements permitting recipients of assistance to change legal residence without losing the right to assistance; uniform settlement laws; uniform deportation act; transfer of benefit rights under unemployment compensation laws and coverage of interstate employees under unemployment insurance.

In the discussion it was apparent that the Commissioners desired to see these problems solved by joint state action in cooperation with the federal government. The following resolutions, as adopted by the Commissioners show the beginnings of a concrete program for interstate cooperation in the fields of social security and public welfare. Their resolutions include a demand for further study of the numerous interstate problems in cooperation with the Social Security Board as well as the preparation of an immediate legislative program for enactment by state legislatures.

Resolutions adopted by the Interstate Commission on Social Security

1. Resolved: That the Commission endorse the Uniform Transfer of Dependents act which has been recommended to the states by the Commissioners on Uniform State Laws, the American Bar Association, and the American Public Welfare Association.
2. Resolved: That there be a committee appointed by the Chairman of the Interstate Commission on Social Security for the purpose of continuing the work of this Commission, and to suggest uniform agreements with reference to all social security legislation between states.
3. Resolved: That the proposal to make records of vital statistics available to officials of other states be thoroughly canvassed with the end in view that practical measures be initiated and recommendations for that purpose be submitted at the next meeting of the Interstate Commission on Social Security
4. Resolved: That the Interstate Commission on Social Security recommend that an appropriate branch of the Council of State Governments undertake a study of the restrictions and limitations of records bearing on the social security laws with particular reference to the use or availability of records heretofore considered of a private nature
5. Resolved: That the Interstate Commission on Social Security recommend that steps be taken to investigate the possibility of securing uniform legislation with reference to the imposition of liens on recipients of assistance under social security laws or other public welfare assistance and enforcing such liens against the property of such recipients wherever situated
6. Resolved: That the Interstate Commission on Social Security recommend to the states the adoption of a one year uniform settlement law.
7. Resolved: That the Commission urge the Social Security Board and the Interstate Conference of Unemployment Compensation Administrators to take joint action to make studies with reference to the establishment of uniform administrative procedure and uniform laws to bring about uniform operation of the unemployment compensation laws (consistent with the needs of the various states), and that these studies be made and prepared in time to be presented to the Council of State Governments at its Third General Assembly in January, 1937.
8. Whereas: The recent development of a joint federal-state social security program promises much for the happiness of many millions of American citizens, and

Whereas: It is the opinion of the Interstate Commission on Social Security that adequate standards of administration are absolutely essential to the proper development of such an intergovernmental program for social security, and

Whereas: These adequate standards of administration can be secured only through the selection, retention, and encouragement of competent administrative employes, and

Whereas: The development of a career service in social security work is essential in securing the high type of personnel needed for this important work.

Therefore: Be it resolved that the Interstate Commission on Social Security recommend to the various states that the personnel employed in administration of social security benefits be selected on the basis of their ability to do the work required in the most effective manner possible in each state department or agency which is in charge of the administration of social security.

Liquor Control

Legislation to Reduce Conflicts in Liquor Laws Approved at Regional Meeting

On December 19, 1936, the New Jersey and New York Commissions on Interstate Cooperation called a regional conference to discuss interstate problems of Liquor Control. This meeting was held at the Hotel Biltmore in New York City. Administrators and legislators from Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania attended. Your commission was ably represented by N. L. Wymard (for Attorney-General Margiotti, Chairman of the Commission) and Representative Ellwood J. Turner.

The meeting was called to discuss conflicts in liquor control including price differentials between states, purity standards, regulation of warehouse receipts' sales uniform labeling and taxation. Drafts of uniform laws, suggested amendments to present laws and administrative regulations were proposed by the conferees. It was decided that the three attached bills would be presented for the approval of other Commissions on Interstate Cooperation at the Third General Assembly of the Council of State Governments meeting in Washington, January 21 to 24, 1937.

When the Third General Assembly met in January the following suggested drafts of bills were discussed and copies were taken by Commissioners on Interstate Cooperation for the purpose of consultation with their respective State Liquor Administrators. Representatives Jacob M. Flinchbaugh and Ellwood J. Turner are conferring with Administrator Leo Crossen and the criticisms and suggestions he may have to offer will be referred to the Continuing Committee of the Regional Liquor Control Conference for action. When all suggestions for bills to curb these interstate conflicts in Liquor Control have been received, uniform legislation will be presented to the state legislatures for enactment.

It should be pointed out that many of the difficulties of liquor control existing in other states are not found in Pennsylvania because of he State Store System. Thus, certain provisions in the preliminary drafts of liquor control legislation are not applicable to Pennsylvania conditions.

Report

Introduction*

For more than a century, the Delaware River has been a tie of considerable importance to the states of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware. For more than a half-century, there has been an increasing realization of the importance of conserving and developing the natural resources of this watershed.

The use of the Delaware River and its tributaries as a present and future source of water supply has been, and remains a vital problem. Closely connected with the need for maintaining a large potable source of water supply is the problem of protecting that supply—abating and preventing pollution.

Other converging water use problems: recreation, navigation, power development, agriculture and forestry conservation, flood protection, fish and game preservation, industrial use, real estate and property interests—all are closely inter-related.

Just as there has been an awakening as to the necessity of planning for the conservation and development of the physical resources within the Basin so has there been a much more recent, but remarkably accelerated, realization that the protection and the enjoyment of the natural resources of the Delaware River Basin is no longer the responsibility of the individual states and their local communities. What were once independent problems now affect a wide variety of interests and communities.

The Delaware River, rising on the western slopes of the Catskill Mountains in the State of New York, forms, in its upper flow, the boundary between New York and Pennsylvania. Below this point, flowing to the south, it divides first the states of New Jersey and Pennsylvania, later the states of New Jersey and Delaware.

The political, legal, and administrative difficulties which are involved in considering a planned approach to the problems of an area which lies within four states, and which embraces hundreds of local governmental units are obvious.

THE APPROACH

The Pennsylvania Commission on Interstate Cooperation, in outlining its work program for the year 1936-37, felt that it could make a major contrbution to the welfare of the people living not only within Pennsylvania but in the whole basin area, if it could devise a method of approaching the problems outlined above, so that some practical results might be achieved.

Accordingly, a stream pollution committee of the larger Commission was appointed and a conference was called on April 3, 1936, in Philadelphia, to which were invited similar subcommittee members appointed by the Commissions on Interstate Cooperation of New Jersey and New York, various interested federal officials—including members of the federal planning agency, known as the National Resources Committee—and local government representatives. That conference carefully considered the question as to what governmental machinery might be developed within the region to coordinate and integrate the work of the Commissions on Interstate Cooperation and of their joint agency, the Council of State Governments, with the work of the State Planning Boards and with that of the National Resources Committee, in relation to the development of a concerted program of action for the entire drainage basin.

The following resolution was adopted by the conference:

Whereas, it appears that there are many interstate problems affecting the welfare, health, and happiness of the people residing in the Delaware River Basin, among which problems are the abatement of pollution and of floods, the fuller enjoyment of our natural resources, and the improvement of industry, transportation, commerce, utilities, education, and recreation; and

Whereas, it seems advisable to create an interstate commission to coordinate the activities of the Commissions on Interstate Cooperation and their joint agency, the Council of State Governments, the state and regional planning boards, the National Resources Committee, and other federal and state agencies interested in, and charged with the solution of these problems: and

Whereas, it seems imperative that this Commission should evolve a plan of action,

Therefore, Be It Resolved, that the conference of Commissions on Interstate Cooperation of the States of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Delaware hereby authorize the appointment of an Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin.

The Commission, at its first meeting, outlined the following functional program:

A. To serve as a fact-coordinating body and to develop the means and procedure by which the general plans and policies proposed for the development of the region may be carried out.

B. To sponsor the carrying out of properly developed plans which result from surveys and research concerning population, land and water resources and uses, and other related subjects.

C. To coordinate the activities of the commissions and committees on interstate cooperation and their joint agency, the Council of State Governments, with the work of the appropriate state and federal agencies for the prevention and abatement of pollution, for flood control, and for the proper general use and control of the waters of the Delaware River.

D. To encourage interstate compacts and the enactment of uniform state laws for the abatement of water pollution, for flood control and for the proper general use and control of the waters of the Delaware River.

E. To advance, perpetuate, and outline the work recommended by this conference, and to develop and propose new objectives.

As its first objective the Commission recommends that a program be evolved for the abatement of pollution of the Delaware River.

Organization

In accordance with the Articles of Organization adopted the Commission is composed of four members from each of the four states, designated by each state's Commission on Interstate Cooperation. Each of these four state members: one, a member of the Senate; one, a member of the House of Representatives; one, an administrative official of the state government; and one, a member or executive of the State Planning Board; is to serve for a term of two years, provided that during that period, each retains his status as a member of his state's Commission on Interstate Cooperation.

The Regional Representative of the Council of State Governments serves as Secretary-Treasurer of the Commission.

The National Resources Committee

A sound and permanent program of water conservation is the ultimate objective of the Committee on Water Resources of the National Resources Committee. The Water Resources Committee, organized in 1935, has been engaged in numerous activities, designed to promote the realization of its objective.

In June of 1936, the Committee instituted a nation-wide study of drainage basins, having in mind three major purposes:

(1) To indicate the outstanding problems of water use and control in the different parts of the country.
(2) To outline in broad terms a reasonable and integrated program of development.
(3) To present specific construction and study projects which, in the light of available information, are consistent with the broad plan.

The report on the Delaware River Basin, prepared by the water consultants of the National Resources Committee in the Philadelphia offices of Incodel, has been completed and has been transmitted to the President, along with similar studies of each of the other major drainage basins in the United States.

In that report, ranking first in order of importance among the water conservation problems in the Delaware River Basin, was listed "Interstate Cooperation." The report later suggests: "Future development of the Delaware involves the divergent commercial and legislative interests of four states: New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Delaware. The development of the river should be subject to the control of a single interstate agency and it is suggested that the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin be granted the necessary authority from the state legislatures to assume control."

Regional Conference

On June 22, 1936, another meeting of the Commission was held in Philadelphia for the purpose of discussing what steps should next be taken in the development of a program. It may be well to insert at this point that the problems of water supply and pollution within this drainage area—listed as the first points of attack on the agenda of Incodel—have been subjected to study by a host of official and private agencies or individuals over the past fifty years. Countless costly surveys and studies have been made of these same difficulties. Numerous plans have been drawn up and discarded—or ignored.

Practically without exception, the conclusions and recommendations of this research activity have pointed to the interstate character of the problems involved and the need for concurrent or reciprocal legislative programs in each of the four states.

And because of this constant tendency of plans to require legislative and administrative action, the planners, legislators and administrators who compose the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin felt that as a background for a coordinated program, an effort should be made to assemble representatives of federal, state, county, and municipal governments; of educational institutions; and of civic and business bodies of the states of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware. An invitation was therefore issued to such agencies and individuals urging their attendance at a regional conference held on October 2-3, 1936, at Shawnee-on-the-Delaware, Pennsylvania.

The objectives of this regional conference were as follows:

1. To present a clear picture of the problems of water supply, pollution, flood control, conservation, and other related subjects in the Delaware River Basin as a whole.
2. To define and to crystallize opinion as to the interests and responsibilities of each of the four states, of the federal government, and of the local units within the basin as to these problems.
3. To secure, through round-table discussions, constructive suggestions as to the best method of harmonizing the views of all interested agencies—both public and private—in the moulding of an immediate practical program.
4. To develop and perfect the machinery for a coordinated effort in behalf of such a program.
5. To consider and act upon the legislative program of the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin, which is to be submitted to the January sessions of the four state legislatures, and to deliberate other immediate objectives of the Commission.

Meeting of the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin

Out of this meeting which, in many respects, marked the high point of our efforts during the past six months, there developed a crystallization of opinion as to the interests and responsibilities of each of the four states, of the federal government, and of the local units within the basins, as to our related water problems. Approximately 300 delegates participated in general and sectional meetings, out of which the following constructive suggestions—in the form of recommendations to Incodel—were developed:

Water Pollution

The Conference Recommends:

That we, officials of federal, state, county, and municipal governments, and representatives of civic, professional, and business organizations of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Delaware attending the Regional Conference on the Delaware River Basin:

First, endorse the efforts of the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin to coordinate the work of the appropriate state and federal agencies for the prevention and abatement of pollution of the waters of the Delaware River.

Second, Recommend that the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin bring about an agreement between the different states involved to abate industrial and sewage pollution, and

(a) That this agreement be worked out with the aid of technical assistance from the states involved, and the federal government, and that this agreement be presented to the December meeting of the Interstate Commission for appropriate action, and further

(b) That definite steps be taken to have the agreement ratified by uniform legislation in the different states.

Third, recommend that an Advisory Committe be established composed of the members of the Committee of One Hundred and the mayors and officials of the cities and villages located in the basin, to cooperate with the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin in furthering the development of the basin including such problems as flood control, conservation, navigation, recreation, and pollution abatement, and be it further recommended that such an organization take appropriate measures to provide for proper publicity.

Fourth, urge that the legislatures of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Delaware appropriate to their Commissions on Interstate Cooperation funds for the continuation of the work of the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin.

Your committee recommends—realizing that there is a need for a uniform policy of federal aid to such municipalities, states, or interstate commissions as are responsible for the financing of the necessary work to prevent and abate pollution of water courses and coastal waters—that the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin undertake a study of the possibilities of developing such a future federal policy.

Water Supply

The Conference Recommends:

1. A mutual agreement for the development of the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin, as an effective agency for the development, control, and distribution of the use of the natural resources and benefits of the Delaware River Basin for the mutual advantage of the participating states, with such reapportionment and regulation of the flow of the river as will protect those communities and interests who now enjoy rights or share in its uses.

2. A policy for the equitable apportionment of the water of the Delaware River Basin for water supply, in such manner as to restore and preserve the purity of the water for that and other consistent uses.

3. A series of impounding reservoirs to regulate the flow of the river for water supply, flood control, recreation and for other economic and industrial purposes.

Recreational Development

The Conference Recommends:

That the states be urged to undertake an aggressive policy of public acquisition of land for public recreational use and scenic value conservation.

That the states be urged to reconcile their conflicting fish and game legislation and regulation to eliminate conflicts and provide for common stocking of streams and land.

That the states and federal government be urged to undertake a comprehensive study of wild life conservation and management.

That wherever reservoirs or power dams are, or have been developed, we recommend the use of such impounded water by the public for recreation, subject to such prohibition of the use of public water supply reservoirs by the State Health Department having jurisdiction where they deem such use will create a menace to public health.

That the states be urged by legislation and by public policy to provide against the abuse of the natural environment of the roadside by commercialization, in all new road construction and to abate such abuses on existing highways as rapidly as possible and to eliminate toll bridges.

That the states be urged in all public works and commercial developments to give full protection to the scenic values of the Delaware Basin.

That a comprehensive study be undertaken for the recreational devolopment of the Basin.

Committee Organization

To organize itself more effectively in its consideration of these recommendations, the Commission next proposed to organize itself into committee groups. A proposed committee organization and work program was devised and the members of the Commission gathered again on December 11, in Trenton, New Jersey, to act upon the proposed plan. Six standing committees were established to consider, in detail, and report back to the larger group, on the following phases of the water resources problem in the Delaware River Basin: Planning; Engineering; Legislation; Financing; Federal Cooperation; and Public Cooperation.

Financing

No money has been made available by the state legislatures, appropriated directly to the purposes of Incodel.

The Commission was established following the 1936 sessions of the legislatures in New York and New Jersey: Pennsylvania and Delaware have biennial legislative sessions, in odd numbered years.

The Commissions on Interstate Cooperation in New Jersey and New York operate by means of funds granted by the legislatures. Accordingly, the Commissions in those two states agreed to assume a portion of the expenses incidental to the operation of the Incodel office.

Through an arrangement made by the Chairman of the Commission, the quota assigned to Pennsylvania has been secured from the Contingent Fund of Governor George H. Earle.

It is anticipated that the Board of Harbor Commissioners of Wilmington will absorb the small costs assigned to Delaware, until such time as the legislature acts upon a pending bill which will bring that state into full participation with New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania in this project.

These funds in a total amount of $2,000.00, are to be budgeted over a period of six months, from January until June of this year.

At a meeting of the Commsision held in Trenton, December 11, 1936, a budget for the next two years was drawn up and adopted providing a pro-rata sharing of the expenses anticipated. The quotas assigned to each represented state in the basin were arrived at on the basis of the interest which each has in this project and in the benefits which will come as a result of this activity.

Under the provisions of that budget, the following appropriations are to be sought from the state legislatures now meeting in each of the four states:

Annual Budget

Pennsylvania	$ 12,000.00
New Jersey	7,500.00
New York	7,500.00
Delaware	3,000.00
	$30,000.00

Staff

The staff of the Commission, during the past six months, has consisted of a Secretary, whose services and expenses have come to the Commission as a donation from the Council of State Governments; an Associate Consultant of the National Resources Committee, who has recently completed his work in connection with the collection and analyzation of material concerning the Delaware River Basin for the nation-wide Drainage Basin Study of the National Resources Committee; and a stenographer.

Within the past ten days the Commission has received assurances of further federal aid from the National Resources Committee. The Committee has arranged to have their leading consultants on planning and water problems available for special calls from this organization. In addition, the Committee is now prepared to appoint—subject to selection by Incodel—a consultant, who will spend his entire time in the Incodel office, developing specific projects for consideration and action by the Commission.

Summary

The Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin has now been organized and operated for a period of six months. It has succeeded in bringing together—for the first time—a group of legislators, administrators, and planners from four states, as well as representatives of the federal government, in an effort to solve those problems of water resources within the basin which can only be met on a broad mutual basis.

The study of the Delaware River Basin, authorized and supervised by the President's National Resources Committee, has been pursued in the terms Incodel considers it should follow, in that it is not an original work, involving new research, but is rather a synthesis of viewpoints which have been expressed in official and semi-official documents published over a period of many years.

Numerous proposals which will require cooperative action on the part of two or more of the states in this drainage basin are included in that study, and it is anticipated that Incodel will foster the adoption of such of those proposals as it may think desirable.

Through its organization on the subcommittee pattern, the Commission is attempting to make use of more than a score of federal and state agencies now engaged in some phase of activity in relation to the problems of water supply and pollution in this area. Through the appointment of advisory members to the Commission, every effort will be made to enlist the services of all of those in this four-state area who are qualified to participate in the moulding of a program for the betterment of existing conditions.

Conclusion

The continuation of the Pennsylvania Commission on Interstate Cooperation along permanent lines by the unanimous adoption in the House of Senate Bill No. 52, March 9th, indicates the value of its work. The nature of its future program is indicated in the recommendations made in the different sections of this report.

It is clear that the Commission is faced with many trying problems which cannot be handled by one state alone, but which require the cooperative, legislative and administrative action of other states as well. However, steps have been taken for the solution of these problems by the establishment of a pattern of machinery for interstate cooperation and the development of effective continuing agencies to carry them out. For example, in the regional field, the Pennsylvania Commission, as the keystone of two important regional commissions, one in the Delaware River Basin and the other in the Ohio River Basin, has a definite contribution to make in abating pollution, controlling floods, and planning the future uses of the resources of these two great basins. In the national field, the Commission is also playing its part through its membership on the Council of State Governments' Interstate Commissions on Crime, Social Security and Taxation.

There is no doubt that the Pennsylvania Commission on Interstate Cooperation will continue to do its part in bringing to an end the many conflicts and disharmonies which at present exist in the laws and administrative practices of the states and the federal government.

Summary of Minutes

of the Organization Meeting

of the

Joint Legislative Commission on Interstate Cooperation

Harrisburg, Pennsylvania January 17, 1936

Present: Hon. Thomas A. Logue, Secretary of Internal Affairs
Hon. David A. Lawrence, Secretary of the Commonwealth
Dr. J. Evans Scheehle, Secretary of Welfare
Hon. Edward Friedman, Deputy Attorney General
Senator Herman E. Baumer
Hon. Jacob M. Flinchbaugh
Hon. Frank W. Ruth
Hon. Joseph A. Simon
Hubert R. Gallagher, District Representative of the Council of State Governments

In the absence of Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti, Chairman of the Commission, Hon. Thomas A. Logue presided.

Mr. Logue: The Attorney General, in pursuance of his designation by the Governor as Chairman of the Commission on Interstate Cooperation, has called this meeting for this morning, but because of bad roads, it is impossible for him to be here. The purpose of the call this morning is to organize the Commission and in this connection we would like to hear from Mr. Gallagher, District Representative of the Council of State Governments. I presume the reason for this meeting is to effect an organization along the line of the Commissions organized in other states. Dr. Scheehle, Mr. Bonnelly, Mr. Friedman and I attended conferences in New York as guests of other Commissions. Several states in this vicinity have organized their Commissions, and, in my judgment, are doing good work on problems which are interstate as well as intrastate. I have no suggestion as to procedure.

Mr. Gallagher: In most states, the Commissions have designated some state official as Secretary of the Commission, and also have appointed sub-committees of the Commission so that these subcommittees may work with similar committees from other states on subjects such as motor vehicle, milk control, water resources, crime prevention, etc.

Mr. Logue: As far as the appointment of any committees is concerned, I think that is a matter for the Attorney General, who is Chairman of the Commission. He can make those designations when he returns. A secretary you say—or a clerk—might be appointed?

Mr. Gallagher: Yes, a secretary to assist the Attorney General. Now, in New Jersey, the secretary of the Chairman, Judge Hartshorne's secretary, is also secretary of the Commission. In New York they selected one of their members as secretary. In Colorado, the secretary is the Director of the Legislative Reference Bureau. It doesn't matter just so some person acquainted with the work is appointed to assist the Chairman. I think General Margiotti would prefer to select the secretary. I don't think it is a formal procedure in other states. Some states have elected and some appointed.

Mr. Baumer: May I make a suggestion? The Attorney General is Chairman. I think probably he should be asked to designate the secretary of the Commission.

Mr. Logue: Mr. Gallagher, do you want to say a few words?

Mr. Gallagher: I would like to outline briefly some of the projects in which the Commission has informally participated. Members of this Commission have attended meetings held in other states. Mr. Simon, Mr. Flinchbaugh and Dr. Scheehle attended the Interstate Crime Conference in Trenton; and Dr. Scheehle, Senator Woodward, Mr. Turner and you (Mr. Logue) have attended meetings in New York. I think it would be wise if possibly a delegation were selected to attend the Regional Highway Safety Conference in New York City January 25 and 26. I think, Mr. Chairman, both you and Dr. Scheehle have accepted invitations to that meeting. I don't know whether others have accepted or not. They have been invited. Another matter that I think might be considered by this Commission is milk control. The New York and New Jersey Commissions plans to hold informal hearings on the Seven State Milk Pact sometime during February for the benefit of those not acquainted with this subject when it comes on the floor of the Legislature. Your Legislature doesn't meet until 1937. The plan of New York is to hold a hearing, at which representatives of producers, distributors and handlers of milk and representatives of the Milk Control Board and the Department of Agriculture appear before the committee to inform them on problems of milk control.

I have already mentioned the subject of crime and the work of the Interstate Commission on Crime. As those of you who met in Trenton know, this Commission has held a number of executive sessions, one in New York City at the invitation of the New Yrok Committee on Interstate Cooperation, and one at the Executive Mansion of the Governor of New York. These sessions were called to consider drafts of legislation prepared by twenty-six leading law schools. Four measures have been drafted on the subjects of (a) Fresh Pursuit of Criminals, (b) Extradition, (c) Removal of Out-of-State Witnesses in Criminal Proceedings, and (d) the Supervision of Out-of-State Parolees. These measures are in final form and are being introduced in different legislatures by Commissions on Interstate Cooperation. These measures are available to Pennsylvania, and legislative members of Commission will be furnished with drafts of these proposals at the session in 1937.

Mr. Logue: May I inquire if there are committees on the question of stream pollution?

Mr. Gallagher: Nothing has been done on stream pollution. As you know, I think you (Mr. Logue) and Mr. Turner suggested Pennsylvania might take a lead in that field.

Mr. Baumer: Water supply has been a serious problem for us and stream pollution is incidental to water supply.

Mr. Logue: Water supply would be the parent and stream pollution the child. I brought it up because Ellwood Turner was in my Department and said he was sorry he couldn't be here today. He wanted to have noted his interest in the question of water supply and stream pollution.

Mr. Baumer: It is very vital to Philadelphia.

Mr. Logue: And to sections along the Delaware River. Mr. Turner asked me to inquire if steps had been taken toward solving this problem. I want that noted. I also think he's the fit one, if the Attorney General deems it proper, to be on any committee from Pennsylvania.

Mr. Gallagher: It would be excellent if Pennsylvania would take the leadership in water supply and stream pollution and call a conference of Commissions in this area to consider these subjects. Also, representatives of the Federal Government should be a party to such a conference.

Mr. Simon: We have that situation in our county. We have a stream there that no one would fish in if the stream were clean. It's right in the city. We have some fanatics there that think it ought to be fit to drink. As soon as you start that you'll have trouble.

Mr. Baumer: Stream pollution is sometimes very much misunderstood. There's the Allegheny. Pittsburgh gets all its water from the Allegheny. It isn't the pollution that makes it necessary to filter the water twice. It's the acid from coal mines that makes it necessary for double filtration. So we are sealing old mines and overcoming that difficulty. There's a movement now to do that by the Federal Government.

Mr. Simon: I want to make this observation. I attended the Interstate Crime Conference where they took up the question of extradition and the sense of one of the roundtables was that no legislation should be suggested on that subject.

Mr. Gallagher: The next day the subject of extradition came up on the floor and there was considerable debating. Some thought a change should be made in the extradition laws. The Conference reconsidered their previous motion and decided the statute should be redrafted. That has been done.

Mr. Flinchbaugh: This meeting on crime was interesting to me. If a prisoner paroled from Pennsylvania moves to New York, there is need for a proper follow-up. I received a great deal of information at that meeting.

Mr. Logue: Mr. Gallagher, you have given us a list of the functioning committees in other states, and it is your suggestion that the Chairman of this Commission appoint subcommittees on such subjects as crime prevention, milk control, water supply and conservation.

Mr. Gallagher: I could send Mr. Friedman the list as appointed in other states as a guide for Attorney General Margiotti in appointing Pennsylvania subcommittees. I think also that General Margiotti might be interested in the fact that advisers might be called in from the different departments to assist with these subjects. For instance, when you go to New York to a highway safety conference, possibly someone from the Bureau of Motor Vehicles should attend. I think it is very valuable for the Commission to draw upon the services of experts in the different State departments.

Mr. Logue: Not to break your thought, but it is incidental to it. Dr. Scheehle and I have discussed the question that this Commission has had appropriated to it no money, and we have sort of languished since our appointment. We have attended conferences in New York and New Jersey. It is not so much the question of meetings, but the great State of Pennsylvania shouldn't be lagging behind other states which are actually functioning in this work. I don't know about the financing of other Commissions, but do the executives in other states use their contingent funds for financing a Commission of this character in lieu of legislative appropriation?

Dr. Scheehle: As I understand, the Legislature appropriated $2500 for this Commission. For some reason or other, that item was stricken out by the Budget Secretary and not approved. That left us high and dry. The appropriation would have provided for clerical hire and necessary expenses. I have been in Spring Lake at the conference on child labor and hours of labor and employment of women. I have been in Trenton, and I want to say that was one of the most constructive meetings I have ever attended. Out of that grew the Interstate Crime Commission. We have been to Albany and New York. The Governor of New Jersey appropriated $2500 out of the Governor's fund. I have reached the point where I hesitate to attend meetings because Pennsylvania is accepting invitations and cooperating in every way but a material way and benefitting considerably from it. It is rather embarrassing that we cannot bear our fair share of the expenses.

Mr. Logue: When we were over in New York a couple months ago, the New York people practically asked for an invitation to come and visit our Commission to see how we work and what we do. We would have been as orphans if they had come over. And right at the time they were entertaining us.

Dr. Scheehle: We were asked to contribute to help defray expenses of the Interstate Commission on Crime. I have had to write to Judge Hartshorne, Chairman of the Interstate Commission, about it. There is certainly some way a method can be devised for Pennsylvania to share the expenses of these interstate organizations.

Mr. Logue. Not to pass the buck to the Attorney General, but this is a matter for him to take up.

Dr. Scheehle: The Attorney General, so far, has been unable to see any way the situation could be helped. I wonder if, in the event of a special session, such an item could be included in the call.

Mr. Simon: What happened to it before the Legislature?

Dr. Scheehle: The appropriation passed both Houses.

Mr. Baumer: It was taken out by the Budget Secretary.

Mr. Friedman: If you receive a call for appropriation in the special session, you have to provide for raising the money.

Dr. Scheehle: I thought we might be able to bring the matter to the attention of his Excellency that he might legally appropriate such an amount necessary to this Commission. As it is, we go to these meetings and our expenses are charged to our own departments. I would like to hear any helpful suggestions.

Mr. Flinchbaugh: There is no special fund in the Legislature that could be used.

Mr. Baumer: Not that I know of. The Chairman is right. Something ought to be done. We did do something, but it was undone.

Mr. Logue: That is my purpose in bringing that up. Take the little State of Connecticut. They must have had ten or twelve representatives at the Regional Meeting of Commissions on Interstate Cooperation in New York, and it's a shame Pennsylvania only had a couple there by reason of this very condition that exists. Anything more?

Mr. Gallagher: I think I should call this to the attention of the Commission. If there's any way in which I can be of assistance by reason of research facilities in Chicago, which are considerable, or securing information from other states, or by helping you with reports or legislation of any kind, don't fail to call upon me. I have been able to help members of other commissions. The Council of State Governments in cooperation with the New York Commission maintains a joint office in New York City, 306 East 35th Street. I can be reached there at any time.

Mr. Logue: Gentlemen, any queries to be propounded to Mr. Gallagher? Well, then we have actually organized our Commission here today?

Mr. Baumer: We know the importance of it.

Mr. Logue: I might suggest that a copy of the minutes be sent to each member of the Commission so that those who are not here can get the benefit of what took place. Then they can realize the importance.

Mr. Friedman: After the minutes are transcribed, we can have a stencil cut and copies mimeographed.

Mr. Baumer: It might be wise to get from Mr. Gallagher a list of the important meetings coming on and send copies of the list to the members so that they know when they will be held.

Mr. Gallagher: I will be glad to keep the members of the Commission informed of these dates well in advance of the meetings.

Mr. Logue: If there is nothing further, gentlemen, I presume we stand adjourned to meet at the call of the chair.

Mr. Friedman: This department will be represented at that safety council in New York. Mr. Bonnelly has been delegated to attend. I presume the Department of Revenue will have a representative there.

Mr. Baumer: There's a possibility that I'll be there.

Mr. Logue: Then, gentlemen, we stand adjourned, if there is nothing further.

March 16, 1937.

To the Members of the House of Representatives:

Pursuant to Resolution No. 154 adopted by the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania on June 21, 1935, the Honorable Charles Melchiorre, Elmer Kilroy, Albert Pfaff, William P. Condon and Joseph Ominsky (Chairman), members of the House of Representatives, were appointed by the Speaker of the House as a committee to investigate the books, records, management and operation of the Fairmount Park Commission of the City of Philadelphia, and to report thereon to the House of Representatives. The full text of the Resolution is as follows:

"Whereas the Fairmount Park Commission of the City of Philadelphia has grown in scope and control in supervising a tract of land which was developed from a nucleus of five acres acquired in the year 1812 to the proportion wherein it now has the control and supervision of over 6500 acres of park and park areas, as well as the many buildings and improvements thereon and,
"Whereas the said Commission may in its discretion dispose distribute, or revise the aforesaid acres of land, and all that is upon it and,
"Whereas the said Commission receives from the taxpayers of the City of Philadelphia and other public sources a large sum of money to disburse as it deems proper in the running of its affairs, and further,
"Whereas it is alleged that the said Commission is czaristic in its attitude and considers itself a law unto itself and,
"Whereas this attitude was recently demonstrated when the aforesaid Park Commission 'pickled' House Resolution Serial Number one hundred ninety-one Legislative Journal Page two thousand eight hundred seventeen which Resolution was unanimously adopted by this House on the twenty-ninth day of April and transmitted to the Park Commission by the Chief Clerk on the thirtieth day of April said Resolution having advised the Park Commission that this House was in favor of placing the Park Guards who are under the Commission's supervision on an equal basis with the Policemen and Firemen with regards to rest periods and vacations and,
"Whereas it is desirable that legislation be enacted properly to provide for the supervision auditing and control of the said Board so that the said Commission may heed the voice of the people and not the voice of a select few therefore be it,
"Resolved that the Speaker of the House of Representatives is hereby authorized to appoint a Committee of Five members of the House of Representatives whose duty it shall be to make an investigation of the books records management and operation of the Park Board also known as the Fairmount Park Commission of the City of Philadelphia to the extent that may be necessary to effectuate the purposes of this Resolution and for the information of the House of Representatives and,
"Resolved that the Committee shall make a report to the House of Representatives as early as possible either at this session if feasible or at the next special session or general session of the House of Representatives and be it further,
"Resolved that the said Committee through its Chairman or through a majority of its members shall have power to issue subpoenas under the hand and seal of its Chairman requesting and commanding any person or persons to appear before them and to answer such questions touching matters which are properly being inquired into by the Committee and to produce such books, papers, records, and documents as the Committee may deem necessary. Such subpoenas may be served upon any person and shall have the force and effect of the subpoenas issued out of the Courts of this Commonwealth. Moreover each member of said Committee shall have power to administer oaths and affirmations to witnesses appearing before the Committee. Any person who shall wilfully neglect or refuse to testify before said Committee or to produce any books papers records or documents shall be subject to the penalties provided by laws of the Commonwealth in such cases."

The Committee held several executive meetings in the City of Philadelphia prior to the taking of testimony. It selected as its counsel L. Stauffer Oliver, Esq., of the Philadelphia Bar, and as its accountants D. M. Livingston & Company of Philadelphia.

Prior to the taking of testimony, the Committee and its counsel studied and analyzed the legislation creating the Commission and affecting its activities. In this research work, and in the subsequent investigation of the minute books, contracts, accounts and other records of the Commission, the interviewing of witnesses, and the examination of records in the offices of the Recorder of Deeds in Philadelphia and Delaware Counties together with other records with respect to the acquisition of real estate for park purposes, the Committee and its counsel were assisted by the following members of the Philadelphia Bar: Francis W. Sullivan, Arthur L. Adams, Raymond deS. Shryock, Vincent Moranz and Edwin J McDermott.

Public hearings were held, at which witnesses were questioned and testimony was taken, on the following days:

Saturday, October 19, 1935 Friday, November 8, 1935
Wednesday, October 23, 1935 Saturday, November 16, 1935
Saturday, October 26, 1935 Saturday, December 7, 1935
Wednesday, October 30, 1935 Saturday, December 14, 1935
Saturday, November 2, 1935 Saturday, December 21, 1935.

The first of these hearings was held at the offices of The Board of Public Education in Philadelphia. The subsequent hearings were held at the offices of the Fairmount Park Commission in City Hall, in that city.

The Commissioners were given full opportunity to cross-examine the witnesses who appeared before your Committee, to introduce testimony or other evidence on their own behalf and to present their defense or explanation as the facts hereinafter referred to were disclosed. They were represented in the hearings before your Committee by counsel for the Park Commission and by an assistant city solicitor.

During the period of time these hearings were held and subsequent thereto, your Committee, its counsel and accountants, examined the books, accounts, minute books, contracts and other records of the Commission.

At the recent election two of the originally appointed members of your Committee, Messrs. Pfaff and Condon. were not candidates for reelection. They are therefore not presently members of the House of Representatives. The three remaining members of the Committee who are filing this report, Messrs. Melchiorre, Kilroy and Ominsky, were reelected and took office December 1, 1936 at the beginning of the recently held extraordinary session of the State Legislature.

In addition, there are about 580 acres of park areas in the city of Philadelphia not under the control of the Fairmount Park Commission, but under the control of the Bureau of Recreation of the Department of Public Welfare and the Bureau of City Properties.

Personnel and Organization of the Park Commission

By the provisions of the Act of March 26, 1867, P. L. 547, creating the Commission, and the subsequent creation of one Council only for the City of Philadelphia, and certain changes in the designation of city officials, there are fifteen Commissioners of Fairmount Park, five of whom are ex-officio members, namely, the Mayor, the President of City Council, the Chief of the Bureau of City Property, the Chief Engineer and Surveyor, and the Chief of the Bureau of Water of the City of Philadelphia. The remaining ten Commissioners are required to be citizens of Philadelphia, or of any other county in which the Commissioners are authorized by the Act of July 5, 1917, to lay out or maintain public parks. These ten Commissioners the appointed for a term of five years by the Judges of the Courts of Common Pleas of Philadelphia County. They are almost invariably re-appointed and frequently serve until death. There is no provision for the removal of a Commissioner. By statute, the Commissioners are not permitted to receive any compensation for their services.

At the time your Committee's investigation was begun, the five ex-officio members were: the Honorable J. Hampton Moore, Mayor of the City of Philadelphia, President of City Council Edwin R. Cox, Chief Engineer, John H. Neeson, Chief of the Bureau of Water Seth M. VanLon, and Chief of the Bureau of City Property Charles W. Neeld. The ten appointed members were: E. T. Stotesbury, President; Emory McMichael, Vice-President; Robert Glendinning, Treasurer; Joseph Widener, Frank L. Kenworthy, Morris R. Bockius, Joseph Carson, Frank H. Caven, W. Kirkland Dwier and Stanley Woodward.

At the present time the five ex-officio members of the Commission are the Honorable S. Davis Wilson, Mayor of the City of Philadelphia, President of City Council George Connell, Chief Engineer, John H. Neeson, Chief of the Bureau of Water Seth M. VanLoan, and Chief of the Bureau of City Property Howard Murphy. The ten appointed members are the same as above stated, with the exception that Samuel S. Fleisher has been appointed in place of the now deceased Colonel Glendinning, and Joseph Carson is Treasurer of the Commission in place of Colonel Glendinning.

Except in the summer time, the Commission as a whole meets once a month, and oftener if necessary. Its meetings are nominally open to the public. However, most of the business of the Commission is handled by standing committees. The meetings of the standing committees, in contrast with the meetings of the Commission, are not open to the public.

As set forth in the rules of the Commission, in force at the time the hearings before your Committtee were held, the President of the Commission each year appointed the following standing committees, of which he was also a member ex-officio.

"1. A Committee on Land Purchases and Damages, of six members, to investigate and report upon proposed acquisitions of land and buildings for the parks under the control of the Commissioners.

"2. A Committee on Superintendence and Property, of eight members, to have charge of the maintenance and operation of the parks and other property (except works of art and other property for exhibition in the Museums) under the control of the Commissioners, and the supervision of Councilmanic appropriations for Park purposes.

"3. A Committee on Street Trees, of four members, to have charge of the planting, care and removal of all trees on the public highways in the City of Philadelphia.

"4. A Committee on Trusts and Bequests, of five members, who shall have control and charge of all property (except works of art and other property for exhibition in the Museums) bequeathed to the Commissioners of Fairmount Park, or to the City of Philadelphia in trust to be administered by the Commissioners of Fairmount Park.

"5. A Committee on Art Museum, of five members, to have charge of the erection and control and management of the Philadelphia Museum of Art; also the control and management of Memorial Hall, Rodin Museum and other places of similar character, together with the works of art and other property therein belonging to the City of Philadelphia and under the control of the Commission.

"6. A Committee on Audit, of four members, to report to the Commission monthly the amounts required for appropriation and also to audit the accounts of the Treasurer and report thereon from time to time.

"7. A Committee on The Guard, of six members, to have charge of the appointment, equipment, duties, discipline and discharge of the Park Guards; also the installation and operation of all traffic signals, Guard Houses, and traffic regulations within the Parks under the control of the Commission."

It should also be noted that, after your Committee concluded its hearings, the Commission by resolution adopted March 11, 1936, authorized the President to appoint a committee of three "to represent the Park Commission and to co-operate with other agencies in the matter of providing recreation for the citizens of Philadelphia." The members of that committee, designated as the Committee on Recreational Activities, were appointed April 8, 1936. That, the committee was not created by any amendment of the rules of the Commission. However, since April, 1936, it has been made one of the standing committees. This committee represents the first attempt of the Commission to have a separate committee look after the very important matter of improving the recreational facilities of the parks under its jurisdiction. Down to March, 1936, The Committee on Superintendence and Property was supposed to handle the matter of recreational facilities as part of its duties.

By resolution adopted November 10, 1936, the Commission amended its rules by changing the name of the Committee on Superintendence and Property to Executive Committee. That committee and the Committee on The Guard are the two most important standing committees.

The standing committees are required to hold stated meetings at least once each month, between the regular meetings of the Commission, to keep a record of their proceedings and to report to the Commission by minutes at each monthly meeting. Three members of each standing committee constitute a quorum. The more important standing committees at times meet twice a month.

The officers of the Commission are a President, Vice-President, and Treasurer, who are chosen annually from members of the Commission and serve without compensation. A Secretary is also annually elected. He receives compensation and is not a member of the Commission.

The principal executive employees of the Commission are the Chief Engineer, Alan Corson; Assistant Chief Engineer, Russel T. Vodges; Secretary, Thomas S. Martin; Assistant Secretary and Assistant Treasurer, William S. Frey; Chief Clerk, Walter J. Thomas; and Arboriculturist, Samuel N. Baxter.

The employees of the Commission, numbering 1023 on December 1, 1936, consisted of 364 guard officers and men, 632 maintenance employees and 27 administrative employees. The guard employees are employed and discharged by the Committee on The Guard and the maintenance employees are employed and discharged by the Chief Engineer, who also acts as Superintendent of the Park.

None of the Commissioners and none of the employees is subject to any kind of civil service, either statutory or self-imposed.

MONEYS AVAILABLE FOR PARK PURPOSES

The Commission each year receives certain funds arising from the administration of the park areas under its jurisdiction, such as fines imposed for speeding and traffic violations on park highways, fines imposed for other violations of the law committed within park, areas, golf privilege fees, tennis fees, rentals from buildings within the park areas, licenses from concessions, etc. The funds received from these sources amount to approximately $100,000 per year. In 1935 the total collected was $94,434.10 and in 1936 it is estimated that the aggregate will be approximately $120,000.

The Commission maintains a bank account in the Corn Exchange National Bank for the deposit of these park funds as collected. This account is carried in the name of "The Commissioners of Fairmount Park—Park Fund Account." From this account the funds are paid semi-monthly by the Commission to the City Treasurer who keeps in a special account the moneys so received. These funds are subsequently appropriated in a lump sum by City Council for the use of the Commission in the following year. In utilizing the park funds so appropriated the Commission draws a warrant or warrants on the City Treasurer which are subject to formal approval by the City Controller.

This "Park Fund" was created as a result of specific legislation, namely, Section 23 of the Act of April 14, 1868, which provides in substance that all rents, fees, fines, etc., shall be paid into the City Treasury "as a fund to be exclusively appropriated by Councils for park purposes under the direction of said Commission." This legislative provision explains why the fund, as such, is appropriated by Council separately in a lump sum to the Commission.

The inclusion of fines in the "Park Fund" which thus subsequently becomes available for expenditure by the Commission, may partly be responsible for the present over zealous pratice of generally imposing heavy fines upon drivers of automobiles for violations of traffic regulations within park areas. It is a serious question whether drivers can expect entirely disinterested hearings so long as the funds of the Commission are increased by the fines so imposed.

Toward the end of August in each year, the Commission prepares its budget showing its financial requirements for the following year and submits it to City Council with a request that proper appropriations be made as called for by the budget. This budget does not include the park fund, which is usually reported by the Commission to City Council later in the year when the exact total thereof is more definitely known. However, at or about the time it acts upon the budget and makes its appropriations based thereon, the City Council also appropriates the park fund in a lump sum without specifying how it shall be used. The Commission is therefore free in any year to expend the moneys of the park fund so appropriated, according to its discretion. These moneys are usually applied by the Commission to take care of deficiencies in appropriations for such items as maintenance of golf courses and tennis courts, the purchase of uniforms, equipment and supplies for the park guards, the maintenance of motor vehicles and horses, motor and liability insurance, construction and maintenance of recreational facilities, the making of permanent improvements, contributions toward WPA projects for the betterment of the park and its facilities, and similar items.

The budget for the general appropriation of City funds for park purposes, submitted as above set forth by the Commission to City Council in August of each year, is prepared on a budget form prescribed by City Council. It sets forth in detail the financial requirements, salaries, payroll, supplies and maintenance and operation of all areas under the jurisdiction of the Commission. Council after due consideration, acts upon the budget, usually after making such changes and reductions as it deems necessary or proper.

To the extent that funds are appropriated by Council for any specific purpose for any year, in accordance with the revised budget, the Commission has authority to expend such funds for that purpose, in that year. Such expenditures are first approved by the appropriate standing committee and then by the Commission as a whole. Warrants are then drawn upon the City Treasurer and submitted to the City Controller for his approval, accompanied by the appropriate invoices. If the Controller approves, he countersigns the warrants and they are paid in due course by the City Treasurer. The Controller's vise is of course perfunctory. He does not in any way approve or disapprove the use for which the money is being expended.

If the Commission exhausts the appropriation for any particular item in the course of the year, but finds that more funds have been appropriated to some other item than will be required. it does not have authority to utilize these surplus funds. unless Council by ordinance authorizes a transfer of the surplus to the account for which there has been an inadequate appropriation. Any unexpended balances for any item or items, remaining at the close of the year, are supposed to revert to the City but, in practice, such surplus funds are transferred and expended for other items.

If the appropriation for any particular item is exhausted and Council fails to authorize a transfer of funds from any other approved item, and it becomes necessary for the Commission to expend additional funds, as for example, for the purchase of fodder for the horses, coal, or any other item that is necessary, the required supplies are purchased by the Commission, with the informal approval of a representative or representatives of Council, upon the distinct understanding that a deficiency bill will be presented to Council for approval and that, unless such approval is given, the account cannot be paid.

In August, 1934 the budget submitted by the Commission for 1935 requested appropriation of $2,443,274.14, exclusive of the park fund. In January, 1935, Council appropriated $1,564,304.92. In the course of the year 1935 the net appropriations aggregated $1,631,217.98. The park fund receipts in 1934 were $85,402.11 and on March 6, 1935 Council, by ordinance, approved the transfer of the sum of $191,461.97 to "Appropriated Park Funds" from "Unappropriated Park Funds." This large amount represented all of 1933 and 1934 park fund receipts and part of the 1932 park fund receipts and adjustments.

In August, 1935, the budget submitted by the Commission for 1936 requested appropriation of $2,028,245.92, exclusive of the park fund. In December, 1935, Council appropriated $1,723,015.92. In the course of the year, down to December 18, 1936, the net appropriations aggregated $1,750,322.33. The park fund receipts in 1935 were $94,-434.10 and on February 3, 1936 Council, by ordinance, approved the transfer of the sum of $95,842.77 to "Appropriated Park Funds" from "Unappropriated Park Funds."

The budget submitted for 1937 requested appropriation of $2,080,339.92. The park fund collected to December 22, 1936 amounted to an additional $119,310.00. The budget follows:

By reason of the current drive to reduce city expenditures, Council appropriated to the Park Commission for 1937 only $1,513,109, which was $251,718.14 less than was appropriated for the year 1936. Approximately 52% of the total 1937 appropriation of $1,513,109, or $797,114, was appropriated for Park Guard Officers and Men for the purpose of policing the Park areas.

In addition to the Park Fund and other appropriations, the Commission in the name of the City from time to time receives gifts, donations and legacies for specific purposes. The Commission by Statute is also authorized in the name of the City to accept devises, bequests and donations of land, moneys, art objects, etc., upon such trusts as the donor provides, if the same are satisfactory to the Commission and compatible with park purposes. On May 31, 1936, the principal and unexpended income of all trust funds under the jurisdiction of the Commission aggregated approximately $1,179,064.25 in cash and securities at market value. The income from these trust funds, and, in cases where the terms of the gift so provide, the principal, are supposed to be expended by the Commission for the carrying out of the purposes of the several gifts and trusts.

The Commission maintains separate bank accounts for all gifts, donations and special funds, and additional separate bank accounts covering each trust fund under its jurisdiction. Checks upon these accounts are signed by the treasurer or assistant treasurer and countersigned by the president or vice-president.

In addition, the Commission maintains two payroll bank accounts, the maintenance payroll and the guard payroll. The funds for payroll are obtained in a lump sum semi-monthly, by warrants on the City Treasurer, approved by the Controller, in accordance with the approved budget appropriations. These lump sum payments are then deposited in the payroll accounts carried by the Commission and the checks to the individual payees are drawn against that account. These checks are signed by the paymaster or assistant paymaster and countersigned by the treasurer or assistant treasurer.

Judicial Decisions Defining Status of the Commission

Our Supreme Court in Philadelphia v. McManes, 17S Pa. 28 (1896), affirmed per curiam an opinion by Thayer, P. J., in which it was held:

> "The act of 1867 committed the entire and exclusive control and maintenance of the park to the commissioners, and while placing the city councils under obligations to make the necessary appropriations for its maintenance, excluded them from all power over the plans and expenditures, carefully requiring, in the most explicit terms that all such plans and expenditures should be under the control of the commissioners. * * *
> "The commissioners derive their authority from a higher source than the city councils. They were not created by them, are not their agents in any sense, and are not in any way subject to their authority or control. They were appointed under the authority of the state, which has confided to them, and to them alone, the control and management of the park, which they are to govern and manage alone, without any interference on the part of councils, for the benefit of all citizens of Philadelphia, and, according to the words of the act of 1870, 'for the free use and enjoyment of all the citizens of this state.' * * *
> "It thus appears that the entire and exclusive control of the park, its grounds, its works, its maintenance, its improvement, its expenditures, its business, its officers and employees together with every function of government relating to the subject, has been confided by the legislature to the park commissioners."

Our Superior Court in Ankenbrand v. Philadelphia, 52 Pa. Superior Ct. 581 (1913), held the City of Philadelphia liable for the negligence of the Park Commissioners in leaving a footway in the park in a defective condition to the injury of a person walking on it. Among other things, the Court held:

> "The title to and ownership of the park and all that belongs to it, whether acquired by purchase, donation, or the exercise of eminent domain, are vested in the city. Except for donations (and these were made to the city) the cost of its laying out, improvement and adornment was borne by the city, and the money that goes to its maintenance and government comes from the city treasury. The commissioners have no fund under their direct control which they can use for these purposes. Their power to contract for its improvement does not go beyond the amount previously appropriated by councils for the purpose, and all their expenditures are subject to such appropriations as councils may make. As was said by Judge PAXON, the authority of the board is subject 'to the important provision that it has to look to city councils for the money which it expends for such purposes. This check will always protect the city from reckless or unauthorized expenditure:' Phila. v. Germantown Pass. Ry. Co., 10 Phila. 165. The Commissioners of Fairmount Park do not constitute a corporate body with capacity to sue and be sued as such, and they are not officers' of a corporation or quasi-corporation separate and distinct from the city. Finally, the power and the duty of the city to maintain, which ex vi termini includes the power and the duty to keep in reasonably safe condition, do not rest on uncertain inferences, but on express and unequivocal legislative declaration." * * * * *
> "It may be said that the city, as such, has no voice in the selection of the commissioners. This is true only in part, * * * * * But, as the city derives its powers from the legislature, it is for that body to determine how the officers and agents of the city shall be selected. It might, in the present instance, have designated the city councils to exercise the powers and perform the duties in question, or a board to be appointed by them or to be elected by the people of the city, and, in either event, we suppose it would not be questioned that the officers so elected were the representatives and agents of the city. But we cannot see that the commissioners of Fairmount Park are any less the representatives and agents of the city in doing that which it is made the duty of the city to do, because they are not appointed in either of the ways above suggested."

In Honaman et al. v. Philadelphia, 121 Pa. Superior Ct. 262 (1936), the Court held:

> "It is true * * * * * that the commissioners have full and exclusive jurisdiction over the management of the park; but this fact has never been held to insulate the city from liability for actionable negligence in that management. The commissioners have no power to levy taxes; the funds for the administration of the park must be appropriated by the city; the commissioners may be independent of the city, but they are not alien to it."

In Wood v. Philadelphia, 59 Pa. Superior Ct. 90 (1915), the Court held:

> "We feel that the commissioners are not as individuals, or as a body, under the civil service laws in force in the city, and that their employees are to be appointed, and their duties are defined as prescribed by the acts of 1867 and 1868, subject to the emergent call of the mayor in such cases as he may deem their service necessary to prescribe the public peace or other exigency. * * * * *
> "In a sense, the commissioners are representatives of the municipality so as to fix it with liability for omission to do the things required by law governing municipalities, but it is not a proper use of the words in the light of the statutes to say that the park commissioners or their employees are city employees. * * * * *
> "We conclude that Agnew and Pinkerton, as park guards, are under the government of the commissioners of Fairmount Park, and are not under the government and control of the city of Philadelphia, so as to bring them within the provisions of the civil service law."

In the case of Philadelphia v. Spangler et al., 9 District and County Reports, 577 (October, 1927), Judge Stern, then of the Court of Common Pleas No. 2 of Philadelphia County, held unconstitutional the Act of April 17, 1913, P. L. 93, vesting in the Park Commission powers over parks and parkways, other than Fairmount Park, that might thereafter be committed to their care and management by councils or individuals. He declared the Act unconstitutional because it delegated to a special commission power to supervise and interfere with municipal property in violation of Article III, section 20 of the Constitution of 1874, and also because it violated Article III, section 7 of the Constitution, as it applied only to the City of Philadelphia and as no other city could ever in fact come within its provisions relating to the Park Commission, which made the act a local and special law relating to the affairs of cities.

In his decision, Judge Stern pointed out that the original legislation creating the Fairmount Park Commission and vesting certain powers in it is valid, because these Acts were passed prior to the Constitution of 1874 and at a time when there was no constitutional prohibition as to the delegation of municipal powers to special commissions. The Commissioners, he said:

> "are in no way amendable to control by the councils nor by the executive departments of the City of Philadelphia. They constitute, therefore, as typical an instance as can be conceived, of a special, extra-municipal commission performing a municipal function, namely, the control and management if Fairmount Park, which is the property of the City of Philadelphia, and the control, managing and policing of which would, therefore, ordinarily be the right and the duty of the municipal authorities."

He then pointed out that, by a proper ordinance, new ground may be brought under the "care" and "management" of the Commission in accordance with the provisions of the Act of April 21, 1869, section 6, P. L. 1194, which authorized the commissioners to accept the "care and management," from time to time of grounds then appropriated or thereafter to be appropriated for park purposes within the City of Philadelphia. But the commissioners would have only the right to "care" for and "manage" such new grounds and they could not, since the adoption of the Constitution of 1874, obtain any greater rights than this over them. Such right is merely regulative and administrative and does not and cannot include the special powers (other than those of "care" and "management") given to the Commission over Fairmount Park by the Acts of March 26, 1867, P. L. 547, April 14, 1868, P. L. 1083, and April 21, 1869, P. L. 1194.

General Comments

When the Fairmount Park Commission was created, it was undoubtedly believed that the placing of the park areas under the care and supervision of a group of Commissioners, selected in the manner above set forth, would keep the park administration on a high, non-political level. Although the Commissioners appointed by the Board of Judges have almost uniformly been distinguished citizens, many of whom have achieved marked success in the business and professional worlds, and substantially all of whom have served at some personal sacrifice and for the purpose of rendering a public service, nevertheless, in practice, it appears that the Commissioners from time to time, in spite of their high character, have been actuated by political considerations or have at least permitted politically minded persons to sway their decisions. Among other ways, this has been evident in the matter of acquiring lands for park purposes at excessive prices. Even in those cases in which the initiative in making such purchases appears to have been taken by City Council, or by parties directly connected with the City government, the Commissioners neglected to make any protest, and, through one or more of their members, went so far as to give their active co-operation.
